

A SUCCESS.

Our Chautauqua Well Attended-- Talent Exceedingly Good--
Three More Big Days
--Don't Fail to Go.

Oregon's tenth annual Chautauqua threw open its gates Saturday last, and a good-sized audience assembled under its monster tent, and took part in the initial program of the 1914 Chautauqua.

Usually the first night's attendance is rather small, but this year the big tent was well filled, and all went away feeling that they had received their money's worth.

Our executive committee made excellent selections in making up their program, and they have left no stone unturned that would help in any way to make the 1914 assembly a success.

Every convenience possible has been provided for the comfort and pleasure of those who have attended, and for those who will come the remaining days, and those who have not yet attended should do so and purchase a ticket that will be good the remaining days, for any one day's program is well worth the cost of a season's ticket--and yet you have three good full days' program to hear.

The Oregon Chautauqua was opened by an excellent concert by that splendid musical organization, the New Point band, with Lum Patterson as leader. Everyone enjoys the music by this band and those who missed the opening concert missed a treat.

The first lecture of the Chautauqua this year was delivered by Dr. F. W. Luce on "The Patriotism of Abraham Lincoln." Dr. Luce is a pleasing speaker, who is in sympathy with his subject. He seeks to instill in the youth of the land some of that patriotism of the martyred President Lincoln, and by his own enthusiasm and well-chosen stories, he accomplishes this.

On Sunday the Avon Sketch Club and Glen Wells made their first appearance. They were with us all of Sunday and Monday, pleasing the audience with their well-selected songs, readings, instrumental work and ensemble work. The Misses Sheldon and Charles delighted with their vocal selections. Miss Lindsey is an accomplished reader, while Miss O'Shaughnessy was a prime favorite with her Irish selections. Mr. Weiss with his vocal solos and piano pieces was always well received. Monday evening the audience was delightfully entertained by these five talented people in a sketch, "How the Vote Was Won." This sketch or play was a comedy, dealing with the English suffragettes. Each member of the company handled his or her part in the best possible style.

Sunday afternoon was one of the big events of Chautauqua, when Lenora M. Lake gave her splendid lecture on "The Divine Rights of a Child." Mrs. Lake has given the best of her life to the Child Problems in this country, and has been instrumental in bettering the conditions for children. She said in part: "All children have the right to demand to be well born. That is, well born as regards physical and mental condition, and not as regards wealth or social position. And afterwards children should have a right to a normal childhood. Each and every person is a mother or father. Though they may not be flesh and blood fathers or mothers, yet by the example set children, and by the environment they create they act as great influences on the lives of children. So everyone has a big influence on the world and what you do affects many others, maybe not directly, still as effectively. So the young people should live clean, pure lives to give the men and women of tomorrow health, strength and happiness."

At 8 p. m., Sunday evening, the audience was given a treat when Stanley LeFevre Krebs gave his great lecture on "Two Snakes in Eden." He began his lecture by locating Eden and showing a map of it--a chart of the human heart and circulatory system. The two snakes in Eden are "Fear" and "Worry." There are four causes of these two snakes as follows: The first is physical--indigestion, ill health and so on. The second is ethical--guilt or neglect of duty. The third is mental, where mystery or ignorance is the cause. The fourth is spiritual, concerning a lack of trust in the Supreme Being. The cause of the two snakes is that it attracts what we fear and so weakens the muscles, the mind, and the morals.

Yet, there is a cure for all these things, and in Dr. Krebs' second lecture on Monday afternoon he gave the cure. The cure for the first, or physical cause was of course care of your health, and then begin that care immediately. Don't put it off for a future day. The cure for the second or ethical cause was, learn to do your duty and cultivate the spirit of love. Love your duty. The cure for the third or mental cause was to study your problem from all sides--get what knowledge you can on the subject. If there is still mystery or ignorance there, put the problem aside and let the Great Power solve it for you. For if you cannot solve your problem after earnest effort, then God will help you with ease. The cure for the fourth and last cause, the spiritual cause, is absolute trust in God.

These two lectures of Dr. Krebs were extraordinarily interesting and entertaining, and at the same time instructive and of great scientific value. He gave a practical demonstration of his own teachings when he delivered these two lectures, as while he lectured he was worried by the fact that his wife and family are in Germany near the seat of trouble, and unable to get away. Yet, Dr. Krebs with his knowledge of the causes and cure for worry, was able to give two highly entertaining lectures.

On Tuesday afternoon the Chautauqua audience was delighted by Sylvester A. Long's excellent lecture, "Lightning and Toothpicks." Mr. Long is a pleasing and forceful speaker. He said that there were three small words which were the most powerful words in the English language. They were Law, Love and Habit. This he went on to show that all life is controlled by the great laws of nature. Anyone who violates those laws will suffer, whether they violate them consciously or unconsciously. Nature asks only one great question and that is, "Are You in Harmony With the Great Natural Laws?" And it is the only question she answers. There is no such thing as luck or chance, but every success or failure is due to whether or not you are in harmony with nature. The second great word or power is Love. And love is the production, protection and prolonging of life. From the beginning of time every living thing has lived through the power of love. And the third power is Habit. Our acts in life are not chance but the result of habits of life and thought. And so Mr. Long concluded his lecture by summing up his theme as follows: "All life is controlled by great natural laws, softened, mellowed and made endurable by love; but used differently by men of different life and thought habits."

In the evening of the same day H. V. Adams gave his lecture on "Grapes of Gold," in which he pointed out that the grapes of gold are the golden thoughts of your own life. Every person has the power within himself to rise above the influences of heredity and environment. Character is the result of the ideas in the heart. By thinking over your chosen thoughts you choose a dominant idea. Every one knows the effect of morbid suggestions on a person in ill health. They also have a disastrous effect on a well person. Cheerfulness, happiness, joy and laughter have a most beneficial effect on the physical and mental welfare. No lower animal has the gift of laughter. God has given this gift to man only that he may experience to the fullest the joy and happiness of life. Criminals are not caused by environment, so much as by evil thoughts. Even the features change with good and evil thoughts. So we must cultivate good thoughts, enjoy laughter and let the dominant idea of life be one of goodness and kindness.

This takes the reader up to and including Tuesday evening, and will be concluded next week. Please remember that the last three days, Friday, Saturday and Sunday, August 7, 8 and 9, will be the best.
