The Silent Reaper.

Another year has passed away to take its place with the years of the eternity of the past. On the morning of a new year it is well to reflect upon the lessons it has taught us, the most important among which should be the transient nature of all that belongs to this finite world.

In the midst of life we are surrounded with death.

I ask you to reflect upon the passing from mortality to immortality of one whose earlier years and last year were lived in this county, of one whose principles of living were devoid of all shame and intrigue, who believed in that marvelous tenet of Christ—"Whatever ye would that others should do unto you, do ye even so unto them," believing it to be the fundamental principle of that which should be the Christianizing work of the world.

There are not many who have lived in Grant county, Indiana, the past forty or fifty years who have not felt for their own good the impress of the calm, uplifting mind, and the discipline of the pure and stainless character of that strong and able woman, known all over the county, when she lived here, as a resourceful and successful teacher, Rebecca S. Oren Hunnicutt, who passed into the better world on the morning of August 29, 1904, at her home in Lawrence, Kas.

"Her suffering ended with the day Yet lived she at its close And breathed the long, long night away In a state like repose. But when the Sun in all his state Illumed the eastern skies She passed through Glory's morning gate And walked in Paradise.

Thus passed in quiet and peacefulness from this earthly vale of tears and suffering a life whose noble character and whose high ideals and helpfulness had left its impress on many of those who were the youth of the county more than a generation ago.

Rebecca S. Oren was born in Greene county, Ohio, February 21, 1839. When she was 3 years old her parents, those forerunners, Jesse and Elizabeth Evans Oren, came to Grant county, Ohio, arriving November 12, 1841. The years of her girlhood and early womanhood were spent on her father's farm, now owned by her brother, Elisha J. Oren.

Her father was champion of the right even when the right, as it seemed to him, was at variance with accepted ideas. This characteristic was inherited by his daughter, and rocked in the cradle of spiritual and intellectual freedom, she claimed for herself and for all the right to form an opinion independent of the opinion of others.

She was a strong, cheerful, and happy young woman, yet from her earliest years felt the responsibilities of life, and was filled with the ambition to do well her part in life. And it was never said of her that she failed.

The first school she attended regularly was taught in the Atkinson school house by Mr. Howell Thompson in the winter of 1847. She was a good student and made rapid progress. She continued to attend school until she was prepared to teach—spinning wool and flax during the summer to earn money with which to buy books for school in the winter and to help pay other expenses. The first school she taught was a subscription school at Liberty school house in 1854 and was followed by her first licensed school at the same place.

For a time she was one of the students at Professor Spurbek's Academy in Marion Reminiscences of the days of the academy have appeared in the Marion papers from time to time.

Miss Oren continued her teaching at Liberty, Mill's, Sugar Grove, Monroe and other schools until her marriage to Mr. D. B. Hunnicutt, of Wilmington, O., August 30, 1868. Mr. Hunnicutt survives. After her marriage she was a student of Antioch College, the institution founded by Horace Mann. In 1870 she received the degree of Doctor of Medicine from the H. Geo-Therapeutic College, Florence Heights, N. J., of which Dr. Trull was president. When she and her husband moved to the West, she resumed her teaching for a time, teaching in Southern Missouri and in Northwestern Missouri, but taught no more after moving to Kansas.

Mrs. Hunnicutt was always interested in reform movements and was particularly interested in all that tended to better the condition of woman before the law and in business. She was therefore active in the Woman Suffrage cause and in the W. C. T. U. movement until business cares engrossed her attention. She was an able and forceful speaker and was an honored and respected officer whenever she was elected by her associates, which was often the case. Family duties, which she considered her first duties, prevented her practice of her profession.

Three children were born to Mrs. Hunnicutt, two of whom, sons, died in infancy. An only daughter to whom she gave that for which she had longed, a classical education, mourns her loss. To this daughter she was friend, sister, companion, mother. She grieves for the companionship she has lost and longs to be united to her loved one. Only one, who has known the sweet companionship that mother and daughter can enjoy, can appreciate the loss this daughter has sustained.

