NEW REGULATIONS ON QUAPAW LAND LEASES

(From the Miami Record-Herald.)
New regulations covering the leasing of mineral lands of restricted Quapaw Indians were announced Monday by O. K. Chandler, superintendent of the combined Quapaw, and Seneca agencies. The new regulations, which are of vital interest to everyone interested in mining operations in the Tri-State district, were received last week from the commissioner of Indian Affairs at Washington, but several days were required to place them in suitable form for publication. They supersede all previous regulations. The new regulations have been summarized as follows:

Section 26 of the act of congress approved March 2, 1895, is amended so as to extend restrictions on certain lands of Quapaw for a 25-year period. Provision, however, is made that the secretary of the interior can, with or without the application of the owner, remove these restrictions; that all these lands allotted to or inherited by the Quapaw Indians may, when subject to restrictions against alienation, be leased for mining purposes for such periods of time and under such rules, regulations and terms and conditions only as may be prescribed by the secretary of the interior, and such lands, while restricted against alienation, may be leased for mining purposes only.

It is further provided that minerals from such lands may be taxed by the State of Oklahoma the same as unrestricted lands. The secretary of the interior is also directed to cause to be paid from the individual Indian funds held under his supervision, belonging to the Indian owner of the land, the tax so assessed against the royalty interests of the owner in such production as long as it does not become a lien or charge against the land.

Several hundred people packed the Methodist Episcopal church Sunday evening to hear the address of Dr. Henry, pastor of the Church of All Nations, of New York City. Dr. Henry spoke in Springfield Thursday and Friday evenings. His experience of the Church of All Nations is wonderful, and he has a wonderful way of telling of them. Russians, French, Italians, Japs, and in fact people of nearly every nation are members of his church. Lenine and Trotzky, famous Russians, were at one time members of the church. At the present time, Dr. Henry is building a church costing approximately $300,000 to take care of the people of his church. He maintains two fresh air farms up the Hudson river where he takes the poor children of his church for fresh air and outings. Dr. Henry spoke for more than an hour, and the people who missed hearing him, missed a rare treat.

LESSON OF THE GOOD FARMER

There is one essential in all economic life. It is a lesson taught us primarily by the good farmer. The wise producer does not consume or waste or sell all of his products. He keeps his best seed for the next year's planting and if there is any doubt about his needs for the winter he maintains a surplus against misfortune or untoward circumstances.

The trouble or one trouble with the people of the United States during the fat years of the war and immediately succeeding was that they spent all of their earnings, or most of them, in riotous living. As this term comes from the Bible it is apparent that human nature has not changed very much in six thousand years.

It is no exaggeration to say that during the war in any city hundreds of young men spent from $10 to $20 for silk shirts and these particular evidences of extravagance are now rarely seen.

If the entire country had observed as faithfully a nation-wide money-saving program from 1917 to January 1, 1921, as it observed food saving under Mr. Hoover's direction in 1917 and 1918, there would be little or no complaint of hard times and close money.—The Manufacturer.

THE INDUSTRIAL CYCLE

Students of business have realized for many years that prosperity and depression follow each other in certain waves or cycles. When business is good, it can be foreseen that certain conditions are opening that tend to cause reaction, and when business is bad, conditions are working that create prosperity.

Roger W. Babson, a well known statistician, stated in recent tours about the country, that business tends to go through 12 distinct periods from one point to another. During the latter part of a period of prosperity, the tendencies toward extravagance, inefficiency and dishonesty become very strong. They make all kinds of goods cost high. Hence multitudes of people are not able to buy their customary supplies. This leads to shutting down of factories and unemployment and suffering results.

Then during such a period, useful qualities are developed which tend to build up prosperity again. People save their money, they live with less luxury, they work harder, they are more efficient, and they are encouraged or forced to be more honest.

These conditions make merchandise less expensive, and they promote the buying power of the people, so that goods sell more freely. Idle men are put to work, and before long prosperity returns. That in the natural course of things again produces extravagance, inefficiency and dishonesty, and the country again goes through with the same cycle.

All these depressions could be avoided, if the people at large understood these truths better. If when prosperity comes they would still manifest thrift, give their best service, work hard and make an honest return for every dollar they get, business would remain permanently at a high level. Human welfare would make a broad and continuous advance instead of being constantly interrupted by depression periods.

WEAR GRANDDAD'S HAT

The man who does not advertise because his grandfather did not, ought to wear knee breeches and queue.

The man who does not advertise because it costs money, should quit paying rent for the same reason.

The man who does not advertise because he tried it and failed, should throw away his cigar because the light went out.

The man that doesn't advertise because he doesn't know how himself ought to stop eating because he can't cook.

The man who does not advertise because somebody said it did not pay, ought not to believe that the world is round because the ancients said it was flat.

HIRING AND FIRING

It costs $100 to make a change in an office clerk or similar worker, according to the figures of the National Employment board. The losses caused by inexperience and errors of a new employe, and the time it takes to give instruction are equivalent to that expenditure.

People who do poor work should not thereby be encouraged in carelessness, thinking that their employers will put up with their mistakes rather than make a change. The tendency of employers is in the opposite direction. They get so disgusted with poor work that they "fire" employes with little thought that the ones who take their places may be no better, and will require even more coaching. But it pays to show patience with any worker who manifests willingness. Sometimes those who learn the slowest, are the most dependable when their working habits are well established.

Barry county has a young woman who cannot be beaten for a display of presence of mind. She is the book-keeper at the Bank of Exeter, which was recently robbed by bandits. The girl coolly looked over the men who held them up, described their appearance even to the shoes they wore and the tone of voice during the hold-up. On the witness stand she was very positive and self possessed. Modern business girls are far removed from the fainting hysterical girls featured by old time novelists as their heroines.

The weather man should see some crisp winter weather to save the Missouri peach crop. The buds are all ready to swell with the first warm days.

Men with initiative ability are always to the fore in time of trouble. The scout movement is training the boy and girl to do the right thing at the right time.

AMERICA LEADS TO PROSPERITY

Vice President Coolidge Reviews Progress Towards Economic Stability and Mental Poise.

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 16.—America is regaining its mental poise, re-establishing its economic stability and leading the nations in one of the great liberal movements of mankind, Vice President Calvin Coolidge, in an address tonight, told the Philadelphia Forum.

No American, he said, could survey the developments of the last year without a renewed faith in the financial strength and the moral vigor of the nation and a renewed hope for the welfare of the world.

"There have been doubts," the speaker said, "but they are being solved. There have been trials, but they are passing away. The hand of man is turning again to industry, men and nations are coming closer and closer in the harmonious relationship of peace."

Through a series of fortunate circumstances America has been permitted to recover first from the disastrous effects of the war, the speaker said.

"But from our great accomplishment we ought not to turn to discouragement, but to courage. If ever there was a time that time is now when the people of America and of the earth ought to feel with increasing warrant that they are established in the power to do and dare. This process has already begun. No one who knows America could doubt that not for long will she continue to face facts with a lack of courage."
