—Bruce Walker, a brother of our fellow citizen, M. D. Walker, and who resides in Atchison county, reached his 80th birthday on August 31, and it was the occasion of the coming together of a number of his friends at his home, and in the form of a complete surprise to himself and wife. He and wife are enjoying most excellent health, and we trust his days may yet be many.

—Jim Ross, who lives northwest of Bigelow, drove to the city last Thursday to do some trading, and when this was finished he promptly started home. A tire came off from his wagon wheel near the electric power plant, but Jim was not absorbed in figuring on how he would blow in the money from his big corn crop that he didn't miss the tire until he was in shooting distance of his domicile. To his credit we can add that Jim never wets his whistle with "red eye," and his friends are unable to account for his riding seven miles over hard roads with a tire off without missing it.—Jeffersonian.

—David Don Ely, son of David Ely and wife, was born in the Union neighborhood, a few miles north of Oregon, December 1, 1900, and died at the family home near Okmulgee, Ind. Ter., September 2, 1905, of congestion of the brain. Burial services were held at the home, September 4, at 10 o'clock a. m., by Rev. Van Voorhis, and the body laid to rest in the Okmulgee cemetery. Don was an exceptionally intelligent, attractive child,—the pet of the household, his cute ways and keen wit being a source of constant pride to all. His death came as a shock to all. He was ill so short a time, being taken ill on Thursday and died the following Saturday. He leaves father, mother, three brothers and three sisters to mourn his loss, and hosts of friends who extend to the family their sympathy in their bereavement and loneliness.

—Jefferson Walker, veteran of the civil war, and who served as a member of the 14th Kansas cavalry, died at his home in Forest City, Tuesday of last week, September 5, 1905, at the age of 65 years. He had been a resident of our county for nearly fifty years. He owned a nice farm near Forest City, but of late had rented this, and became a citizen of Forest City. He was born in Lee county, Virginia, December 10, 1840, and in 1868 he married Miss Catherine Wallace, who died February 16, 1889, since which time he has lived a widower, his daughter taking charge of his home. Three daughters and one son survive, all of whom were at his bedside at the time of his death. He had been an earnest member of the Christian church for a number of years. Funeral services were conducted on the 6th inst. by Elder W. H. Hardman, and the remains laid to rest in the Forest City cemetery.

Circuit Court.
Judge Ellison stayed with his job with a faithfulness and loyalty that is certainly to be commended by all our people. Never has the docket been so thoroughly cleaned up as has been done at the term just ended. Every case that was possible to dispose of was done so, and when the January term comes around, unless there should be a large number of new cases filed for that term, the January docket will be an exceedingly light one.

As stated in our last issue, the grand jury finished its labors on Thursday, having returned twenty-three true bills, and a number of our people are now aware as to who was caught in the law's drag net, as the clerk issued the capias on Friday.

A test case was made of one of the suits brought by the county collector, for collection of taxes due on account of the Big Tarkio Drainage District, No. 2, which had been levied by the board of supervisors. Most of the taxes had been paid, but the defendants in these cases attempted to show that the district had not been properly organized; that the taxes had not been properly levied and that the drainage was not being done. The attorneys for the district were Messrs. Murphy and Alkire; for the defendants, Messrs. T. C. Dungan, Stokes and Williams. After a long hearing, Judge Elison found for the plaintiff. Notice of appeal was at once filed.

Rebecca Strickland vs. Cora F. Comer. This was a suit in equity. The plaintiff was formerly Mrs. Henry Comer, and while Mrs. Comer, her father advanced her money with which she invested in lands near Craig. After her husband's death she married Strickland, and she brought this suit to have enforced an equitable lien against the land in her favor to cover the amount she had invested in the land. The court gave a fee simple in the land to the children; to Mrs. Strickland a lien on the land for $2,300.

In the case of the Fischer Bros. vs. W. B. Hinde, the plea in abatement was sustained, and on motion being filed, the court named Sheriff Williams as receiver, who has taken charge of the stock of the Citizen's Drug company.

In the case of the Nodaway Drainage District, No. 1, the court overruled the motion for a new trial, and no notice of appeal having been filed, a certificate of incorporation was granted.

George W. Quick vs. M. D. Walker, administrator. This is a case that has been on our docket for years in some form or another, and it brings up memories for many, many years back in the history of Holt county. Daniel Hahn came to Holt county in the early '50's and settled on the old Hahn homestead some two miles south of Oregon. He had been married before coming to Holt county and had several children by his first marriage. He had trouble with his second wife, and at one time, in about the middle '50's, came to Oregon and she sued for divorce. Mr. Hahn got friends to intercede with her for him, and by deeding to her one-half of all his lands, which at that time consisted of several hundred acres, induced her to dismiss her divorce suit and return to his home as his wife. They lived together until 1867, when she died, leaving several children. Hahn soon married again, and holding possession of his deceased wife's one-half of the lands "by the courtesy," as the law calls it, and the other half in his own right, he lived along in this way until 1897, when he died, leaving another lot of children by this third marriage. An effort was made several years ago to set aside the deed to his second wife, made in the '50's, and the effort failed, and the matter of this transfer to his wife has been before the courts here in one form or another a great many times within the last fifteen years, and once to the supreme court and back, and now as stated, it looms up again on appeal from the probate court. This time it is in this shape: During the years after Hahn's second wife died, he sold a part of the lands and made a warranty deed to them. Some of the same, by the mesne conveyances, reached Judge George Quick, and the Judge still held it when Hahn died. Hahn's second wife's children sued for the one-half that their father had deeded to their mother, and won. Then Hahn's estate never having been administered, Quick went back and sued on Hahn's warranty, the suit now pending, M. D. Walker, public administrator, having been named as administrator. In the meantime Hahn's other lands had been partitioned and these children of his second wife, or most of them, combined in some way and bought this in also. The court on Friday last gave Quick judgment for $333.45 with interest at 6 per cent. Both parties take appeal, an unusual case in this particular.

Court adjourned on Saturday last to meet the fourth Monday in October, 23d, and the jury was excused until that time. At this date Judge Alexander will preside, to hear the case of the State vs. Lionel Wyman, he having been granted a venue.
