TALMAGE'S THUNDER.

As Vociferated at the Opera House Last Night to a Large Audience.

The Lecture of the Eminent Pulpit Divine as Condensed by a Bazzo Scribe.

For weeks past the lecture of Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage, the famous pulpit orator, who by his fearless expose of vice and crime, wherever found, and who has perhaps made a greater and more enduring fame than any other preacher living, has been anticipated with feelings of the keenest pleasure, by all of the erudite people of Sedalia, and in fact by all who desire to see and hear a man of the reputation so justly and so honestly earned by the eloquent preacher.

Dr. Talmage's lecture was under the auspices of the Sedalia University, and at the appointed time, the speaker was introduced to one of the largest audiences which has graced the handsome new opera house since its erection. The introduction which was delivered by Rev. Geo. A. Beattie, president of the university, was given in a few well chosen words.

Who is the man that comes among us Like some God worshipped in the days of old And with the matchless harmonies of music Makes language glitter with the shine of gold? Who is he? A man to whom is given The gifts which make him royal in his might? A man created like unto his fellows But set apart from God's unclouded light.

THE LECTURE.

was listened to with profound attention and was most keenly enjoyed by all present. It is impossible to give any adequate idea by a synopsis. It was full of striking passages, adorned with a wealth of eloquence and word painting and replete with a rare humor that frequently convulsed the audience. The manner of delivery was strong and dramatic and much of the force of the lecture is lost when the gesture and tone are not seen and heard. The distinguished speaker is a finely built man about six feet tall with square, broad shoulders, and is as straight as an arrow. His countenance is a peculiar one and is well represented by his picture. His voice is strong and would not be harsh were it not for a way of grinding out his words in a grating tone. That is to say the natural quality is good as is demonstrated when he uses his natural tone. The distinguishing characteristic of his speaking and doubtless that which gave him his great popularity is the magnetic cordiality and geniality which shines from his face and runs through the whole of his sermon and lectures.

The man who has never made a blunder, he said, had never been born; if he had been he would have died right away. The first blunder was born in paradise and has had a large family of children. But the ordinary blunder was not what he had to deal with. Only blunders big at the sixth and great in stature would claim his attention for the evening.

He said that his ideas of a literary lecture had changed somewhat since he first began lecturing. He used to think they ought to be profound, and he had several awfully profound ones. He found that there were two difficulties with these lectures. The first was that the audience did not understand them, and the second was that he didn't understand them himself. He made up his mind that a lecture ought to be kindly and genial; that the friend to a man is he who helps to bear his burdens.

His ideas on religion were also different from those of many others. Religion was sunshine. The difference between earth and heaven is that the sunshine is never clouded in heaven. A long face did not give him an impression of religion. The longest-faced man he had ever seen was a minister. He borrowed twenty-five dollars of the speaker, and out of pure delicacy of feeling never referred to the subject again.

After telling several very amusing stories by way of illustration, Rev. Mr. Talmage passed to the first big blunder on his list, which was

MULTIPLICITY OF OCCUPATIONS.

He said the important thing was, first, to find one's place, second, to keep it. It does not make so much difference what one does so he does it well. The difference is not so much in the fruitfulness of the occupation, as in the endowment of the man with that glorious quality, stick-to-itiveness. Mr. Plodon makes a success of raising bantams. He gets dissatisfied, and his wealth takes the wings of ducks and Shanghais and flies away.

INDULGENCE IN BAD TEMPER.

was the second big blunder spoken of. This blunder is incurable in this country, said the speaker. I have $50,000 in reasons, fresh ones, against it. That many people come every year to this country because it is the best country in the world to live in. All the countries south of us are crumbling in to our government. The United States will eventually offer her hand to Canada in marriage, and Canada will blush, and, thinking of her allegiance across the sea, will say: "ask me." We have everything here that we want. Growl, Spitfire & Bros are the poorest firm in town. Merryman & Warmgrasp came over to this country with nothing but their good nature. They laughed and bowed themselves into the good graces of their employers, and then into the good will of the customers. People when they come to town came there to leave their carpet bags, and then came to trade where their carpet bags had been treated so kindly. They filled their shelves with good humor, the best capital in the world, and marched steadily to success.

DISCOURAGEMENT AT BAD TREATMENT FROM OTHERS.

Women are credited with being great gossips, but men are as bad. What post mortem examinations of character when men meet to smoke and talk after business hours! How heads drop as the guillotine comes down! One has heard that a fellow merchant is embarrassed; another has heard a similar rumor. They discuss it with great gusto, and one resolves to tell the banker, and another to tell the money lender. About the time Mr. Well-to-do sees his way clear the banker and the money lender come down upon him, and he is a bankrupt. All because some Christian gentlemen felt that they must look after his business. Call gossip light! Its weight has crushed thousands of men to the earth. How many men there are going down with mal-treatment. A clerk goes in to a store and tells the truth about his goods. He stays three years and is ruined through the wrong system of ethics prevailing there. It becomes finally his business to show customers the sights of the city. He comes to the store some day drunken and demoralized and is kicked out by those who have taken the luster out of his eye, the honor out of his soul.

