Death of Henry Roselius.

Another of the sturdy pioneers of Holt county has answered the great summons and with aching hearts Henry Roselius was laid away by loving hands in the eternal rest and sleep that sooner or later must come to us all. We are told that every time the pendulum swings from left to right the black angel of death points the way with blazing sword for some poor mortal whose earthly days have come to an end. His life was a struggle from beginning to end. He fought to rise in the world and gain his ambition. There was strength in his character and iron in his will, but in his heart there was love and kindness for every living thing.

Uncle Henry Roselius came to this county in 1841, and we believe he has lived on the same farm continuously since that time. When he came here with his parents from his native land, he was but 30 months old, and there are but few indeed now living who can say they have lived in Holt county continuously for 70 years.

Henry Roselius was born in the village of Mitze, Province of Hanover, Germany, October 1, 1838, died at his home near Corning, June 5, 1911, and was therefore in his 73d year. He was the youngest of a family of three children, and is the last one of the family to answer the final summons, his father dying May 29, 1893, and his mother October 16, 1894.

His father, J. H. Roselius, and family left Germany in the fall of 1840 and on landing in New York, and thence to New Orleans, thence up the Mississippi to St. Louis, and the Missouri to Weston. They obtained a wagon and team and drove through Buchanan, Andrew and Holt counties, till they reached a point in the northwest corner of Holt, where there were no other settlers, and there the family halted and prepared to make a home in the wilderness—the spring of 1844, and here they lived alone until the fall of 1844, when the Dankers and Peters came to keep them company.

70 of his 72 years were passed in Lincoln township, and attended the first school ever taught in that township, which was in the control of a man named Keezer, having been employed to teach by the elder Roselius, Henry Dankers and Andrew Buck. The greater part of his education he obtained by his own efforts. Up to the death of his father, in 1898, he farmed for his father, and on his death he began for himself, and was more than ordinarily successful.

He in connection with the elder Hogrefe, engaged in the mercantile business in 1876, which they continued for several years, enjoying a large and profitable trade.

In the early 70's considerable shipments were made of salt pork and shelled corn, and in April, 1873, Mr. Roselius and others made their last shipments on the steamer Joe Kinney from then Hemme's landing. Henry Dankers and F. W. Walter were also large shippers at the time. The inroads of the river finally destroyed Hemme's, and Corning came into existence.

He was married May 31, 1861, to Miss Mary Schmutzer, of Lincoln township, and therefore had been permitted by the hand of Providence to pass his 50th wedding anniversary, only a week before his death. The wife and four children survive—Edmund, John and Mrs. W. C. Pierson, all of Lincoln township, Henry, of St. Louis, and several grandchildren. He was originally a Republican, voting for Lincoln in 1864, but of later years he has commonly acted with the Democratic party, occupying, however, an independent and conservative position. He has been a man of great industry and energy. When they came to the county they were without money, and began life in the wilderness with industry and economy as the only means of bettering their condition. He died one of the substantial men of Holt county, greatly beloved and esteemed by all who knew him—a man who lived to the "Golden Rule" all his life.

For years he had been identified with the Evangelical Lutheran church of Corning, from which the funeral services were held Wednesday of this week, June 7, the interment being in the Mt. Hope cemetery.

Sincerity Clothes

WHY should not the idea of a 'square deal' apply to every-day dealings as it is applied to the larger affairs of the nation?

Why should the retailer hesitate to state the constituency of the article he is selling?

In most civilized countries, articles of pure gold or silver are so stamped, thus insuring the purchaser against fraud.

Why then shouldn't a garment made of cloth containing cotton be marked so that the purchaser knows what he is buying?

The Krookham firm has been advocating the enactment of a Pure Fabric Law.

They make nothing but absolutely all-wool clothing, because they know clothes containing cotton will not give satisfaction.

It is for this reason that we sell Krookham Clothes, as we know that any garment worn by any of our customers will give absolutely satisfactory wear.

—For three hours Monday afternoon the quicksilver in the bulb at Uncle Sam's observatory here sizzled at the 97 point. Such a run of extremely hot weather is rather unusual for Oregon so early in June. By midnight a change for the better came, and by Tuesday morning a drop of 29 degrees occurred.

NEWS.

Death of J. E. C. Curtis.

After several years of prolonged illness, incident to advanced years, John H. C. Curtis laid down the burden and cares of life, and passed over into the great unknown, at his home in this city, on Tuesday of this week, June 6, 1911, at the age of 81 years. He was warm-hearted, kindly, generous soul, and old and young ever had a warm spot in their hearts for "Uncle Jack." He was charitable in the highest degree, ever ready to forgive and forget, and his hand and purse ever ready to help relieve the distressed and needy. For over fifty years he had resided among us, and none can say aught of him.

He was born in Berkeley county, West Virginia, January 1, 1830, and had passed his 81st milestone. His boyhood days were passed on his father's farm. He was apprenticed to the millwright's trade, in Butler county, Ohio, and then went to Knox county, Illinois, pursuing his trade, and in 1860 he came to Holt county, and followed his trade, he and the late Wm. Kaucher putting up many of the flouring mills here and in Kansas and Nebraska. In 1862 they with the aid of August Waegel, put up the mills at Iowa Point and Doniphan, Kan. He was the last of the Patriarchs of Odd-Fellowship of the county, having been made a member of the order at Martinsburg, W. Va., in May, 1845. In his early life, he identified himself with the M. E. church.

In March, 1874, he was married to Charlotte Henry, who survives him without issue.

The funeral services were conducted from the home, Wednesday afternoon, by Rev. T. C. Taylor, of the M. E. church, after which the funeral service of the I. O. O. F. was read, and he was laid to rest with the honors of the order.

—Missouri surprised some of the contestants at the big track meet at Minneapolis last week Saturday, when the University track team took first place with a score of 35; Chicago U. stood next with 26 points, and Kansas brought up the foot with 1 of a point. Seventeen colleges took part in the meet and the outcome was a complete surprise.
