Miss Allen is a young lady who is well known in this vicinity, as she has resided here for a number of years and has won many lasting and sincere friends who pay tributes to her excellent qualities of head and heart. Mr. Dean is a promising farmer and stock dealer of Kansas.

—The following is most amusing in its arrangement, but, of course, no woman is afraid of a mouse: Look out for an item reading, "Last night Deputy Marshal Phoebe Cousins of St. Louis, assisted by an armed posse of determined women, surrounded a house near Biler Ridge, Mo., which for some time has been the headquarters of a dangerous gang of counterfeiters. The leaders of the gang were in the house at the time. Just as Deputy Marshal Cousins was about to give the order to fire, a mouse ran across the yard, and the posse fled in disorder. Miss Cousins screams alarmed the counterfeiters, and they escaped before the posse could be rallied.—The deputy marshal upon being interviewed today said she was prepared for anything but mice, and that she would resign rather than go near that house again."—St. Louis Chronicle.

RECEPTION.

Mrs. L. F. Sheldon gave a small but very pleasant reception yesterday evening, in honor of her daughter, Mrs. Emmet Phillips, who is at present her guest. Ices and cake were daintily served. HERE'S LUCK!

And May Your Shadow Never Grow Less,

As You Peruse the Religious Column.

Fellow fryers in this mundane bake-oven!

How do you like it as far as you've got?

Shall we put any more wood in the stove?

How did you manage to crawl through last week, anyhow?

Wasn't it a scorcher?

Over two thousand beefsteaks died in one hour, and were buried without an inquest. Yes, you bet, they were put under the ground quick.

Everybody knew what was the matter with them. They were "prostrated by the heat."

In St. Louis the thermometer had to be tied down with ropes, and one broke its bonds and stood on its head on the top of the court house dome and reached for the sun.

Yes, Mercury went way upward, then sat down on the cloud and wagged his feet around his head so he could fan himself with his wings hitched to his heels.

You bet it was hot. Why you couldn't stand on the ground and reach up and hold your hand on a three-story tin roof a minute. It was so hot—and high.

People who wouldn't speak to a "work-ing-man" two weeks ago, took off their hats to Schaefer every time he passed by. They said he was a nice man; but ice men up-stuck their noses, and weighed out a frozen dawdler for ten cents a drop.

And that's how they made sun while the hay shone.

Oh, you may say, "give us a rest," and all that; but we're doing this preaching, and if you don't like the way we talk, you'll find a contribution box nailed on the front door, and you can pay your nickel in it as you pass out.

I tell you it was hot, and people powerful thirsty. People should be careful about their drinks in hot weather. Take it by degrees and watch the thermometer. When you get up to 98—stop right there. That's what a thermometer is for—and the man who wants more than 98 drinks is a hog.

Talking about drinks:

He held the old shirt by the neck before discarding it forever, but he wasn't mourning for the garment. He only said thusly: "I wish I had the money for all the drinks that have gone through that old neck bank."

Stranger, its a long time since you and I sung a song together. The last song we sang was an invitation to Johnny to fill up the bowl, but he said the bowl and the slate were both broke. As we gazed upon the remains, we gently murmured, "when shall we three meet again?" and departed. The reason we haven't been here before, though, was that we have been to Washington to examine Mrs. Jenks. We found Mrs. J., like her native State, most all bayou.

But to our song. It's a late one. Got in the house at 3 o'clock this morning through the back window. The big bald-headed man will now murder the bass drum:

Gabriel sat on a hickory tree, Hoist up your attic window, Shouting out that merry free, Sinners go long;

You grease your wings you tip on high, Hoist up your attic window, You turn a somersault in the sky, Sinners go long.

O Josiah, you'll expire, Kiss me on my aching brow, Sinners go long.

Sister Ruth she went to church, Hoist up your attic window, The scriptures she was bound to search; Sinners go long.

Hoist up your attic window, Hoist up your attic window, She told it to her brother Clem; Sinners go long.

Nebucmeyer was king of the Jews, Hoist up your attic window, He stood 'leven foot in his old gum shoes, Sinners go long.

No roof on the house the water come in, Hoist up your attic window, He kept himself dry by drinking gin; Sinners go long.

If there is anything we like to encourage, it is youth. We never yet saw two boys trying a tin can to a dog's tail but what he felt a thrill of pity for the dog. Ah! the innocence of youth! Youth is— [if that cuss of a bootblack didn't give me this lead quarter, I don't want a cent!] As we were saying, we like to encourage youth. Here is one, seven years old, who ought to be encouraged:

"Dea uncle George please get me a new-found-and-dog. I want a puppy, I hope you are well like I am, I go to school now and have recess. I am bad off for the dog. send him as soon as you can, I send my love to you for christ sake amen, send a boy dog."