"Farewell, beloved! To mortal sight Thy vermeil cheek no more may bloom, No more thy smiles inspire delight, For thou art garnered in the tomb.

Rich harvest for that ruthless power Which hath bound me to bear his will. Yet, as in hope's unclouded hour Throned in my heart I see her still.

Let death between us be as nought A dried and vanished stream Your joy be the reality, Our suffering life the dream.

Jesus, Thou Prince of Life Thy chosen cannot die Like Thee, they conquer in the strife To reign with Thee on high."

(Many of our citizens will regret to learn of Mrs. Hunnicutt's death. In 1876-7, she was a member of the Oregon public school faculty, and associated with her were Prof. O. C. Hill, who was the principal, and Miss Alice Heath, now Mrs. Proctor; Mrs. E. L. Kirkpatrick, Miss Fannie Soper, now Mrs. T. C. Dungan, and Mrs. Lucy Kaucher, all of whom are now dead excepting Mrs. Proctor and Mrs. Dungan.)—Eds.

The Companion Informs and Entertains.

The Youth's Companion uses entertainment as a means rather than an end, conveying always in its fiction and its articles some convincing truth or some contribution to the useful knowledge of its readers.

The 225 men and women enlisted to write for The Companion represent an infinite variety of talents and callings. Through The Companion they address not only the young and impressionable, but the fathers and mothers of the nation. The entire family claim a share in the good things which fill The Companion's pages.

Full illustrated Announcement, describing the principal features of The Companion for 1905, will be sent to any address free.

The new subscriber will receive The Companion "Carnations" Calendar for 1905, lithographed in twelve colors and gold.

Notice of Final Settlement.

Notice is hereby given, that the undersigned executor of the estate of Sarah Porter, deceased, will make final settlement of his accounts with said estate as such executor at the next term of the Probate Court of Holt County, Missouri, to be held in Oregon, in said county, on the 13th day of February, A. D. 1905. WILLIAM E. STUBBS, Executor.

A Practical, Helpful Farm Paper.

To the Editor of the Tribune Farmer. Sir: Again I greatly appreciate the fact that I can come to you for advice. I would wish that all the farmers fully estimated the value of The New-York Tribune Farmer. It appears to me a choice periodical of its kind, rich in all its department, but especially so in all that pertains to veterinary science. I have been a subscriber and reader of quite a long list of agricultural papers, but to me The New York Tribune Farmer brings more real, practical, helpful assistance than any I have ever read. There may be others as good, or better, papers for the farmer, but I have failed to discover them as yet. Yours very truly, CHARLES S. HODMAN, Gouverneur, N. Y., Nov. 28, 1904.

A Year Book and Guide.

You frequently hear mention of dead languages. Well, some facts are even dead, but these are not the kind that The Tribune Almanac deals in. By way of verifying that, just take a cursory glance over the issue for 1905, which is now on sale. It is not an Almanac in the dictionary sense of the word, but is really a ready reference and guide book, containing everything that such a compilation ought to have. And the material has been garnered and sifted and tested with the utmost care so as to secure absolute accuracy, or at least get as near to it as honest, painstaking endeavor will bring one.

Herein will be found a perfect gold mine of information on topics of interest, not only to every American, but likewise to all who care to know about us, our laws, population, officials, and so forth. (And, by the way, if you have any friends in Europe, just send them a copy and see if they don't appreciate it.)

There isn't anything missing in the way of records which the average man will want to know about. It doesn't matter what the subject—pension, legislation, sporting statistics, facts about universities, colleges, patriotic societies, population, public officials, to say nothing of a condensed guide of New-York City, a map of the underground railroad system, showing the location of stations, and a table telling railroad distances, fares, etc.

In fact, it is really not an exaggeration to say of a hundred and one things a sane person wants to know, at least 99 will be found in The Tribune Almanac. THE SENTINEL for one year and Tribune Almanac for only $1.50
