LANGSTON, OKLA.

One of the most conspicuous features at L. U. is the rapid growth in the Music Department. Ten pianos, four music teachers, one hundred fifty pupils show the approach of Langston University by leaps and bounds towards a real conservatory. A most wonderful program was rendered by two "wee tots," 5 years of age, daughters of Prof. Samuel Sadler and President J. M. Marquess, at a 4 o'clock April 18th. Thirty instrumental numbers with numerous songs and exercises in voice culture were perfectly rendered by these "Sunbonnet Babies" of five. This shows what heredity, environment and training will do for our babies. Madames C. B. Sheler of New England Conservatory of Music and B. E. Douglass of Minnesota Conservatory deserve credit and praise as valuable assets to Langston University Conservatory.

MACON, MISSOURI.

By Vivian Brown. Services were well attended Sunday at Bethel A. M. E. Church. At the morning service Dr. T. Jeff Ross, pastor, preached from James 1:13; subject, "Harvest Time," our hearts burned as he told us of the Angel of God gathering the saved. Sunday night subject "Carefulness in Service," a great crowd sat spellbound as this messenger delivered God's word, he is an earnest, untiring officer in God's army. Services at the Vine and Broadway Baptist Church was well attended. Rev. Underwood filled the pulpit morning and evening. Bethel A. M. E. Church was the scene of a record-breaking crowd last Friday evening, the occasion being the visit of Madame Mary B. Tolbert, national president of the National Association of Colored Women's Clubs. Madame Tolbert spoke under the auspices of the Macon Women's Club, the church was beautifully decorated in purple and white, the club colors; the music was furnished by the Lone Star Quartet. Madame Tolbert is in a class by herself as an orator of exceptional qualities she held her audience spellbound for one hour and a half except for an unavoidable outburst of applause. Long may she live to champion the cause of our people, on to Norway; God bless her. Brother Magill and Brother Marteen are still very low; much sickness among the people of Macon. There will be a poverty social at the residence of Mrs. William Grant Friday evening, April 30, under the auspices of the Stewardess A. M. E. Church. Ross will leave for Kansas City and Omaha during the absence of Dr. Ross at General Conference. E. Martin of Columbia, Mo., spent several hours with his mother, Mrs. S. E. Crews, on the 22d inst. on his way to St. Louis. Rev. P. C. Crews spent the 25th inst. in Vandalia, Mo. Mrs. Crews is suffering with rheumatism to the extent that she is not able to get out to services.

MONROVIA, CALIF.

My dear Kansas City Friends: I have had several interesting experiences recently which I have desired to tell you of, but I have found that there are so many of you to write to that I decided that the best way to reach you all would be through the Kansas City Sun. I won't "harrow up" your feelings by telling you of the climate and beauties of Southern California, of its sunshine and blooming flowers on every side all through the so-called winter and of the ripe strawberries that we are picking daily. One of the things I wanted to write of is of special interest to "Y" girls, that is of the Y. W. Center of Los Angeles. Having been interested in the Y work of Kansas City, at the first opportunity I visited the center in Los Angeles. Here I met our friend, Miss Ethel Caution, an executive secretary. She was formerly a teacher in the Kansas City, Kansas, High School, and a member of the Booklovers' Club. She is doing a fine work here with the Y girls. A few weeks ago she chaperoned a party of high school girls and several "grown-ups" to a "house party" at the Santa Monica beach. Mrs. Wright, one of our people owning a furnished cottage there, donated its use to the Y girls for a "week-end" party. After a jolly auto ride of 12 miles to the beach at sunset, came the building of the camp fire, with wood donated by the Y. M. C. A. Then the "weenie roast" with the songs and games and good time generally, in sight of "old ocean" till 10 p. m. When all were stowed away in the cottage "three deep," as the girls expressed it. Saturday morning started with the "upsetting exercises" then the morning K. C.'s prepared breakfast, which had been brought down with us from the city. At nine o'clock after devotional exercises, led by Mrs. J. E. Porter, chairman of the committee of management, some of the visitors were called on to tell of the work in other cities. I was glad to tell of the Kansas City Y work. Between the play and the work of that Saturday the girls were made acquainted with the plan of organization. Arrangements were also made for a "get-together frolic" to which all the Colored girls in the several high schools of Los Angeles were to be invited. Girls, I wish I could tell you of that "frolic" in which more than a hundred took part. There are four of five high schools in Los Angeles, some having very few Colored pupils and others a large number, according to the location in the city. It looks strange to me to see a hundred Colored high school girls of one city together and yet very few of them acquainted with one another. So the first games of the evening were for the purpose of getting acquainted. Each one wore, tacked on the front of her blouse, a blue triangle card containing her name and school, and remembering the names and schools of their various partners was no easy task. Then followed all kinds of jolly, rollicking games, many with musical accompaniment. The leader in any of the games was the executive secretary of the Central Association, who had also been present at the Santa Monica house party. After an hour spent in games all assembled by schools for a program of music, recitation and songs, not omitting the yells of the various schools as their representative appeared on the program. At the close they completed their organization and planned for definite activities such as mountain hikes and summer camp. They are also planning on my invitation a hike to Monrovia some 18 miles away, so you see they walk. I will tell you of their visit when they come.