gentlemen felt that they must look after his business. Call gossip light! Its weight has crushed thousands of men to the earth. How many men there are going down with mal-treatment. A clerk goes in to a store and tells the truth about his goods. He stays three years and is ruined through the wrong system of ethics prevailing there. It becomes finally his business to show customers the sights of the city. He comes to the store some day drunken and demoralized and is kicked out by those who have taken the luster out of his eye, the honor out of his soul.

was the next blunder treated of. The speaker said he was not opposed to innocent amusement. He described most graphically a game of ball, the game of checkers after tea, the drive and the chase. People should enjoy themselves. He did not believe a man's face should be a counter on which to measure religion by the yard. It was no better to wear out than to rust out—both were sins.

But the man who makes looking for recreation his whole business is going to ruin. Amusements are harmless when they do not interfere with home enjoyment. When they create a distaste for home pleasures, they are harmful. When a man does not enjoy his home life, look out! This branch of the lecture was closed with a beautiful word picture of the home. Blunder next was the

FORMATION OF WRINGING DOMESTIC RELATIONS.

The lecturer spoke of the drunken, dissolute husband who made his home the abode of misery; and of the cross, censorious, peevish man, who was worse than the dead drunk man, because he could not be managed. On the other hand he spoke of the men of fine business capacity, whose aim in life had been defeated by the imprudence and folly of their wives. He had known delicate women who had strength enough to carry their husband's store off upon their backs and who, while their husbands were in the most embarrassed circumstances were declaring the most liberal dividends among the milliners and dressmakers. A man has no right to make a blunder and get this kind of a woman. The world was never so full of good women as to-day.

The strong helpful woman, who is ready to take any position to which fortune assigns her is the lady. This woman knows how to do things. She never sews on a license tray for a button; nor mistakes a bread trap for a cradle.

ATTEMPTING LIFE WITHOUT ENTHUSIASM AND ENTERPRISE.

Too much impetuosity is to be deprecated, but the age demands enthusiasm and energy. This is the great day of enterprise. Men walk and drive and live faster than ever before. Now we fly without wings, and move sitting still. He who can't swim in the current, will drown. But there is no necessity of being borne down by the current. I have no patience with those who cry that the occupations are all full. That never was such a time as now. Put your finger upon a map of the world and wherever it falls it will be upon a place that is growing better. Spain is getting a better government; Italy is throwing off superstition for religion; India has banished her cruel juggernauts. Those who see the receding wave cry that the tide is going out, but each succeeding wave rises higher.

The great army of civilization and Christianity is moving in two wings. The English wing will take all countries until it reaches the Holy Land. The American wing will move over the Alleghenies and the Rockies, pass dry shod over the Pacific, and crossing Asia the two wings will meet at the Holy Land.

Rev. Mr. Talmage closed his lecture by thanking the audience for their kind reception and the opportunity of addressing them. He said he could return the favor only by inviting them to New York and Brooklyn, and to his house. He hoped, however, that they would not all come at once.

SOME SENTENCES FROM THE LECTURE.

We will never thunder or fret or scold anything better. The world can only be made better by kindness. I do not believe a man's face should be made a counter on which religion may be measured by the yard. Recreation is only the jingling of the bells while the horses draw the load. Now one icicle frozen to each chair and sofa is a sociable. I have known a house of twenty-five rooms that was a vestibule of perdition; and I have known a house of two rooms that was a vestibule of heaven.

If a man has a good wife—like yours or mine—he has no right to complain, though the whole world be against him. The earth is full of music. Silence itself is but music asleep. Gossip is born in the lowest depths of hell, and comes forth reeking with slime and darting venom from its forked tongue.

Besides the bill sent in to the father of the boarding school miss, Dame Nature puts in a bill as follows: Miss Ophelia Angelina to Dame Nature, Dr.

To one year's neglect of exercise—fifteen chills. To twenty nights late retiring—twenty-five twitches of the nerves.

To twelve weeks wrong diet—exhausted constitution, chronic neuralgia, a life-long dyspepsia, and a couple of ills.

Dr. C. W. Benson's Celery and Chamoille Pills are prepared expressly to cure and will cure headache of all kinds, neuralgia, nervousness and dyspepsia. Proved and endorsed by physicians.

A Handsome Present.

Mrs. J. H. Fitzgerald, wife of the popular K. & T. engineer, yesterday received a handsome box of curiosities from her friend, Mrs. L. P. Hill, of Wallace, New Mexico. Among those most noticeable were some very fine views of scenery at different places in that part of the country; specimens of Indian pottery, Indian beads, and some very large onions, which were raised in San Domingo and San Philippi. The latter were of unusual size, and in themselves a rare curiosity.

Decorative Art.

HERE AND THERE.

BY M. DASH.

Ed Burrows feels quite jubilant, As indeed he oughter; And his favorite song is now: "My daughter, oh! my daughter!"

The Bazzo drinks a health to Ed, In sparkling flat creek water; Here's joy to him, his wife and to "That daughter, oh! that daughter."

