MUST FIGHT THEIR WAY OUT

Artillery Combats Continue on Western Line—Seventeen Members of Russian Duma Taken Into Custody.

Berlin.—The Russian city of Vilna, at which the armies of Field Marshal von Hindenburg have been driving, and which has been defended stubbornly, until nearly surrounded by hostile forces, has been occupied by the Germans, it was officially announced by the German army headquarters.

The Germans, by a wide sweeping movement to the north of Vilna, have succeeded in almost if not entirely surrounding a portion of the Russian army, which is fighting in the railway triangle between Vilna, Lida and Vileika.

The Russian forces in this district either must fight their way out eastward or retire in a southeasterly direction for the only railway left entirely in their hands is that which runs from Vilna to Lida and thence to Baranovitchi.

The text of the German official statement follows: "Western theater of war—Southeast of Bray, on the Somme a wide spread explosion effected in and behind enemy positions was successful. During the battle, which was successful to us, the French suffered sanguinary losses. A few prisoners were taken.

"Directly to the west of the Argonne enemy division engaged in constructing trenches were dispersed by our artillery with heavy losses to them. Artillery combats continue along a large part of the front."

Stories of monsters having eighted sea serpents and other monsters of the deep reach the officials of the American Museum of Natural History frequently, most of them coming in the form of letters during the summer months, when persons more familiar with business offices or their homes than with the inhabitants of the sea are attracted to the resorts.

The sea of the letters are based on hearsay evidence, and so it was with some surprise that Dr. F. A. Lucas, the director of the museum, read in one of the letters that an actual photograph of the sea serpent whose actions were described was being forwarded under separate cover.

He awaited the arrival of the photograph eagerly. The letter which preceded it said that the sea serpent had made its appearance at the eastern end of Long Island and that it had whipped and churned the water near the spot at which it appeared for nearly an hour.

Occasionally its huge tail could be seen above the water; at other times two or three sections of its writing, dark body could be seen at once. One of the spectators who had fled to the shore from a small boat procured a kodak and snapped the monster as conclusive evidence that sea serpents did exist.

The photograph arrived in the next day's mail, however, and Doctor Lucas found it to be not a sea serpent but what is known as a "thrasher" shark, a species which, it is said, is more afraid of man than man is of it. Its name is derived from the manner in which it thrashes about in the water with its huge tail.
