

SEDALIA BAZOO

Publisher: J. WEST GOODWIN. TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION: Daily, including Sunday, per year $4.00...

The St. Louis exposition closed yesterday. St. Louis didn't want the championship anyhow.

Nearly 200 kinds of gold filling are now made for the teeth.

Gillmore's band will delight the Kansas City people this week.

A Kentucky girl snapped a kernel of corn at her lover and put out his eye.

There is one good thing about the college "rush"—it never goes to the head.

A Kentucky bicyclist was chased for three miles recently by a bull which caught sight of his red lantern.

Only, as the Globe-Democrat would say, a few more days until we see the president's Thanksgiving proclamation.

The South Sea islanders at their last missionary meeting raised $1,531 for a new yacht to carry the gospel to New Guinea.

A giantess who, though only 12 years and 5 months old, stands 8 feet high and weighs 270 pounds, is on exhibition in Japan.

Secretary Whitney's mail bag is overflowing with begging letters ever since an indiscreet friend praised him as extremely charitable.

The new time cards go into effect on the Gould system to-day. Many changes have been made in the time of arrival and departure of trains at the Union depot.

The Thistle was content to go away without the cup, and the Browns are not kicking about losing the paltry trophies of the championship.

Social distinctions are carefully observed among the bandits of Texas. Stage robbers for instance, are put upon a distinctly lower social scale than train robbers.

A man at Titusville, Fla., was out watching his melon patch the other night when he heard a rustling in the orange grove near by and fired, bringing down his mother-in-law.

A violin maker in France makes his instruments at a cost of 90 cents each and is satisfied to sell them to the trade at the rate of $1.12 each. Many of his violins find their way to this country.

Near Coal Canyon, Cal., is a mammoth fig tree measuring 102 inches in circumference four feet from the ground. It has four immense branches, each of which exceeds fifty inches in circumference.

Dr. Schelleman the archeologist, writing from Thebes, declares that Egypt is no place for consumptives. He is satisfied that the climate is injurious to them, though he formerly believed quite the contrary.

Hidemaro Nambu of Japan was graduated at Princeton in 1878. He is now court astronomer at Tokio. When he accepted the court appointment his name was changed to Hidemaro Okenna. Seeing stars reminds him of the old college days when he took part in cane rushes.

There is no controverting the fact that winter is close upon us. This sage remark may be a "chestnut," but it is true, nevertheless, as the BAZOO has been, or will be in the next two weeks, backed up by the entire press of the country. Sagacity and tact are two excellent qualities.

Romance is by no means dead in Franklin Ga., whatever it may be elsewhere. Obdurate father, impulsive young man, 14-year-old bride, abduction and marriage, with an escort of sympathetic friends and loaded rifles. What more could the most exacting novelist require?

If you vote "against" the sale of intoxicating liquor, you vote to shut off the electric light and gas lamps.—Springfield Herald.

You also vote to shut off the police courts, with their "plain drunks" and "trespassing bums," and drive the grand jury wild for want of something to do.

A young man entering the hotel at Franklin, Pa., recently, was taken for the governor, and that evening the band serenaded him. He was saluted as Gov. Beaver, to his surprise, but he did not give himself away. Stepping out upon the balcony, he placed his hand upon his breast and made a dignified bow.

On another page today will be found a letter, clipped from a Warrensburg paper, written by Miss Bertie Duffield, who has been a missionary in Japan for nearly four years. She is a splendid writer of scenes and events in "sunrise land," and this letter describing the unfurling of the Stars and Stripes on the top of a Japanese mountain, will be of interest.

FOR GOVERNOR.

A few days ago the Post-Dispatch sent a telegram to more than three hundred of the leading democratic editors of the state, asking them to name their choice or preference for the democratic nominee for governor. To this request came replies from about two hundred of them, and the P.-D. gives the following summary.

Several editors named their second and third choices. Mayor Francis was named for second place by nine, and for third by two, while Dockery, who is Francis' most formidable opponent for the nomination, is placed for second choice only five times.

These figures, though small considerably enhance the chances of the present Mayor of St. Louis to ascend a step higher on the political ladder.

