Russell Sage, the millionaire, died last Sunday very quietly, at his home in York State. He was 90 years old. He was a representative in Congress in the days of the Whig party and quite a prominent member at that time, but the "money mania" got its virus into his system and he turned his attention to money getting with the result that he died very rich.

The Democrats of the 26th Judicial circuit met in convention at Greenfield, Monday and nominated B. G. Thurman, of Lamar, to fill the unexpired term of Judge Shafer, deceased. The session of the convention was stormy from start to finish. The Vernon county delegation fought manfully for their candidate, Judge Johnson, but were defeated. The Republicans ought to elect their candidate.

THE TRIBUNE takes no stock in any theatrical play like The Clansman, Uncle Tom's Cabin, or any other stage production that appeals to the baser political passions and prejudices of the people. We are hardly in favor of a law, or police authority to suppress such plays, but we certainly commiserate the public taste that patronizes them. The sole object of putting such plays on the stage is to put money in the pockets of the promoters without regard to the moral effect such plays may have.

Gov. Folk's Advice.

In his address of welcome to the assembled representatives of the retail merchants at Jefferson City last week, among other truths expressed by Gov. Folk were the following:

"The Missouri merchant who is not proud of his State and the town where he lives can never be a success. Every Missourian should be proud of his State.

"We want the State to grow, but not at the expense of the country towns. Better have a thousand towns than one large city without the towns. If a town is good enough for a man to live in it should be good enough for him to patronize with his money. No town is better than its citizens make it, or worse than they permit it to be.

The Governor rapped non-advertising merchants sharply. He said it had been demonstrated many times that printer's ink is the best investment a merchant can make, if he tells the truth about what he has to sell.

"But the time has come in this country when a man must do an honest business or no business at all."

Production of Zinc in 1905.

The production of zinc in the year 1905 amounted to 203,849 short tons, according to a report prepared by Mr. Charles Kirchhoff and published by the United States Geological Survey. This is an increase of 17,147 short tons over the production of 1904. The production of zinc has more than doubled since 1897, when it amounted to 99,980 tons.

In Kansas no new plants were started in 1905, but those which opened in 1904 had a full year's production. These included the Caney Zinc Company at Caney which enlarged further to ten blocks in 1905, the Chanute Zinc Company, and the Cockerill Zinc Company at Altoona. The Granby Company made a larger product, having added a fifth block. Two Zellwegger mechanical furnaces are building. The Prime Western and the Lanyon Zinc Company each added one block, and the United Zinc and Chemical Company is building two blocks and will soon add two more.

Mr. A. B. Cockerill now controls plants at Gas, La Harpe, Altoona, and Pittsburg, Kas., and at Nevada and Rich Hill, Mo.

It Is Different Now.

For a period of more than eighteen months Missouri Republicans have been in control of a majority of the elective state offices.

During that period the affairs of office have been administered in such a thoroughly efficient manner that not even a hint of hostile criticism has come either from Republican or Democrat.

Such a record becomes little less than extraordinary if one considers that in the administrations which have gone before, scandal constantly followed scandal, and expressions not only of criticisms but of indignation came from Democrats and Republicans alike.

The difference between Republican and Democratic administration in Missouri has been as is the East from the West.

That is one of the reasons why Missouri Republicans will sweep the state this fall.—Republican Review.

Suit on Bonds Proposed.

A new step, to be taken hereafter, has been announced by the governor, in the further prosecution of persons convicted of violation of the liquor law on Sunday, and that is that they will be sued on their bonds for the use of the state. Each dramshop keeper is required under the law to give a bond in the sum of $2000, the laws of the state governing these shops, and as these laws deny him the right to open his place on Sunday, his doing so not alone subjects him to criminal prosecution, but places liability upon his sureties, who make bond that he will observe the laws.

A forfeiture of these bonds, therefore, for the state's use will be asked for.

Notice will be given, the governor says, to all prosecuting attorneys in the state that hereafter prosecutions of saloon men who open their saloons on Sunday must be followed by suit against the bondsmen. This is a new feature of the efforts put forth to secure an enforcement of the law, and while its applications will be asked for in all cases which may hereafter arise, no such steps will be taken, it is declared, in complaints which have been lodged up to this time against alleged offenders. There are no fears that the constitutionality of this course can be successfully attacked, as there have been numerous cases in which the supreme court has declared a forfeiture of dramshop bonds for violations of the dramshop laws.

The governor states that those who persist in violating the Sunday law in the matter of selling intoxicants will be proceeded against—first, criminally; second to lose their license; third, in case of a corporation, for forfeiture of charter and property; fourth, by proceedings under section 2995, revised statutes of 1899, which requires a dramshop keeper to give bond in the sum of $2000, conditions that the persons obtaining the same will not violate any of the provisions of the dramshop laws of the state. After pointing out these steps, which the prosecution would hereafter take, the governor continued:

VIEWED AS HIS TRUMP CARD!

Hereafter every dramshop keeper who violates the Sunday law will be proceeded against under the action to which I have referred. The supreme court has held this law to be valid. A proceeding before a justice of the peace is sufficient to secure a forfeiture of said bonds. The supreme court has upheld this view of the case also. I intend to notify every prosecuting attorney in the state that every time a dramshop keeper is convicted of violating the Sunday law that steps must also be taken at once to forfeit his bond. In the past this feature of the law has not been resorted to, but it will be adopted in the future.

The inference is that the governor regards this as being pretty nearly his trump card. It is thought that he feels secure in the belief that when bondsmen of saloon keepers learn of his determination to see that they are sued if their principal does not comply with the requirements of the law, they will make, before going surety, one of the conditions of their doing so that there be no violations of the law. Made liable to punishment themselves, they will have an interest other than a moral one in seeing to it that the law is observed.

Sunday was the hottest day of the season, but Sunday night it turned cool and Monday was very pleasant.

There are a couple of public utilities which the citizens of Butler are paying too much for. One is the electric light, which goes out whenever it wants to, and the other is the telephone system; both are rotten. The former is paid for by taxation from all the people, and the latter are charged first class prices for second or third class service. How long will these abuses continue? Just so long as the people will stand it.—Butler Record.
