Oregon Defeats the Legioners.

One of the most interesting games of the season was the game between the Chicago Legioners and Oregon, on Tuesday, July 26, which was won by Oregon in ten innings, as the score was tied four to four at the end of the ninth inning. The features of the game was the terrific hitting of Weightman, of the local team, who got a three-bagger, two two-baggers and a single in five times at bat, and a terrific wallop for a home run by Summers in the tenth inning after two were out. Sullinger, pitching for the local team, hurled a nice game, and was given good support by the home team. The Legioners proved to have a nice bunch of ball players, and a more gentlemanly bunch have not appeared on our diamond this year.

The tabulated score:

To The Public.
It is with much regret that we make the following statement on behalf of The American Legion:
There are some citizens in this community who seem to have the wrong conception of the Legion. Many have expressed the opinion that the Legion should maintain its activities without asking for financial support from the public, and made other remarks which are a reflection upon the Legion, and to which we take exceptions.

In reply, on behalf of this Post, we wish to state that the American Legion is not an organization for any one's special benefit but for the benefit of all ex-service men, and also to render what good it can to the country, the same as it did in the years of '17 and '18. What money the local post has raised by giving public entertainments, etc., has gone for good causes, such as assisting many disabled ex-service men, whom the government had not yet granted compensation for their disability received in the service. And other expenditures of the Post have been wisely made.
We desire to state to the public that we appreciate your good will and your patronage on various occasions, but to those who have made such ridiculous assertions concerning the Legion, we wish to state that we regret your feelings, but on such occasions as where we may try to give entertainments worth the money, please do not patronize us unless you can do so in the right spirit, and be careful of your remarks.
