

Take Things As They Come

When you buy soda biscuit in a paper bag, take them as they come; stale—soggy—spoiled.

Don't blame the baker.
Don't blame the grocer.
Don't blame anyone but yourself.

When you buy Uneda Biscuit look for the In-er-seal—the famous red and white trade-mark design that identifies the package which keeps them fresh—clean—good.

Credit the baker for baking them.
Credit the grocer for keeping them.
Credit yourself for buying them.

Origin of Weeping Willows.

"Did you know that all the weeping willows in this country are descended from a twig planted by the stepson of George Washington, at his place, at Abingdon, a few miles from Mount Vernon?" asked a tree lover, who has just returned from these interesting estates. "It was this way: Young Custis, as a member of Washington's military family, sometimes carried messages, under a flag, between the belligerent commanders. In this service he became acquainted with a young British officer who, like others, had come over with an impression that the 'rebellion' would be speedily crushed out, and that he would then settle on the confiscated lands of the rebels. He had even brought a twig from the weeping willow near Pope's villa, at Twickenham, carefully wrapped in oiled silk. As his visions of a castle in America faded away he gave a twig to John Parke Custis, who, on his return to Abingdon in the spring, planted it near his house. It grew and flourished. Just how it multiplied may be noted from one end of the country to the other."—Philadelphia Record.

Spider-Webs and Acoustics.

There is hope for the spider. Hitherto he has been evilly regarded as a predatory parasite, which toils not though he spins; his toils and his castles in the air have been rudely breached by the long broom of the housemaid. But he may yet come into his own, for Dr. Javal suggests that this artist among insect craftsmen hangs our ceilings may have acoustic virtues. Speaking recently at the opening sitting of the Paris Academy of Medicine in its new hall (which is acoustically deficient), he told a story of a public hall in England which was noted for its acoustic properties until in an unhappy moment the ceiling was given a spring cleaning and a clean sweep made of all the spiders' webs and, with them, of the hall's good name. The doctor does not suggest installations of spiders' webs, but thinks it might be a good thing to hang cotton threads over the auditorium. Tapestries hung behind all the openings on to the rostrum of his hall were found greatly to enhance the acoustic effect.—Chicago Daily News.

The First Fantomime.

Most pantomime characters were originally borrowed from the Italians. The first real English pantomime was produced at a theater in Lincoln's Inn Fields in 1720. It was called "Harlequin Executed," and its subtitle was "A New Italian Comic Scene Between a Scaramouche, a Harlequin, a Country Farmer, His Wife and Others." The performance was very successful. About the middle of the eighteenth century the character of pantomime performances was completely altered, chiefly because of the genius of the famous Grimaldi, who made the clown the first figure in the pantomime. Grimaldi first appeared at Sadler's Wells theater, where he played the part of a monkey. He was actively engaged on the stage for 49 years, and at the close of his career he took a benefit at Drury Lane theater, which realized nearly $3,000. He also received $500 from the Drury Lane fund. This was in June, 1828. He died in 1837, and was buried in the churchyard of St. James' chapel, Pentonville Hill.—Golden Penny.

Natural Query.

"Say!" the man who had never before attended a concert remarked as the cornet soloist began his number, "who's the feller wavin' the little stick?"

"Sh!" replied his neighbor, "that's the conductor of music."

"Oh! and is the feller with the horn the motorman?"—Philadelphia Press.

Municipalities in Business.

A British parliamentary paper just issued shows that 299 of the 317 municipalities in England, not including London, carry on business enterprises of some sort. The total capital invested is over $1,000,000,000, and the net profit, after paying all working expenses, interest charges and so on, amounts to $1,891,405.—N. Y. Sun.

Nothing of the Sort.

"I begin to suspect," said Mrs. Oldcastle, "that your husband is a good deal of an altruist."

"Oh, no," her hostess replied, "Josiah ain't one of them at all. He thinks things just happen according to the way they afe at the time."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Prompt Decision.

"Aw—what is your opinion, Miss Gwace, of the theory that the shape of the head determines the quality of the brain? Tak' my head, for example."

