"Frank," as all his friends knew him, is one of Montgomery's oldest citizens and has always been identified with the city's advancement, and at 70 years of age is hale, hearty and able to prove the Oeler theory is all wrong. His many friends join with us in wishing him many more happy birthdays.

First Operatic Event of the Year in St. Louis.

Puccini's sensational grand opera "Madam Butterfly" to have nine performances at the Olympic week of January 13, by the Henry W. Savage New English Grand Opera Co., with orchestra of 150, direct from its record-breaking season in London and New York.

Opera lovers, as well as all theatre goers in St. Louis and surrounding cities, will be delighted to learn of the coming opportunity to hear the widely heralded Japanese opera, "Madam Butterfly," at the Olympic, St. Louis, during the week of Jan. 13. This latest success by the greatest living Italian composer, Giacomo Puccini, whose "La Boheme" was one of the treats of last year's grand opera season, has taken Europe by storm during the past two seasons, and will soon complete a world's record run of consecutive performances, at the Garden Theatre, New York City.

"Madam Butterfly," described by Eastern cities as the most exquisite and melodious master work ever introduced in this country, will be sung by Henry W. Savage's new English grand opera company, especially organized for its first American production. A triple cast of artists is necessary, giving a complete change of singers for the first three performances. The entire company numbering 150 including a full grand opera orchestra of 60 musicians and 3 conductors, leaves New York Xmas week for a flying cross continent tour.

The St. Louis engagement is the only one between Chicago and Kansas City and will attract music lovers from a wide territory. Accordingly, mail orders with remittance should not be delayed so that the management of the Olympic can provide seats for out of town patrons as near as possible to the location desired. The price scale for "Madam Butterfly" will not be advanced over that charged in New York.

DON'TS FOR GIVING.

How to Do the Right Thing on Christmas.

Don't make presents because you "have to," only because you want to.

Don't be afraid to give something within your means; nothing is in worse taste than to give expensive gifts when you cannot afford it.

Don't think: "He gave me a $2 present last year; I gave him $1.50 one; this year I'll make it up by giving him a $2.50 one." Select what you want to give and give it, irrespective of what "he" did.

Don't give things against your own taste even if you suspect the taste of the recipient.

Don't give children toys, such as guns and drums, the use of which will be a source of worry or annoyance to their parents.

Don't play practical jokes in your giving; few people like to be made fun of, especially at Christmas.

Don't be afraid when it is possible, to give money, that the recipient may choose his own gift. Remember, especially with young people, that the Christmas money is often the only money of the year which they can spend for themselves.

Don't when you give money, "tie a string" to it; let it go unrestricted, to "buy something with," or "just to spend." Often $1 "just to spend" is worth more to the spender than a $5 present.

Don't inquire too particularly what becomes of the money you give. If the receiver wants to tell you what he did with it, well, good; he will do it. If he does not want to tell, why should you care?

Don't give a man cigars if you know the kind he likes.

DON'TS FOR RECEIVING.

Don't receive ungraciously. Even if you don't like what you get, pretend to, so far as you can. This does not mean gushing.

Don't count your gifts alone, and then boast of the number; nothing is so execrable.

Don't insist on showing your gifts to every chance caller for the next two weeks after Christmas. For intimate friends this is well enough, but don't keep it up too long; even friend's admiration has its limit.

Don't expect a present because you give one. This makes of Christmas a time for barter—an objection often, with some truth, alas! raised against Christmas giving.

Don't apologise if you have received and not given; it is most unpleasant on both sides.

Don't be ungenerous if you receive a gift from some one "beneath you;" it may have been given in all sincerity, not to gratify or to curry favor. The receiving of unwelcome favors is one of the hardest things to endure, but we all have to endure it sometimes; at Christmas let it be done graciously.

Don't make fun of anything that is given you, no matter what it is; this is the "beyond which none" bad taste.

Don't put off writing your notes of thanks too long; and don't make them too long when you do write them. If you have something definite and pleasant to say about the gift, say it with sincerity; but don't gush meaninglessly. It is most unpleasant to be gushed at about a present that the giver feels sure was not a success.—Urban Life.
