

M. E. Church Notes.

The revival spirit is deepening. The meetings last week brought many to a sense of their need of the Christ. We will continue over another Sunday at least.

As a result of the service on Tuesday night of last week, six were converted to God. Dr. Armstrong preached a most powerful sermon from John 3:16. At the close of the service six persons came to the altar for pardon, and Dr. Armstrong an-spite of another service being held in the city at the same time, there were many turned away, not being able to get in the house. Dr. Armstrong preached on the text, "And What Shall I Do With Jesus, Who is Called the Christ?" It was his best sermon to date. He literally held the great throng spell-bound for more than an hour, at times the quietness being intense. Tears were falling all over the house. Strong men wept as they listened to the appeal to give themselves to God. It was a wonderful service, and men and women were away from the church thinking and praying as never before. More than two scores of persons held up their hands for prayer when the appeal was made.

The service did not finish until for the Monday night service. The people began coming in the first of the night, and continued coming until the service was closed with eager waiting. Dr. Armstrong preached a strong sermon on the subject, "Christ." The interest is deepening at every service, and will continue to deepen until the meetings close.

REV. J. M. THOMPSON, Pastor.

The pastor has three pairs of gloves that were left in the church. Two pairs are for ladies and one pair for a gentleman. If you are conscious of having lost or left any gloves, call on the pastor for them and he will supply you. Should the weather get cold you will need them.

Cottage Prayer Meetings were held on Tuesday morning of this week at the homes of Mrs. Minnie Moore and Mr. and Mrs. Simmons. The pastor led the one at the home of Mrs. Moore, and Mr. True led the one at the home of Mr. Simmons. Another great mass meeting was held Tuesday afternoon, when the people came together to study the Word of God.

On Saturday we rested from the strenuousness of the week to get ready for a great day on the Sabbath. The pastor was busy all the afternoon in extending invitations to the men and women of the city and community, to attend the two meetings, the one for men in the Methodist church, and the other one for women in the Presbyterian church.

Sunday will forever be a memorable day for our church in Oregon. In the morning, we had 130 in the Sunday school to begin with, then without formally dismissing the school, Dr. Armstrong took the service and made a great address in the interest of "Child Life," and devoted the entire hour to the children and young people, and at the close of his address about fifty persons, including the children, came to the front and asked for membership in the Church of God. It was an interesting scene. We hope to see at least 100 persons give their heart to God this week. The meetings will continue over another Sunday.

The men's meeting, last Sunday afternoon, was a very great success. Two hundred and fifty men responded to the invitation to come. It was an inspiring sight to see two hundred and fifty of the best men of the community congregated in the interest of a greater manhood. Dr. Armstrong was at his best and gave a magnificent appeal to the manhood of the community, for the best type of manly honor and principle, calling forth many beautiful and inspiring illustrations, eliciting ever and again the heartiest applause from the great audience because of their being lifted into a serene atmosphere and because of getting a glimpse of that true manhood as it is found in God. It has been my privilege to have heard Dr. Armstrong on this subject a number of times and I never heard him when he did better. He has delivered the lecture in many of the great cities of the country, and yet he himself says that he never gave it to an audience that showed a greater appreciation, or listened more closely than did the men in the audience last Sunday afternoon. At the close of the lecture, he called for every man who believed in the principles and would do their best to carry them out in their lives, to stand to their feet, and instantly every man, but one, without regard to church or other affiliation, arose to his feet and then walked down to the front and took him by the hand and thanked him for the address. It is a service that will linger in the memory of all present as long as life lasts.

The first section of our lesson text has no connection with the other two. It is taken from a time several months previous to the time of the Berean ministry and was undoubtedly chosen as an indication of the company who traveled with Jesus and his disciples, and who provided for his needs. We must remember that Jesus was not supported by a board, a church, or by some philanthropically inclined individual. It is to the second two verses of this passage that we devote our chief attention.

LESSON FOR JANUARY 25

SERVING JESUS.

LESSON TEXT—Luke 9:13, 9:37-42:10-14.

GOLDEN TEXT—"Inasmuch as ye did it unto one of these my brethren, even the least, ye did it unto me."—Matt. 25:40.

The first section of our lesson text has no connection with the other two. It is taken from a time several months previous to the time of the Berean ministry and was undoubtedly chosen as an indication of the company who traveled with Jesus and his disciples, and who provided for his needs. We must remember that Jesus was not supported by a board, a church, or by some philanthropically inclined individual. It is to the second two verses of this passage that we devote our chief attention.

Ever Ready to Serve.

11. Those who did follow Jesus, 10:38-42. We now turn to consider this little company who were ever ready to serve our Master. From v. 38 we know that not every home was open to receive Jesus as was this one in Bethany, John 11:1. Though this was Martha's home (10:38), and therefore she felt the burden of hospitality, yet she did not hear the word as did her sister Mary, Mark 4:19. Martha was occupied with duty and Mary, with Jesus. Martha was occupied with many things, Mary was occupied with the "one thing needful." The result was that Martha was "distracted" (R. V.), while Mary was at rest. Jesus wants his disciples, his followers, to sit at his feet and to learn of him. He knows all about duty's dull demand, but the one thing needful is, first of all, to learn of him. Martha's love prompted the service, but there was doubtless much pride that accompanied it. Jesus, as we have seen, was not cumbered with much comfort, and it is doubtful that he was desirous of a big dinner. Jesus does, however, commend communion with himself as being, "that good part." Afterwards, when death invaded that circle, it was Martha that had the most intimate dealing with our Lord, see John, chapter 11, hence we conclude that she learned on this day the lesson Jesus sought to teach, viz., that in the life of quiet communion (Isa. 30:15) we shall receive that strength that is absolutely essential, if we are to serve him acceptably. We must not allow the daily, legitimate demands of duty to interfere with a life of full, free, fellowship with the Master.

Summary—It has never been recorded that Jesus ever complained of the hardships of life, yet he had his intimates who were glad to minister to his needs. The call to companionship with Christ, the call, "follow me," is the most stupendous program yet presented to man. The perfect disciple, as well as the ideal woman, is the one who is a blend of the divergent characters of Martha and Mary. It is at the feet of Jesus we are to receive that equipment which is necessary for effective service. "Making excuses takes much time that had better be put into making good."
