THE TEST.

It Was Very Deliberate and Appeared to be Satisfactory.

He watched her arranging the violets in the big Kakiri bowl. She looked so very pretty, and yet she must be told.
Lighting a cigarette, he braced himself for the telling. As he tossed the match in the direction of the blazing fire, she came toward him, holding in her hand a few of the purple flowers, says Town Topics.

"For you," she said, simply, and pressed close to his side as she put them in his buttonhole.
After that she bent and kissed him, slowly and deliberately.

He sat transfixed. In all their platonic her lips had never before touched his.

Ere he could recover himself she kissed him again.

Not a word nor a caress accompanied either kiss. They stood out against a background of utter incomprehensibility.

Then she walked over by the fire.
He looked anxiously after her.

She faced about, and he saw that her lips were moving slightly, while her eyes had a far-off gaze.

At last she spoke.
"You can marry her!"

There was a pause—she seemed to be indulging in further meditation—and then—

"Yes, you can marry her. I don't care at all. You see, I kissed you on purpose. I did it twice to make sure, and I didn't feel even the faintest quiver either time. I was very careful and tasted each kiss thoroughly, and I know now that—that you can marry her."

He rose, his form and his rage towering together. What man could be calm on learning that his lips possess no power to thrill?

"Good-bye," he said, putting out his hand.

"Good-bye," she answered, smiling.
He went out, and the door closed behind him.

She stood where he left her, banding her clasped fingers across her eyes.
The sunlight streamed in between the window arches and shot a ray of glory over the violets, the woman and the woman's yellow hair. It caused the diamonds on her hand to sparkle brilliantly, and something on her cheek shone, too.

"Dear Heaven!" she murmured softly, "what must it be to have him do the kissing!"

The Hobo Limited

One of the newest and best equipped cities in the United States is Spokane, now boasting fifty thousand inhabitants. Twenty years ago it began its existence, and one of its founders, Colonel J. Kennedy Stout, who drafted its charter and served as its first city attorney, is still a young man, and is now private secretary to United States Senator George Turner, from the state of Washington.

"Few people realize," said Colonel Stout, "what strides the West has made. It is not many years since the only railroad in our state was a rattle-scattered little line with wooden rails, running from Walla Walla to Wallula, a distance of thirty miles. Dr. Later an eccentric millionaire, built it. He advertised both fast and slow freight schedules. There was but one train of cars in the entire system. 'Fast freight' was loaded on the front cars, and 'slow freight' on the rear ones.

"Boiled shirts had not yet invaded the land to any extent, and this primitive railway magnate was particularly indifferent as to dress. A jumper, overalls, brogans and an old slouch hat constituted his costume. Most of his cars were flat cars. The road did a big business, and its earnings together with the president's investments in real estate and mines, increased his millions.

"One day while, roughly dressed as usual, he was riding on one of his flat cars and munching a sandwich, he attracted the attention of a hobo who, crouched behind some sacks of wheat, was stealing a ride.

"Sit down, sit down!" shouted the tramp to the millionaire railway president. "Sit down, or the conductor'll see you and put us both off!"

Met Him Socially.

Marshall Field, the Chicago dry goods merchant, hurried into the barber's chair of the United express, on which he was a passenger. The barber, a negro, was aware of the identity of his distinguished patron. So he attended to the shave the merchant prince desired with all the skill and care at his command. He was rewarded with a substantial fee, and hastened to acquaint the other employees on the train with the fact.

"That Mist' Field is a mighty fine gemman," he announced, "just as nice a man as you'd want to meet. I've often been in his store in Chicago, you know, but, of course, I never met him socially befo'."

She—Oh, Harry, it is awful. Papa has forbidden you the house.

He—That's all right. It isn't the house I am after; it's you, darling.

THE COUNTY'S WARDS.

They Are Always With Us But In Small Numbers.

As is the custom, Superintendent Carson of the county infirmary, filed his annual report at the recent meeting of our county court, and on Wednesday of last week, the court made a visit to the farm and made their annual inventory. In every respect our county is exceedingly fortunate in having Mr. Carson in charge of this place. The inmates are not only humanely cared for, but the institution is so conducted that the cost of maintaining our county's wards has been brought down to the very minimum. Wholesome food in abundance and comfortable clothing is furnished them at a cost of less than $100 per capita.

Upon a beautiful hill about one mile from our city, stands a large structure substantially built of brick and well kept. Housed in this building with sanitation as nearly perfect as can be; clean beds, glistening floors, there are now but ten inmates, nine males and one female; these are:

Elizabeth Kerr, Pennsylvania.....91
James Ryan, Ireland.....87 Thomas Sweeney, Ireland.....85 Joseph Cox, Virginia.....67 Sanford Noland, Missouri.....61 Thomas Curtis, Indiana.....67
Jacob Walls, Ohio.....87
E. Sauer, Germany.....57
John Woods, Canada.....65 Wm. Erickson, Missouri.....28

Three deaths occurred during the past year: Oliver Ward died January 29, age 33; Mrs. Susan Blackburn, November 6, age 73, and Calvin Blair died October 29, age 75.

All the inmates seem contented. They spend their days setting in the large reception room reading and gossiping.
Mrs. Kerr, the only woman inmate, although passed her 91st mile stone is quite active and assists as best she can about the household, while the men assist about the farm when the weather and their physical condition permits.
The family is a comparatively peaceable one and but little trouble is experienced in managing them. Both Mr. and Mrs.
Carson, his son and daughter and all connected with the institution do their utmost to make each and every inmate "feel at home." No cruelty is practiced or tolerated. The Holt county infirmary is one of the best in our state. The terror which is often inspired by the mere mention of "poor farm" is lacking when the name of county farm is mentioned.

Up to within a few month's ago the farm consisted of 145 acres, but the court, as well as Superintendent Carson believed that with the advancing increase of lands it would be good business judgment to increase the acreage, and acting upon this, they purchased the 80 acres adjoining the farm on the east, from F. S. Noland, and the farm now consists of 225 acres. Of the original 145 acres but little over 80 acres was fit for cultivation on account of its being timber.

During the past year Mr. Carson put 38 acres in corn, 13 in wheat, 8 in oats and 22 in grass, making 81 acres in cultivation. From this he harvested 1,000 bushels of corn, 236 bushels of wheat, 128 bushels of oats and a large tonnage of timothy and clover hay.
