Betty & Sam's Little Corner

THEY SAY

—That C. A. Starks always speaks out, believe me.

—That still water runs deep but sometimes it smells awful loud.

—That all things come to those who wait if you hustle like h—l while you're waiting. Well, we're sure hustling.

—That if you want to see the girls put on their best dresses and their dotting mothers their best smiles, just let a new man come to town.

—That if you haven't got one of those Brothens Brown skin dolls in your home, you don't know what's good. That's all.

—That the 12th Street bunch sure gave the Lilly King Chorus a scrumptious time while they were here. They did that.

—That the victory is not to the biggest nor the one who makes the biggest boast but to them who keep delivering the goods. Saba.

—That this dope business is going to get a whole lot of Negro doctors in trouble if they are not careful. Practice your profession boys and leave the scam alone.

—That there are some people who will not even be happy in heaven unless they are permitted to tell every angel they meet "how many trials and tribulations" they had down yonder. Well all Betty and Sam want is just to get there.

—That the police arrested a Negro butting his way into a building formerly occupied as a saloon and when the police arrested him and asked him what he was butting his brains out for he said "Here's wha I spent the best days of my life and here's wha I want to die." Sam said, "Let the fool die."
