EDITORIALS.

Who can name the twenty-five best Negro authors and their masterpieces?

Rev. S. Douglass McDuffie is giving the Devil a hard tussle in Norfolk, Va. among the Colored white Billy Sunday is knocking him out of the white people.

Five agencies make up for the weal of woe of man, the home, the workshop, the church, the school and the state.

Last Sunday witnessed the 188th Anniversary of the birth of the greatest Virginian of them all who signed his name Geo. Washington.

Jason, Columbus, Magellan, Peary have set their names high as successful explorers. Death claimed the last.

That a man think he would like to have a harem full of women before he married but after he marries, he finds that it takes all of his time trying to please the one.

Betty & Sam's Little Corner

THEY SAY

-That religion which is talked and not acted is worse than useless.

-That women will gossip even when there isn't anything to talk about.

-That one good talker and one good listener make excellent companions.

-That Mississippi has a new cure for Hydrophobia. They shoot down the victim. But he must be a Negro.

-That from the frequency of a "friend" to a certain man's home, he intends keeping all the friendship in the family.

-That if everybody did his best at whatever he tried to do at all, there'd be more men at the top and fewer at the middle and at the bottom.

-That the washer woman who doesn't use a "1900 Washing Machine" doesn't know how much labor she's wasting until she tries one.

-That some people are never satisfied. When it's cold, "it's too cold" when it's hot, "it's too hot" when it's spring time, "Oh I'm afraid this won't last long."

-That a man think he would like to have a harem full of women before he married but after he marries, he finds that it takes all of his time trying to please the one.

-That the women in a certain neighborhood are complaining because a certain professional man speaks without doffing his hat and has decided to ignore the brother. That's right, he should know better.

-That an old Colored gent went to a pawn shop to sell his night shirt.

When the broker asked him why he wished to dispose of his night shirt he replied: "Well I'd like to get a new one now at the building and I can't see the place which I've used such a thing as a night shirt."
