

U.S. GOVERNMENT CARTRIDGE SILK, USED IN WAR, CONVERTED INTO WONDERFUL APPAREL.

Latest Styles and Designs Brought Out by Famed Costumers Show Merits of the New Fabric of Which Eleven Million Yards Are Released.

Director of Sales E. C. Morse of Washington, D. C., who has charge of the disposal of government surplus, and T. J. O'Neil, Chief of the Division of Textiles of the Ordnance Department, U. S. Army, could scarcely believe their eyes when a group of mannequins walked out on a promenade-way at a Fashion Show in New York the other day. They were clad in cartridge silk, the fabric that was used to hurl death dealing whizz-bombs toward the Fritz.

It was the first Fashion and Style Show given in the Bush Terminal East Building, New York, to demonstrate the many uses of United States government cartridge silk. Living models displayed the garments in a setting of upholstered Afternoon gowns, tailored suits, with hats to match, motor coats, boluses, linings, riding habits, sport suits, skirts, coats, parasols, sport shoes, all of cartridge in an infinite variety of hues and patterns, and designs created by the most exclusive and smartest Fifth Avenue seamstresses, passed in almost bewildering panorama before their eyes. What to do with these 30,000,000 yards was a problem for which, apparently, there was no solution. The Government officials believed that since commercial silk was so expensive, and beyond the reach of most American women, a use for the new fabric worthy of its many desirable qualities should be discovered.

Wonderful work to promote the silk was done by Miss W. J. Grinden, chairman of the New York District Ordnance Salvage Board. The Government officials interested Irving T. Bush of New York in their plans to put this silk before the American people. Mr. Bush, in turn, called the attention of E. A. McLane, an experienced silk manufacturer to its possibilities. Mr. McLane directed a corps of expert silk men to the treatment of the silk. It was processed, and finally a wonderful commercial textile was produced, totally unlike any other upon the market. The new fabric has a slightly rough, lustreless surface which takes the dye most beautifully and in its natural state it is a creamy white in tone. It comes in eleven main grades and is from 36 to 72 inches wide. It has been dyed into a panoply of about thirty plain colors, including the pastel shades, and in many designs, including drapery and other decorative motifs.

The best talent in the country was called upon for ideas in color and design. Likewise, forty leading American costumers volunteered to make up garments of the new material to demonstrate just what could be done with it. These garments have just been shown at a United States Government Cartridge Silk Fashion Show which was given in the Bush Terminal Sales Building in New York under the direction of A. Casali and Mrs. F. W. Hoffmann. When you look at the pictures on this page you will concede that they know something about giving a Fashion Show.

The Cartridge Silk Style Show was a wonderful success. It has proved beyond doubt that United States Government Cartridge Silk is the silk of the season. It has demonstrated that there are more than two hundred possible uses for the new fabric. It is practically indestructible. It was made to conform to rigid tests for tensile strength. The lighter and medium weights will make wonderful summer suits for men and boys. Now that prices for ordinary heavy material have almost reached the sky, the heavier grades of government cartridge silk will prove a boon to upholsterers.

Everybody Can Wear It. Almost eleven million yards of the silk are to be placed upon the market as a starter. A scale of wholesale prices has been fixed, varying from the heaviest to the lightest weight. It is not only one of the handsomest and most durable fabrics in the world, but in the opinion of experts it is far cheaper than other fabrics of similar intrinsic value. It is all pure silk, for silk when ignited leaves no ash or flaming residue to foul the breech of a howitzer or cause a subsequent explosion. The lighter grades will make soft outing shirts for men. The heavier grades can be used for book covers, for painter's canvas, for tents, screens, and awnings, bags, shoes, scarfs, caps, bed spreads, drapes, valances, novelties of all kinds, while rompers for children made of cartridge silk will be wonderfully popular this year.