ROBERT S. H.—

He got the "boy" dog. Here's a little curiosity going the rounds that is good. When we say it is good, that is sufficient for you:

"Habit" is hard to overcome. If you take off the first letter it does not change "a bit." If you take off another you still have a "bit" left. If you take off still another, the whole of "it" remains. If you take off still another it is not "it" totally used up. All of which goes to show that if you wish to be rid of a "habit" you must throw it off altogether.

That's the way we stopped chewing tobacco on the plains, two hundred miles from a store.

This here meeting will close with "The Backbiter." Heaven knows we would like to wind up with a back scratcher; but how can a fellow get around behind himself? So stick to the clothes brush or rub your back against the corner of the door jamb, which is one of the most unsatisfactory things we ever struck in life. But hear the poet:

There's some one living in this town (May be, should I write it down, Your own would prove the same), Who, when you say, "He's good," will cry, "Indeed! You say that's true, But, very considerably, 'You wouldn't—if you knew!'"

One says, "What a pretty girl goes by," "Oh, horrors! you don't think so?" "Since we're you and I, I'll say her parents drink. And she—well I won't tell it out, I have no doubt it's true, You think she's nice and pretty, but You wouldn't—if you knew!"

If one sing sweetly, "How she flaut!

If dressed in taste, "What style!" Supremely "vulgar" all her hair, Her dresses simply "vile." And when good Deacon Busby failed, (A noble man and true), She said, when he his lot bewailed, "You wouldn't—if you knew!"

Let those admire and love who can This malice-breathing dame, Who seems to think a prosperous man Must surely be to blame. That beauty is a mark of sin, That goodness must be crime. She sees but thieves and rascals in The heroes of the time. Some times she doesn't hesitate To tell us what she knows, And in nine cases out of eight A lie is all she shows. For virtue's sake, I hope to find One good old doctrine true. Some heat for such I should not mind; "You wouldn't—if you knew!"

Horsford's Acid Phosphate, as an Appetizer.

Dr. Morris Gibbs, Howard City, Michigan, says: "I am greatly pleased with it as a tonic; it is an agreeable and a good appetizer."

SWEET SPRINGS.

Items of Interest to Everybody and Caught on the Wing.

—Gen. Jno. B. Waddell is registered at the Grand Hotel.

—John S. Elliott and wife are here sipping and praising the Springs water.

—Col. W. R. Nelson, of the Kansas City Star, is a guest at the Springs. His family accompany him.

—Mrs. B. M. Yost and her sister, Mrs. J. R. Claiborne, of St. Louis, and their mother, Mrs. H. E. Moore, of Jefferson, City, are here.

—The interest in the Springs is almost at fever heat. New arrivals are coming in on every train, and the hotel is constantly alive with new faces.

—Every evening the guests assemble on the wide verandas and pass the time listening to the music of the band and discussing the passing events of the day.

—"Mother Hubbards" are still the favorite sort of a nondescript article the ladies most affect in the morning and an enthusiastic admirer of one of the fair wearers yesterday made the following sketch of his adored, as she meandered to the spring for a fresh draught of the water.

—Judge John F. Phillips, wife and daughter, Miss Hortense, and Miss Trottie Thompson, of Jefferson City, arrived Friday evening. They will occupy a cottage. The judge has already left for a trip to the lakes of Minnesota.

The party last night was a great success, so much so that a "post" who was present indulged in the following jingling verses.

A SWEET SPRING'S BALL.

Of the pleasures of life we have on this sphere There's one that can outvie our youth, And for the young as well as the old Makes graceful the rude and uncouth. Soft melody reigns in sweetest of strains, There's a well-polished floor in the hall, And we dance to the music so gay.

There's fun at a Sweet Springs ball. First comes the grand march 'round the hall, You step to the music so sweet And march, counter-march, from figures and all At your side a dear girl so neat.

A waltz then in order to a pair of Strauss, In the Blue Danube you glide so free, Then a peek-a-boo medley gets into your feet; Yes, these are rare pleasures for me.

COUROUS: 'Tis the fun we have at the ball 'Tis music and pleasure for all, The bashful made bold, And youthful the old, With the fun at a Sweet Springs ball.

Then the lively quadrille, what enjoyment therein, With good dancers all in your set, There are mirth loving glances and voices so clear, That it cheers and lightens your step. Forward two hands across, now balance all, Forward sides, right and left, ladies chain. Tak's your partners, my boys, is Professor Shank's call With the fun at the Sweet Springs ball.

COUROUS: 'Tis the fun we have at a ball, 'Tis music and pleasure for all, The bashful made bold, And youthful the old, With the fun at a Sweet Springs ball.
