Consumption Cured.
Baltimore, Md., February 12th, 1881.
Upon the recommendation of a friend, I tried Brown's Iron Bitters as a tonic and restorative for my daughter, whom I was thoroughly convinced was fast wasting away in Consumption. Having lost two daughters by the terrible disease, under the care of eminent physicians, I was loth to believe that anything could arrest the progress of the disease; but to my surprise, before my daughter had taken one bottle of Brown's Iron Bitters, she began to mend, and is now quite restored to her former health. A fifth daughter began to show signs of consumption, and when the physician was consulted he quickly said, "Tonics were required!" And when informed that the older sister was taking Brown's Iron Bitters, responded, "That is a good tonic, take it."
ADORAM PHELPS, of Askey & Phelps.

The Archduke Royal of Austria has earned the right to be ranked with authors by publishing in two volumes his "Four in the Orient," a journey taken last year.
Leis' Dandelion Tonic will not cure Consumption when the disease is thoroughly established, but, by improving the digestion, stimulating the emunctories to healthy action, restoring lost brain and nerve power, thus improving the general health, it will arrest that fell disease in its incipient stage, and when being a source for consumption as anything every compounded.

Adelaide Anne Procter's poems are increasing in popularity, and are being republished extensively in England.

Leis' Chemical Man'g Co., Lawrence, Kan.: I take pleasure in saying to you that I and very many of my friends have used Leis' Dandelion Tonic, and always with good effect. The idea that its sale or use is a violation of the prohibition law of Kansas is exceedingly foolish, as it is in no sense intoxicating, but entirely medicinal. D. SHILOH, Supt. Bismarck Grove, Kansas City, June 14th 1881.

THE WESTERN HOUSEHOLD, published at Jefferson City, by John Meagher, is a Missouri enterprise we would like to see encouraged. It is a monthly magazine, and being the only one of the kind in our State, we ought to try to give it a lift. The publishers are doing their part. They offer it at the very low rate of ten cents for three months (trial subscription) or fifty cents per year. We hope some one at each postoffice to which THE COUNTY PAPER comes will act as agent and get up a dozen or two subscribers. Send 10 cents to John Meagher, Jefferson City, and try it.

THE DOMESTIC MONTHLY for December brings the year to a close with one of the best numbers ever issued. The illustrations are profuse and elegant, and the information fresh, interesting, and valuable not only to those living near large cities, but also to remote readers. From the pages of this Magazine ladies may obtain all the assistance necessary to enable them to dress themselves and children in the most refined and fashionable styles, and literally from head to foot. Bonnets, cloaks, fur-trimmed suits, fur wraps, and muffs, laces, linens, shoes and stockings, ornaments and novel modes of dressing the hair are both illustrated and described in the current number, and as a special and seasonable adjunct there is a chapter concerning styles of dress to be worn this winter to the opera, theatre, and concert. The new fashion of dressing little boys in half-dress, half-trouser modes, will give some fresh idea to mothers often perplexed in choosing designs. Particular attention has been paid to the entire department for children in the December issue of the MONTHLY, and the same may be said of the article on fancy work which, under the head of Domestic Art, directs the reader's attention to preparations for the holidays.

The literary department contains the conclusion of the story begun in November; a charming description of an English wedding; Mrs. Beecher's "Household," and notices of Holiday books.

THE DOMESTIC MONTHLY is published by Blake & Company, corner Broadway and Fourteenth Street, New York, at $1.50 per year. Pattern premium to every subscriber.

What $1.00 Will Do.
The HOME COMPANION PAPER CO., of Cleveland, Ohio, will give their eight-page illustrated semi-monthly paper twenty-four beautiful pictures 11x15 inches in size, and $6.00 worth of books for only One Dollar. Sample paper and a fine picture of President Garfield and family sent free to all who write for them.

PROSPECTUS OF 1882. The Globe-Democrat. 1882.
In its prospectus for 1881, the Globe-Democrat announced with pride and satisfaction the election of Gen. Garfield and the belief that his administration would be so wisely counseled and so well conducted that it would give a new lease of power to the party under which the nation had grown great, strong and prosperous. The life hand of an assassin has since stricken down the good and gifted man who, while we wrote a year ago, stood on the threshold of the Presidential office, in the prime and vigor of manhood, with a future full of honorable promise to himself and his country. The high trust which the people had reposed in him was dropped by the pained hand of death when but a small part of the great work upon which he had entered had been accomplished. But to quote his own memorable words when the saddest of all American tragedies was enacted, nearly seventeen years ago, "God reigns, and the Government at Washington still lives."
The mantle which was voted to James A. Garfield by the people falls upon Chester A. Arthur under the Constitution of the United States, and there is every reason to believe that he will worthily wear it. He was almost the unanimous choice of the Chicago Convention for Vice President, and his name and efforts contributed perhaps more than anything else to the success of the Republican ticket in the State of New York. He is a man of broad views, fully informed on all public questions, and he enters upon the duties of his office determined to discharge them honestly and conscientiously. The Globe-Democrat pledges him its cordial support in every good word and work for the country and for the Republican party. We hope and believe that under his prudent and skillful leadership the evil spirit of faction will disappear from the ranks of the party, and that unity and harmony will prevail in all its councils. This end once secured there can be no doubt of future success. A large majority of the people of this country are Republicans in sentiment and sympathy, and nothing but internal discord can imperil our triumph at the polls while the choice is between Republicanism and Democracy.
The Globe-Democrat has a new declaration of principles to announce. It can fairly ask judgment as to the future from the record of the past. It stands firmly by the platform of the party on all national questions; believes in the equal rights of all men in law and politics; a sound currency with an honest silver dollar for part of it; a well-regulated tariff, giving protection without encouraging monopoly, and a system of popular education so liberal that ignorance and illiteracy shall be inaccessible. These are the major questions upon which the two great parties are now divided—the Democrats oppose and the Republicans affirm as to each of the propositions we have named.
We fully appreciate the magnitude of national issues, the Globe-Democrat will not be unmindful of the importance of questions which affect the West, and especially the State of Missouri. Among these is immigration. We shall do all we possibly can to encourage European seeking a home on this side of the Atlantic to investigate the claims of this great State—its fine climate, its fertile soil, and its great mineral resources. Everything is good here except political domination. Bourbon Democracy is the foe of our industry in Missouri, as it has always been in Kentucky and in other States. A Republican victory in the State would do more to encourage the best class of immigrants to come within our borders than can be accomplished in any other way, or through any other agency. The leaven is working, and we have faith in its success within a few years. In the meantime we shall not forget that while Republicanism is a help to immigration, Bourbonism is also a help to Republicanism. The thrifty farmers of the Eastern States who move West in pursuit of more land to meet the necessities of a growing family are not Bourbon Democrats; and the industrious foreigners who come here for homes and fields will soon learn to choose rightly between the two parties.
As a newspaper the GLOBE-DEMOCRAT will hold the pre-eminence which has already gained. It will present in all its editions a full and faithful record of current events. Its features are unrivalled. No other newspaper East or West has a larger corps of active and intelligent correspondents in all sections of the country and the world. We spare neither energy nor expense in the collection of news, as our columns from day to day abundantly show. Our weekly issue is made up from the most valuable of the contents of seven daily issues, carefully selected and edited with a view to completeness and timeliness. It has, as special features, the latest and best market reports from all the business centers of the world; the choicest of current literature for the family and the student; and a well-edited Agricultural Department of great value to the farmer.
