CREEKMORE'S SENTENCE FOR CONTEMPT AFFIRMED

St. Paul Court of Appeals Upholds Punishment of Year and Day in Federal Pen for Joplin Liquor Dealer Convicted at Muskogee.

Muskogee, Okla., Oct. 17.—The sentence in August, 1915, by Judge Ralph E. Campbell, in United States district court, upon William J. Creekmore, a Joplin, Mo., liquor dealer, was affirmed today by the United States circuit court of appeals at St. Paul, according to advices received here tonight. Creekmore was sentenced to one year and one day in the federal penitentiary for contempt of court.

Citations were issued for Creekmore, W. R. Robbins, former sheriff of Muskogee county, and several others, who were charged with having tampered with the jury which was trying a case in which Creekmore was on trial for conspiracy against the federal government.

It was alleged that J. H. Seymour, one of the jurors, received a sum of money soon after the trial and the government contended that this money was paid over in consideration of a vote for acquittal by Seymour Seymour, on the witness stand, admitted receiving the money.

WORK NEARING COMPLETION

Ship Last Car of Stone for Exterior of State Capitol Building

Carthage, Oct. 19.—The last carload of stone for the exterior of the state capitol building at Jefferson City was shipped yesterday by the John Gill & Sons Construction Company, contractors for the erection of the new state edifice. Up to date the shipments of stone to the state capitol total 719 carloads. It is said that another week will see the completion of the stonework on the building, both interior and exterior as far as the demand on the Carthage quarry is concerned.

According to officials of the company, however, they have enough contracts at present to keep the plant operating at full capacity for several months. They are also figuring for the stone contract on several large buildings in this and adjoining states.

When Abraham Lincoln was made president there had been troubles in Mexico and some jingoists were crying for intervention. American property had been destroyed, American lives lost, a member of the American legation had been murdered, but here is what President Lincoln had to say to these jingoists: "For a few years past the condition of Mexico has been so unsettled as to raise the question on both sides of the Atlantic whether the time has not come when some foreign power ought, in the interest of society generally, to intervene—to establish a protectorate or some other form of government in that country and guarantee in continuance. You will not fail to assure the government of Mexico (he was speaking through his secretary of state) that the president neither has, nor can ever have, any sympathy with such designs, in whatever quarter they may arise or whatever character they may take." ## MORE BEAUTY IN THE WORLD

In Town and Country Alike, Flower Gardens Tell of Progress

It is a chance world from other days, a better one. People are more interested in flowers. They take more interest in beautiful surroundings than ever before. They are more thoughtful, more patient, more anxious to live amid pleasant surroundings than they have ever been. Which is suggestive every minute in the day as one travels through the city or out into the country.

Originally only a few old people took an interest in flowers. In fact, it was considered effeminate, and no man would admit that he paid any attention to the blossoms. Few homes made any pretensions to beau-

THE YELLOW DOG WON

Washington, Oct. 18.—Ponderous governmental machinery stood still today while a thirteen year old girl stood before a group of dignified generals and tearfully pleaded for the life of a little yellow dog.

She was Esther Smiley, of Maryland, sister of Private Peter Smiley, a recruit in the United States Marine Corps, and the dog she held in her arms had been Peter's playmate since youth.

"Rover will surely die of grief unless you send him on to my brother," the little girl sobbed.

And wonder of wonders, the dignified generals understood the little girl's plea, and, acting instantly to preclude the embalming of Rover in the red tape of officialdom, gave the

—a place to eat and sleep, that was about all the home stood for. Ornamentation was left to invalids and to faddists, and the world was no busier chopping down trees and clearing the land, and providing the bare necessities of life, there was no time for the esthetic.

All of this is changed. The humblest home now cultivates a few flowers at least. Strong men are not ashamed to tell of their affection for the blossoms, nor of their devotion to the birds. There has been a general tendency for some years toward the ornamental in home construction, and the environment is being beautified everywhere.

Out in the country the farmers pay more attention to their barns and out-houses as well as to their home. One finds beautiful lawns in front of many farm homes, and rough fences are discarded and unsightly out-houses are tabooed. The county folks are acquiring the habit of improving their property just as are the city dwellers, and it all goes to make a better and brighter world. But, above all, it goes to make more thoughtful, a more considerate people. For where one takes the time and spends the money to beautify his home, he is more considerate of others and more appreciative of his fellow-man than he would otherwise be. This beautification and adornment is giving us all a keener sense of the just, and making us all the more anxious to deal justly with our fellows—which should be the real aim of all.—Columbus, (O.) Dispatch.