The result of the Post-Dispatch canvass is plainly and practically set forth in this table, where the number of the editors who expressed themselves in favor of any single candidate is placed opposite the candidate's name:

Table with 2 columns: Candidate Name and Number of Votes. Includes D. R. Francis (30), Alex M. Dockery (28), Judge E. H. Norton (25), etc.

Table with 2 columns: Candidate Name and Number of Votes. Includes Francis (2), Dockery (1), Clardy (1), D. A. Ball (1).

LOCAL OPTION AND REVENUE.

Now that local option is becoming popular, and sweeping the gin mills as on a tidal wave, the whisky fellows are getting very anxious about the "revenue," and gnashing their teeth in a perfect paroxysm of rage.

The saloons have paid into the treasuries of the towns and counties vast sums, they say, "and where is it all coming from now." "The licenses more than paid the current expenses of the towns, and now the burdens must be borne on the shoulders of the poor, overburdened tax-payers."

This is their side of the matter. In getting over this matter of revenue, the other side must be measured as well. The saloons pay large sums into the town treasuries, paying the expenses of the town, or some of them, at least. The license men stop here, and do not seem to realize further than this. The great cost of the whisky business is borne by the county in the settlement of fees in criminal cases. The writer was a member of a grand jury in a Missouri county, where, out of a total of twenty-two cases investigated, nearly three-fourths of them, and two-thirds of the jury and witness fees, were directly chargeable to liquor in one form or another. The county received but a small share of the license from the saloons, and localities where saloons had been driven out were taxed for their share of the costs. This is how the cities and towns derive so much financial support from the saloons.

They grant the license and receive the money, while the entire county is expected to bear the burden of the prosecution of criminals made by the saloons.

Just here the question of the saloon ceases to be a moral one, and becomes one of financial economy. Is it better to license saloons, receiving from them one, or ten, or twenty thousand dollars a year, and force that much cost on the county in criminal cases, or cut off this source of "revenue," and at the same time cut down the expenses by stopping the business of the criminal courts? This is not a moral question, but one of business, and is so looked at by business men.

Then as to local option. Business men go to the polls in their right senses, and their eyes fully open in the matter of taxes, and vote against the sale of whisky. They know, as business men and tax-payers, that the sum heretofore paid by the saloons must be offset, but they know, also, that the sums paid out for costs in criminal cases must be offset, and they believe that one will offset the other. And down go their ballots against the license. There is nothing underhanded or hidden: they know the cause and they devise the effect. This is local option—this is doing things just as they wish it done, and as they propose to do it.

Meet the "revenue" question as you would meet any other, squarely, with your eyes to the front.

PASTE AND SCISSORS.

When citizen Train gets himself figured down fine, the sum total is, "has been."—St. Joe Gazette.

It was a dry moon this week, and the whisky men saw it over their left shoulder.—Springfield Republican.

The Golden Rule covers all duties to ourselves as well as others for we cannot injure ourselves without injury to others.—Eldorado Tribune.

Of the forty-seven elections held thus far in this state under the local option law, thirty-three have gone against whisky.—Nevada Noticer.

The Browns won a game yesterday morning. But, in order to uphold their well-earned reputation for coming out second best, they lost a game in the afternoon.—Globe Democrat.

Trade at home. Do not send away to buy anything because you can get it a little cheaper, for that is the best way on earth to kill a town. Encourage home enterprise.—Journal-Democrat.

The English people are slowly resolving that no man shall cast more than one vote. The American people made the same resolution a long time ago, but it requires close attention to have it rigidly carried out.—Post-Dispatch.

Well we did think that the St. Louis Browns could play ball a little bit, but they have not proved a good square meal for the Detroiters. We love the game, were proud of "our Browns" but we are left to mourn.—Higginsville Advance.

We have reason to believe that the Indian Territory will soon be opened to the actual settler. After deciding the Indians their lands in severalty, whatever is left will be thrown open to the public. The purchaser must live on his land five years before he gets a patent.—Lamar Democrat.

