

A Daring Escape.

Last week one of the most daring leaps on record was made by George Glen, a prisoner held for burglary, at the Central Police Station.

Glen was in the room with two other prisoners, no officer being present. He expected to be called soon for trial on three charges—burglary, larceny and assault and battery.

Quick as a cat he caught an iron of the grating, but to do so was compelled to slip his left hand from the sash, and depend on a precarious hold of the window frame.

He had hardly touched the stone step at the bottom when he made a dart into a rear door of Zellehan's saloon, and dashed into an alley by an opposite door, and ran into Long street with the speed of the wind.

Whom Shall We Trust?

When afflicted with a complication of disorders, and the limited resources of the family physician have been exhausted without benefit, the all important question is, whom shall we trust?

The doctor is endorsed by the clergy, as well as by the medical profession, of the land. We have space for only the following among the large list to whom he refers:

"I Cannot Walk

without a fluttering in my heart" is the announcement made by many who have over-worked their powers in quest of money or pleasure, and who, in the meridian of life, find themselves beyond the enjoyment of the good things for which they have labored so long.
