An editor is a man. He can bear more ridicule than any other man, alive or dead, and they never die in a lunatic asylum. They often die in poverty as well as in jail. There are many kinds of editors—rich, poor, handsome, homely, good, bad, shrewd, ignorant, civilized, semi-civilized, barbaric, lying, snake, city, managing, telegraphic, financial and many other kinds. Then there is the fighting editor. Many good citizens go to him to have their hair combed. They generally get it and then sue the editor for libel and then pay the costs.—Coffeeville Journal.

The commencement exercises of Lincoln institute were held in the house of representatives last Friday in the presence of a large attendance, and was very creditable in every particular. Gen. D. H. McIntyre delivered an interesting address and delivered the certificates to the graduates.

The people of this part of the state have been electing Vest men and Cockrell men to the legislature for a great many years. It would be a change for the better if a few progressive, intelligent, well-informed representatives of the great and growing interests of this section were sent to the legislature from the Central Missouri counties this year.—Boonville Republican.

When considering political matters in Missouri it should be borne in mind that the state is not democratic, although it has a democrat for governor. Gov. Francis did not receive a majority of the votes cast at the last election in this state, and is only a minority governor. The state can be redeemed if managed properly.—Carthage Banner.

The democrats are figuring upon the next election, and claim they will have a majority of 83 in the next house of representatives. This is the favorite season for counting chickens before they are hatched, and the democrats have simply fallen into the general habit of counting all the eggs as sound and good. But nobody ever bets on a democratic egg.—N. Y. Press.

The aggregate valuation of personal property in Missouri is $201,223,830, there only being four states which make a better showing—New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio and Massachusetts. In reply to newspaper strictures Mr. Bradfield, of the Billings Times, says he does not regret his criticism of Congressman Bland, and has nothing to take back. He regards his censure of Mr. Bland as legitimate criticism. Engineer Commissioner of Washington, Col. Robert, is heartily commended for the noble stand taken in executing the liquor laws. He has abolished 313 saloons of the meanest and most harmful character.

There is an organization in Washington known as the Congressional Temperance Society, composed chiefly of members of congress. Its object is the dissemination of temperance principles in congressional circles. It is a strange fact, however, that while this society has been in existence for 40 or 50 years so has the congressional grogery. Faith without works is dead.

Boys who hesitate about doing what they know to be right for fear they will stand alone among their companions may be encouraged by an incident which took place at Gen. Washington's house near the close of the revolutionary war. The occasion was a large dinner party, and, according to the custom of the times, wine was served. Among the guests was an army officer who, just before the close of the dinner, was invited by his host to drink a glass of wine with him. "You will have the goodness to excuse me, General," he replied, with the heroism of a true soldier, "as I have made it a rule not to take wine." A murmur of surprise ran around the room, but the most astonished person was the man himself on hearing General Washington commend his course by saying, "I honor our friend for his frankness and consistency in adhering to a rule which can never do him harm." The boy who has the courage to decline a cigar or a glass of beer from his companions may not always find an ally among them, but he may be perfectly sure of the approval of his very best and strongest friend, the Lord Jesus Himself.