When the increased vote is considered and the additional fact that in a general city election a smaller percent remained at home than at the special election yesterday, it shows an increase in the population during the past five months of fully twenty-five hundred or five hundred per month.—Springfield Herald.

The Missouri State grange passed a resolution declaring that the organization will have nothing to do with politics. A resolution of this character, if passed ten years ago, would have accomplished some good. The grange has been quite successful in locking the stable after the horse turned up minus.—Jeff. City Tribune.

Charles Dickens, Jr., son of the great novelist whose works are household treasures in most of the homes of our land, has arrived in this country and will give readings from his father's works, appearing in all the large cities. Charles Dickens had a warm place in the hearts of Americans and the prospects are that the son will be well received through respect to the memory of the father.—Boonville Topic.

The report comes from Washington that there is trouble in the cabinet between Attorney General Garland and Secretary Bayard, due to differences arising from the discussion of the fisheries question, and it is stated that when Mr. Cleveland returns Secretary Bayard will lay the matter before him, and will resign unless the President sustains his position. There is good reason to believe, however, that the alleged trouble does not exist in the cabinet, but in the minds of some newspaper correspondents at Washington, who are in the habit of making trouble in the cabinet three or four times every month.—New Orleans States.

Exciting Episode

This morning about daybreak, considerable excitement was caused in the northeast part of the town by the report of pistol shots. Investigation proved that Marshal Logan was upon the trail of a murderer named Albert Gannon, wanted at Vandalia, Illinois, and upon coming up with him at the house of one Dodson, his brother-in-law, about daybreak, when the marshal fired three shots at him, one of which took effect in the under side of the left arm, near the shoulder passing through the fleshy part of the left breast, making only a flesh wound. As soon as Gannon was struck he dropped, and the marshal captured him and brought him to Dr. Hulett who dressed the wound. The prisoner is held for the sheriff of Vandalia, to whom Marshal Logan has telegraphed.

Mackey's Partner Goes Broke.

St. Joseph, Mo., Oct. 22.—An illustration of the fickleness of fortune was supplied in this city yesterday, when J. F. McNight, the stranded California millionaire, appeared before the mayor, and after representing that he had not a dollar in the world, begged a railroad pass to Kansas City, which was given him. He left St. Joseph last afternoon and is bound for New York City, where he says he has relatives who will care for him this winter. McNight was a partner of the millionaire Mackey in California, and for several years was Mayor of Oakland and one of the most prominent men on the Pacific Coast. He was a personal friend to the elder Bennett in New York when the latter had his office on Nassau street, and was Jay Gould's friend when Gould was brought into prominence by Jim Fisk. He has met and been on intimate terms with all the great men of his day, and tells interesting anecdotes concerning them all. He lost his millions a short time ago, and is quite cheerful, though he hasn't a dollar. He says he will return to California next year and build another fortune. His dress was seedy and as he sat in the passenger coach talking to an acquaintance he was eating a bun and a slice of cheese that had cost him 3c. All his personal effects were tied in a big red handkerchief, which lay beside him on the seat. After he had finished his meal he lit an old black pipe and seemed to enjoy it hugely. In his downfall he remains, of course, his polished manners, and is still in conversation and deportment the same elegant gentleman he was when he could draw his check for $10,000,000.

A Suicide and Would-be Murderer.

New York, Oct. 22.—Adam Beyer, a German butcher, attempted to kill his wife and four-year old child with a large knife, early this morning. After a short struggle the mother and child escaped without injury, but the father in his fury cut his throat and was dead in a few minutes.

A Novel Accident.

Independence, Mo., Oct. 22.—About 4:20 yesterday morning the watchman left in charge of the train of the Independence and Park railway, which is always left standing on the square overnight, was frightfully cut across the face and nose, by the bursting of a pane of glass which had become heated from the fire, the stove in the car being red hot, igniting the car itself. The flames were put out by the watchman and a policeman, there by averting a conflagration. The man was attended by a local physician, and is able to be around to-day.

DOWN AN EMBANKMENT.

