Mr. Stephen Baker, a well known and respected citizen was born in Washington County, Va., in 1825 and died at his residence here, Nov. 29, 1907, of paralysis. A good man has gone to his rest. He had never married nor become a member of any church, but he was a good Christian man of good habits, to know him was to love him. He bore his suffering with Christian patience. It is not often that one is permitted to live as long as he did. He had been old and nervous for many years and we know that the angels rejoiced at his going home. Oh! we know that it is hard to give up those that are so dear to us, but then how happy they must be in Heaven, where they will never say good bye. Rev. Milan preached a very able funeral sermon, much to his credit. Mr. Baker leaves three brothers and one sister to mourn his death and a host of friends. We extend condolence to the bereaved ones in their hour of sad affliction.

Most farmers are busy gathering corn for THE DONKEY.

BADLY MIXED UP.

Abraham Brown of Winterton, N. Y. had a remarkable experience and he says: "Doctors got mixed up over me; one said heart disease; two called it kidney trouble; the fourth, blood poison, and the fifth stomach and liver trouble; but none of them helped me so my wife advised trying Electric Bitters, which are restoring me to perfect health. One bottle did more good than all the five doctors prescribed." Guaranteed for blood poison, weakness and all stomach liver and kidney complaints, by Crump & Kidwell, druggists, 50c.

20 lbs. Granulated sugar for $1. MARTIN'S GROCERY.

Prizes for Farmers.

Austria provides an object lesson in dealing with waste lands. Prizes are given to farmers to encourage them to recover waste lands and lay them down as pastures, and also to erect shelters or stables for cows in high altitudes. The importance of this may be seen from the statement that one-quarter of the total fodder required for cattle and horses in the empire is derived from Alpine districts.

HAD TO LIFT UP HIS VOICE.

Worshiper Furnished Good Reason for His Ferocity.

The successful merchant invited his parents to visit him in New York city. They came gladly, and on the following sabbath were escorted to a fashionable church in Fifth avenue. Some of the hymns were familiar. In their rendition the visiting pair contributed heavily, with the credit for volume in favor of the father. Although not always in correct time, and sometimes in discord, yet the joy of this good couple leaped forth in joyous praise, and they did not see the glowering looks of nearby worshippers or the best-like face of their devoted son.

"Father," explained the merchant that afternoon, while his mother was taking her accustomed nap, "in our churches the congregation do very little singing; it is left entirely to the choir." "I know, my boy," said the old man as he lovingly placed a hand on his son's shoulder, "that it was very embarrassing to you this morning, but if I hadn't sung as loudly as I did, the people would have heard your mother."

Boothblacks in Livery.

There is a new office building in Wall street that is piling luxury on luxury in the way of fittings and general accessories to the point where it bids fair to be a close rival to the marble and plush palaces of hotels uptown. The latest outbreak in this direction is the uniforming of the official boothblack of the building in a page's livery, blue trousers with a gold piping on the seams, a page's short tunic with ever so many round gilt buttons down the front and a dark blue straight visored cap with the name of the company that owns the structure in gold letters on the front. Of course, this boothblack page is an Italian, and he looks extremely hot and uncomfortable in his padded coat.

What the Foolish Wife Does.

It is astonishing how many women allow the smallest trifles to break up the harmony of a home. A wife separated from her husband recently, after 20 years of happy married life, merely because he refused to give up smoking. He had enjoyed his pipe in peace all these years, but she took an unreasonable whim against the weed. And now comes the Austrian archduke who threw away a large fortune and the chances of a throne to marry a wife for love. And she spoils the whole romance and happiness of both, and brings a beautiful love story to the divorce court because she insists that her husband shall lead the "simple life," including a dress of sack, and vow never to shave or cut his hair.—Chicago Journal.

The Essence of Dullness.

It is true, no doubt, that many learned people are dull; but there is no indication whatever that they are dull because they are learned. True dullness is seldom acquired; it is a natural grace, the manifestations of which, however modified by education, remain in substance the same. Fill a dull man to the brim with knowledge, and he will not become less dull, as the enthusiasts for education vainly imagine; but neither will he become duller. He will remain in essence what he always has been and always must have been. But whereas his dullness would, if left to itself, have been merely venous, it may have become, under careful cultivation, pretentious and pedantic.—Balfour.
