TESTED SEED CORN WILL SAVE MISSOURI MILLIONS.

Loss of $11,273,491 Threatens 1916 Crop in State if Farmers Neglect Testing.

Carefully conducted corn germination tests in Missouri this year may, if properly followed up by an elimination of those ears which are low in vitality, make an increase of $11,273,491 for the 1916 corn crop.

This amount is an estimate of the average annual loss caused by the use of untested seed corn in the state during the last eight years, according to J. C. Haekleman of the College of Agriculture of the University of Missouri at Columbia. The use of tested seed corn may make the difference between an 85 per cent stand and a per cent one, or between 25 or 28 bushels an acre at gathering time.

Last year's wet season, slow maturity and late gathering of the crop resulted in cribbing much corn before it was ripe enough to make good seed. The corn contained so much water that it was almost sure to heat and mold even if it were mature enough to gather. The Missouri farmer who selected seed carefully in the field and stored it properly can make a big return now by an increased crop or by selling the seed to his neighbors who did not take precautions last fall.

The task of testing seed corn for Missouri's 7,282,617 acres is not so great when we remember that the work is divided among more than a quarter of a million farmers. This means that to plant the average man's 20.6 acres only four or five bushels of tested are needed. As it takes about two hours to test a bushel of seed corn, ten hours' work by the average Missouri farmer would usually result in a difference of $40 in his income, or about $1.50 an acre net gain for all the corn he plants.

The sand box or sawdust germinator consists of a box about four inches deep and thirty inches square, with about two inches of sand or sawdust in the bottom to hold the moisture or to keep water from standing around the corn. A piece of old sheeting or other cloth that will absorb moisture, but will not allow it to stand on the surface, should be stretched over the surface and marked off into two inch squares. Put six kernels from various parts of the middle of each ear to be tested into one of these squares. Cover the box to prevent drying and keep it at room temperature—about 70 degrees F. for six days, then find the ears from which kernels failed to germinate, throw them into the feed box and keep those that showed a good strong test.

Presbyterian Church Notes.

Rev. J. S. Cunningham gave us two strong sermons last Sunday, which were much appreciated by good congregations. Mr. James Cunningham, a nephew, who was formerly manager of Mr. Joe Murray's dairy and now holds a similar position at Liberty, and who was visiting here over Sunday, also took part in the evening service. We are always glad to welcome these friends.

All services as usual next Sunday. Miss Grace McDonald is leader of the Christian Endeavor. Subject: "Christian Endeavor Fidelity and Force." Matt, 25:31-46. This is the monthly Consecration Meeting, and be sure to bring the Missionary offering.

On next Wednesday, February 9th, the Missionary society will be entertained by Mrs. VanBuskirk and Mrs. Allen at Mrs. VanBuskirk's at 2:30.

There were 97 at Sunday school last Sunday. This was fairly good, considering the weather, but we ought never to drop below a hundred. Look up the absentees in your class and tell them that they were missed and invite them to come next Sunday.

T. A. CLAORTT, Pastor.