Adam Jessamine, a carpenter, and a Mr. Graham, a plasterer, met with an accident yesterday morning at 8 o'clock which came near resulting seriously; as it was they had a miraculous escape. The gentlemen had started out gunning driving a horse attached to a buggy, when at the intersection of Lexington street and the Missouri Pacific railroad the horse unaccountably jumped to one side, going down a perpendicular embankment, followed by the buggy, about twenty feet. Both gentlemen managed to jump from the buggy in time to save themselves from sustaining serious injury or perhaps death. The horse, after investigation had been made, was found to be but slightly injured, but the carriage which had but a few moments before been occupied by the gentlemen was a total wreck.

Every Day of the Seven teeth should be brushed with SOZODONT in order to keep them white, or to render them so. Specks and blemishes upon their surface disappear after applying SOZODONT a few times. The gums acquire a coral tint, and grow hard from the use of SOZODONT. Analysis discloses nothing impure in this preparation. The ladies buy and use SOZODONT because they know that it is a most effective aid to beauty. The sooner our readers commence its use the better for them.

CASTORIA for Infants and Children. Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me. E. A. ANCHUTZ, M.D., 131 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

Local Option.

Up to date local option law has been adopted in the following counties, by majorities reported below:

Table with 2 columns: County Name and Number of Votes. Includes Atchison (81), Carroll (440), Crawford (610), Clinton (834), etc.

In the list of counties given below the local option law has been defeated by the following majorities:

Table with 2 columns: County Name and Number of Votes. Includes Andrew (732), Caldwell (539), Cape Girardeau (500), Cooper (702), etc.

Local option elections have been held in seventeen cities and adopted in the following: Appleton, Cameron, Carrollton, Carthage, Kirksville, Macon, Maryville, Neosho, Peirce City, Trenton, Richmond, Joplin, Marshall. In the following cities the law was defeated: Boonville, Brookfield, Fulton, Harrisonville.

LAMONTE.

—D. W. Reesman this week disposed of his Lamonte property to H. C. Nelson. He got for it a tract of 640 acres of land in Texas.

—W. A. Triplett has moved the stock belonging to him and J. H. Kinkead in Cassoday, Kas., to a new building, and is doing in consequence a better business than before. We are glad to hear of Will's success.

—Last Wednesday J. W. Baldwin, of Dresden, traded his farm to J. L. Hall, of Sedalia. He got a store house, implement house and a dwelling in Rockville, and $3,000 worth of merchandise. John will move to Rockville the 1st of March, and engage in business there.

—L. Littlefield is now a citizen of our town. He finished moving down this week. We are glad to welcome him to our city. We hope he will find it as pleasant a place to reside as he found Knobnoster. Lamonte is a live town and we invariably find that those who locate here are well pleased with their home. There is not a town in this part of the state in which so large a portion of the people are moral and religious as Lamonte. We always welcome good people among us.

—Erysipelas and Obstinate Ulcers, Boils, Carbuncles and Running Sores of every kind are cleansed, the poison-germ destroyed and a speedy cure effected by using Dr. Darby's Prophylactic Fluid.

"I have been afflicted with the Erysipelas. Nothing would heal the sore or stop the running. I used Darby's Prophylactic Fluid and found a speedy cure. Have also tried it in several other cases and it proved effectual."—S. P. Greer.

"—Tommy, what do you say to Mr. Tompkins for giving you that apple?"

"Thank you."

"Thank you what, Tommy?"

"Thank you old man."—Epoch.

—There is no one article in the line of medicines that gives so large a return for the money as a good porous strengthening plaster, such as Carter's Smart Weed and Bellefontaine Backache plasters.

An Old Lady Dies of Her Injuries

Kansas City, Oct. 22.—Mrs. S. J. Marks, aged 85 years, died yesterday morning at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Esory, 312 West Thirteenth street. Mrs. Marks was run over by a buggy in which were Thos. Fitzmorris and D. McLeod, on Thirteenth street, near Broadway, Wednesday afternoon. She was crossing the street and did not hear the buggy, which was approaching at a rapid rate, until too late to get out of the way. She was badly bruised and injured internally and this caused her death.

No steps have yet been taken to apprehend either McLeod or Fitzmorris.