Mr. J. B. Reed, the New York jewelry man, will spend the Sabbath in this city.

Allen Dorman, the bard of Clinton, was at the Talmage lecture last night and got some points for future poetic effusions.

Mrs. Naylor Newkirk left yesterday for Hot Springs, where her mother, Mrs. Parker, has been sojourning for several weeks past.

At the match game of base ball yesterday afternoon between the University and Broadway nines, the score stood: University, 17; Broadway, 11.

Blair Bro's "handwriting on the wall" was slightly "out of whack" in last night's "Souvenir," but looms up all right in the great SUNDAY BAZOO.

The "Kate Claxton Souvenir," with an edition of 2,000 copies, will come to the front to-morrow afternoon and evening in elegant shape. It will be a "hollyhock" and no mistake.

Mr. I. W. Lyman, a capable and experienced druggist, of Worcester, Mass., has come to this city to take charge of the excellent drug store in East Sedalia, of J. W. Plattett & Co.

Talmage earns $3.50 a minute when on the lecture platform. He has contracted to deliver fifty lectures this season, for which he receives from $500 each, to $300—never below the latter figures.

E. O. Bartholomew, assistant manager of the American Button Hole Overseaming Sewing Machine company of St. Louis, is in the city keeping a bright lookout upon the interests of the extensive establishment he so efficiently represents.

The Press club will meet this afternoon promptly at 3 o'clock at the room of the Chess and Checkers club, and will hear the report of the committee of which Maj. Current, of the Democrat, is chairman.

To-morrow Everett Farnham, so long the efficient and popular chief clerk of Sanborn Bros., takes a position with Ferrell & Fellows. He will be a valuable acquisition to that establishment, where his many friends will henceforth find him.

Prof. James M. Snavely, of Clinton, formerly in the coal business, late city editor of the Clinton Advocate, granger, liverman, a heavy shipper, and a "heavy weight" generally speaking, listened to DeWitt's delightful discourse.

Among the number from Jefferson City, who attended the Talmage lecture, were: Mrs. Gov. Crittenden, Miss Florence Ewing, Miss Alice Boon, E. B. Ewing, editor of the Jefferson City Tribune, and also John Meagher, of that paper, Mr. Ed. Silver and Mr. John Schree.

The following gentlemen were in the city yesterday and gave the BAZOO the pleasure of a call: Wm. McCracken, sheriff of Hickory county; H. C. McCracken, Polk county; W. Gaines, Wallace, Benton county; and W. B. Ham, an able young attorney of Warsaw.

The "Talmage Souvenir," with Rosa Pearle's interesting biographical sketch of the renowned preacher, and with other reading matter of a pleasant nature, was read with interest by hundreds of the audience previous to the beginning of the lecture. Advertisers have no cause to regret taking a merry little business trip with "M. Dash."

Hoffman Bros. at 305 Ohio street have one of the best and most convenient salesrooms in the entire city. They are building a brick addition to the rear, and will have a first-class place for their new line of business, hardware, tinware and house furnishing goods. They blossom out this week. They are wide-awake young merchants and deserve the best of fortune.

After commenting upon the marked excellence given at Olympic hall at Brownsville, Friday the 7th inst., by the pupils of the public schools, at the close of the school, the Herald says: "It is just and proper to say that this gratifying result is due in no small degree to the lessons given to some of the older pupils by Mr. C. C. Parker, the talented young elocutionist of Sedalia."

The members of the Chess and Checkers club, as well as the public in general, are cordially invited to call at the "Golden Eagle" for one of their "prize puzzles" to try their skill in working it out. The prizes will be given to those describing the solution of it in the fewest words. The solution must be handed or sent in in sealed envelopes, which will be opened on July 4th, by disinterested judges, who will award the prizes.

A Marysville exchange says: "R. T. Gentry, is a son of Judge Wm. Gentry, and is perhaps the most prominent and we think the most available candidate for state treasurer. He is of sufficient age to make an excellent state treasurer, he having served the people of Pettis county several terms as county treasurer, and having been a banker for 12 years is well qualified for the office to which he aspires. He is a man of pleasing address, popular at home, well known throughout the state, and would add great strength to the next state ticket."

Police News.

Emma Gatewood, colored, for vagrancy and disorderly conduct, was arrested by Officer McGhee.

J. A. Morris, was taken in by Marshal Shy and Officer McGhee, for carrying concealed weapons.

One tramp occupied cell number one last night.

Officers McGhee and Wentzelman, had quite a matinee at the depot last night. A crazy bank cashier, of Fort Worth, Texas, in company with his brother, occupied a sleeper on the Missouri Pacific. Arriving at the depot, the crazy man drew a Smith & Wesson, 48 calibre, double action revolver, and proceeded to clear out the car generally, making his brother go with the rest. Officers McGhee and Wentzelman were called and went into the car. The man pointed the revolver at them, but the officers grabbed him and took the pistol from him. In the scuffle, both officers had their hats smashed, Wentzelman losing the entire crown of his.