"I should say there is nothing in it."—Kansas City Journal.

The First "Majesty."

Paradoxical But Not Strange.

Weak-minded people sometimes are the most headstrong.—Chicago Daily News.

One of the Deaf Men.

Deafness is largely a matter of habit. I know men who cannot hear you two feet away though you bawl at them, yet at the distance of a block they will grasp your faintest whisper. Some are deaf for convenience, some for fraud, some for hypocrisy. Beware of the deaf man. One of the noted deaf men was old Matt Griffin, long ago an assemblyman from Griffin's Corners, Delaware county, N. Y. By courtesy deaf members receive front seats in the assembly, while others usually draw lots. When old Matt was excused from drawing a fellow member hotly protested. "But the old man is as deaf as a post," said the house leader. "Deaf!" exclaimed the protestant. "Matt Griffin deaf! Why, bless your honest soul, he could hear a ten-cent shiplaster rattle in a bag of feathers!"—N. Y. Press.

Wireless Telegraphy in Africa.

As frequently happens with new inventions, countries the development of which has but recently begun may be among the first to benefit by the Marconi system of telegraphy. It is reported that a wireless installation is to be employed to help forward the scheme of through telegraphic communication between the Cape of Good Hope and Cairo. The country north of Lake Tanganyika offers formidable obstacles to the running of a telegraph line, and it is hoped that these difficulties may be overcome by the wireless system.—Youth's Companion.

An Odd Community.

A quaint custom has just been observed by the German emperor and his subjects, the Hallores, a curious people who own and work certain rich salt mines near Halle, in Saxony. Every new year the emperor receives a visit of ceremony from representatives of this little community, who appear before him in their national gala attire—long black coats, black knee breeches, white stockings and buckled shoes.—Chicago Tribune.

Too Particular.

Diner—What has become of that man who waited upon me the last time I was here?

Proprietor—Had to discharge him; he was too particular.

"Too particular? Isn't that a queer thing to bounce a man for?"

"Not so queer. A customer asked for a dozen in the shell, and he was so careful as to ask: 'Oysters or eggs?' He meant well, but no customer will stand for such a question as that."—Boston Transcript.

Entirely Useless.

The boy was greatly troubled. "Is it true, father," he asked, "that they have whipping posts in some states?"

The father assured him that it was. "And they whip grown people?" asked the boy.

"When they deserve it," said the father.

"Well," asserted the boy, with conviction, "if that's the case, I don't see what's the use of growing up."—Brooklyn Eagle.

Hearing of Insects.

Many insects unable to produce sounds which we can distinguish possess, nevertheless, sound-producing apparatus, and elaborate organs of hearing analogous to those belonging to other and in general larger species, quite capable of making themselves heard. It is certain that a number of species of animals hear sounds that we cannot hear.—Nature.

An Egotistical View.

She (after the stolen kiss)—How dare you!

He—Now don't get angry. You encouraged me by puckering your lips.

"I was going to whistle."

"For help?"

"N-no; for luck."

"Well, what better luck could you ask?"—Chicago Daily News.

The Wherefore.

"Aw—why is it, Miss Keene, that women do not—aw—have any sense of humor?"

"Probably for the same reason, Mr. Sharpless, that some men do not have any sense of any kind."—Kansas City Journal.

Water in the Earth.

The amount of water within the crust of the earth is enormous, amounting to 565,000,000,000 cubic yards. This vast accumulation, if placed upon the earth, would cover its entire surface to a uniform depth of from 3,000 to 3,500 feet.—Science.

American Snail is Tough.

The native American snail is not liked by the epicurean palate, as it remains tough and leathery in spite of protracted boiling, while the imported variety is said to require very slight cooking.—N. Y. Times.

Evasion.

Mother—Tommy, what's your little brother crying that way for?

Tommy (who has taken the little fellow's cake)—I guess that's the only way he knows how to cry, ma.—Philadelphia Press.

Just to Oblige.

"If you will only give my client time, your honor," pleaded the young lawyer, "I am sure he will reform."

"I'll go you," replied the judge. "I'll give him six months as a starter."—Chicago Daily News.