But I must describe one more experience before my letter gets too long. For some twelve years it has been a custom in Southern California to make a pilgrimage to Mt. Rubidoux at Riverside, California, for Easter services at sunrise. The number of persons making the trip increases yearly, so that it is estimated that at least fifty thousand persons climbed that rugged mountain train on Easter morning. Special trains run from every nearby city and hundreds of automobiles could be seen on the roads in that early morning light, all bound for Mt. Rubidoux. Some climb the trail on the evening before and camp on the sides of the mountain so as to secure good positions to see and hear the services. Some friends and myself started up the winding trail about 4 a. m. or I should put it, some friends assisted me over boulder and bush up that long, dusty trail. Boy Scouts were stationed at the most difficult or dangerous places to assist the older and weaker climbers. Now and then the path led to a landing where a view could be obtained, of the country for miles away, with its beautiful patches of field and orchard or the long lines of arc lights of the pretty city of Riverside below, but we couldn't stop for a long look for the surging crowds behind pushed us on.

After an hour's climb we came in sight of the great cross that is planted on the summit of the mountain. At the foot of the cross could be seen in the early dawn the large choir of singers from the different churches of the city. All arrangements seem to be under a community service committee though I was told that the pilgrimage started under the Catholic Mission. Now, all denominations have a part in it.

Just as the first ray of sunlight appeared in the East the strains of a cornet solo, "The Holy City," hushed the waiting, and surging crowds on that mountain, its silence. Then led by the large choir, all sang the well known hymn, "In the Cross of Christ I Glory." This was followed by the Lord's Prayer and responsive readings from the scriptures on a little program that had been handed to us at the foot of the mountain. One verse especially seemed appropriate, "And very early in the morning the first day of the week, they came into the sepulchre at the rising of the sun." It is strange how plainly the readings, prayers and solos could be heard in that clear mountain air, and the memory of that mountain sunrise service with its thousands of worshippers and over all the cross, lighted up the rays of the rising sun make a picture that is well worth the long climb.

ANNA H. JONES.

(By the Associated Negro Press.) Chicago, Ill., April 21.—In a letter recently sent by Senator Medill McCormick of Illinois to the Associated Negro Press on the migration of the race from the south to the north the Senator has this to say:

"The migration of agricultural workers to industrial centers, the economic developments in the industrial field, have profoundly modified, and will more profoundly modify, the environment of a large part of the Colored population of the country. The violent outbreaks in some of our cities, to which lawless elements of both races immediately contributed, have borne some good fruit. Leaders of the Colored and white races, public-spirited, wise and prudent, have joined their purposes to secure an adjustment of the differences between Colored and white people, to their common advantage and advancement."

(By the Associated Negro Press.) Ft. Worth, Tex., April 22.—Negro citizens of Ft. Worth have begun a $12,000 Y. W. C. A. building fund campaign, in which they are enlisting the dollars and cents of every Negro citizen of Ft. Worth. It is the intention of the citizens of the city to erect in Ft. Worth a building for their young women which will meet the imperative needs which they are facing.
