The Bigelow Elevator.

The Bigelow Grain Co., or the Brownfield & Teare Elevator at Bigelow, Mo., handled an immense amount of wheat during the month of July. Total receipts ran near 85,000 bushels; prices ranged from 66 cents to 75 cents per bushel. The former price was paid for wheat contracted in June.

The yield was fairly good. The largest amounts were from Bragg-Munn and Lease, 2,000 bushels; D. W. Jessup from 210 acres received 5,700; James M. Wilson from 170, 4,000; Slater and Perry, on Slater farm, 3,000 bushels; Troxel and McCoy, 2,000 bushels; John Dodson, 3,000 bushels; W. F. Vance for the Land Co., 8,000 bushels; J. F. Bridgeman and Twyman, 1,900 bushels and many others from 1,000 to 1,500 bushels.

T. J. Bridgman had the best yield, something better than 800 bushels from 20 acres, which was better than 40 bushels per acre.

Brownfield & Teare will remodel the elevator just as soon as the wheat industry is finished. They will put a grain cleaner in the top story, and a new and much larger corn sheller on the second floor, and a feed grinder in connection with the grain buying.

It is estimated that the elevator will handle 100,000 bushels of wheat before the close of the season.

Had not the Hessian fly infested the wheat fields of that locality, the yield would have been much larger, for some of the fields were ploughed up in the spring and replanted in corn.

The elevator at Bigelow handled more wheat than both the large elevators at Craig, combined, with a capacity of one-third of each of them.

There has been 60 cars consigned from the elevator, to that millionaire packer, Armour, at Chicago.

The machinery is run by an electric dynamo current from Mound City.

The management of the elevator is in the hands of the congenial T. W. Crews, at Craig, and the mechanical part is cared for by the efficient Tom Taylor, of Craig.

Visits Old Home.

Cornelius Horn, a resident of this county, some twenty-five years ago, and living on and owning what is known as the Paxton place on Kimsy Creek, is back here, visiting old acquaintances. He was an intimate friend of the late Robert Patterson with whom he became acquainted in 1861; Mr. Birmingham, now deceased, father of John Birmingham, agent for the Burlington at Forest City; Uncle John Stephenson, also deceased, and many others, nearly all of whom have "passed on." He is now in his eightieth year, but is very spry; in fact, can get around much better than many men 25 years younger than he is. He now lives at or near Falls City, Nebraska, where he is comfortably well-fixed with this world's goods. This is his first visit back to the old home in 20 years.

The Letter "E."

Here is a bit of "exchange" that is going the rounds of the press just at this time: A certain party has advanced the opinion that the letter E is the most unfortunate letter in the alphabet, because it is always out of cash, forever in debt, never out of danger and in hell all the time. For some reason unknown to us, he has overlooked the unfortunate of the letter and we call his attention to the fact that E is never in war, always in peace, is the beginning of existence and the end of trouble. Without it there would be no meat, no life and no heaven. It is the center of honesty, makes love perfect, and without it there would be no groceries, hotels, money, stores, horses, water, editors, devils, or news, as well as a great many other useful things.

A Missouri Map.

A large base map of the state of Missouri, described as perhaps the most accurate map of this State ever printed, has just been published by the United States geological survey. It has been prepared by the survey in connection with the work which is being done on the great international map of the world. The Missouri map is published on the scale of 1 to 500,000, or about eight miles to the inch, and is believed to show in accurate position all the principal cities, towns, villages, streams, roads, etc., and the main political subdivisions. The size of the map is forty-one by forty-seven inches, and it is sold by the survey at Washington at 35 cents a single copy or at the rate of 21 cents each if at least $3 worth are purchased—approximately the bare cost of paper and printing.

Among the Dakota Indians.

[BY REV. T. D. ROBERTS.]
The Dakota Indians are a branch of the Big Sioux tribe and occupy reservations in North and South Dakota.

Those here are on the Sisseton and Wahpeton Reservation and number about 22 or 23 hundred. This reservation is eighty miles long and from twelve to twenty-five miles wide, and is on the Continental Divide. About twenty miles from where I am writing are lakes Traverse and Big Stone, with the south end of Traverse and the north end of Big Stone one and a quarter miles apart, with a town, Brown's Valley, Minnesota, situated between the two lakes.

While Traverse slopes to the North Big Stone slopes to the south. We have been to Big Stone lake twice since we have been up here and in two different places and found it to be a beautiful sheet of water, clear, with sand and gravel beach. It is a mile wide on an average and seventy miles long. I do not know the dimensions of Traverse.

This, Roberts county, South Dakota, is in the northeast corner of the state and Sisseton is the county seat.

Good Will Mission, where we are visiting our daughter, Pansy and family, is eight miles from the railroad and about one mile and a half from the Indian Agency and the government school for the Indians.

Good Will Mission was established here some 51 years ago and the lumber for the first building was hauled by ox teams from Fort Snelling, Minnesota. The work was begun by Rev. Mr. Riggs, a Congregational minister, but it was afterward turned over to the Board of Home Missions of the Presbyterian church. There is a farm and campus of 100 acres, less two and one half acres for an Indian Presbyterian church grounds, including a cemetery. There is a large school building and a large dormitory each for boys and girls, several houses for superintendent and helpers. Good barns and sheds for stock and machinery. Farming was carried on and stock was kept on the farm, as it was the plan of the Board of Missions to make the institution partially self supporting, and to train the Indian youths in farm life. But the school feature has been abandoned the past year or two and the work among the Indians turned into "Settlement work."

There are a number of Indian Presbyterian churches on the Reservation which have their own Indian pastors and other church officers. I have heard several of their ministers and they speak with great earnestness. They have, too, their own Presbytery and other church courts and gatherings.

They have their individual allotment of land and may dispose of land and other property by sale or trade, but Uncle Sam keeps an eye on the trade to see that the white man does not get the best end of the bargain. Recently a white man traded an Indian automobile for some stock and the agent heard that the auto was no good to the Indian and he sent the man word to bring the stock back and get his machine and the man did so promptly. The government has men to travel over the reservation and draw up leases for the Indians and to look after their interests in general.

The Indians are great hands to attend conferences, conventions and they take plenty of time for it, too. They had a Y. M. C. A. convention in the Presbyterian church here, last week. They met on Wednesday and adjourned Friday night. One of the Indians here furnished a beef for the occasion. Some of the people brought their tents and pitched them near the church. The women and children were in attendance, too, the women cooking the meals for the company in common. I asked Mr. Stevenson what the Indians did with their stock when they all left home to attend some big gathering for a number of days? Well, he said, they often take their stock with them, even to their chickens. They believe in having a good time and to be free from cares. Possibly that accounts for the robust appearance of the most of them.

I intended to mention some other matters touching the crops, weather, and country, but I have already drawn this letter out to too great a length and hence will close with the very best of good wishes for the SKY-TIMING, and the many dear friends down in good old Holt county.
