 Published Every Weekday Afternoon.
 Entered at the postoffice at Barre as second class matter.
 FRIDAY, MAY 1, 1903.

The average daily circulation of the Barre Daily Times for the week ending Saturday was copies, the largest paid circulation of any daily paper in this section.

2,624

The governorship talk is mostly talk.—Randolph Herald and News.
 And talk comes mighty cheap generally.

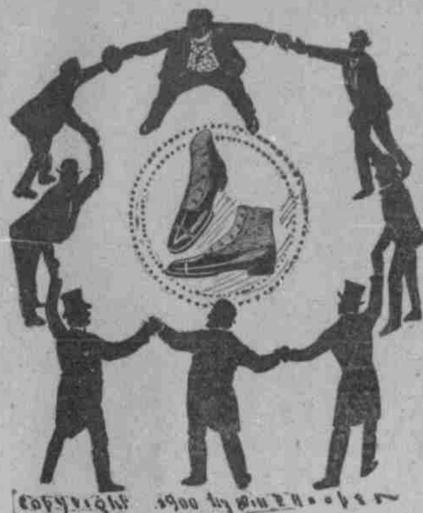

It has been three months since the law against spitting in street cars went into effect, but up to this time the Times has not discerned any effort on the part of the local street railway to see that it is observed on its lines. The least it could do would be to post a notice in each car.

As one after another of the impossibles are "mentioned" for governor notice the expansion of the chest, particularly note the cherubic smile that plays about the mouth of the mentionee and finally feel the hearty grip of the hand that previously had been so "wispny." What a world of change it makes in a man to be "mentioned!"

Plainly the authorities of Hardwick-on-the-map have a contract on hand to make good their no-license vote. Hardwick realizes the truth of the repeated warning that because a town votes "no" that action does not finish its responsibility. There appears to be as much need for watchfulness there as there is in the license cities of Barre, Burlington, Rutland or Montpelier. The Hardwick Gazette tells unequivocally what the conditions are when it says: "Hardwick voted no license. Very well. Hardwick was promised enforcement of the liquor law provided a majority voted "no" at the March meeting. What has been done?" Plainly, not a confounded thing. Drunken men stagger around the streets untouched and rum is sold to those who have the price. Still Hardwick is a no license town!"

The talk of the selection of an executive head of a state or the nation to the presidency of a college has taken a boom recently. It was not long since that President Roosevelt was nominated by some enthusiast as president of Harvard university. The nominator, however, had the decency to say that he wouldn't give the office to Roosevelt until after he had finished his term in the president's chair. Not so in New Hampshire. Some people have named Gov. Bachelder as president of the state college at Durham, which all goes to show that the "glitter of office" is in Bachelder's eye. Not so much would be thought of the suggestion that he be made president of the college had he not already failed to abdicate several state offices, an action which his election as governor would seem to demand. Now the proposal is to make him president of the state college at once. Great is the crown of Gov. Bachelder.

The Burlington News is disposed to criticize the Times for defending the "country lawyer from Vermont" and declares that such action is provincial. So far as we are able to discover the provincialism lies in the tame submission, to which some people and some newspaper are prone. There is nothing narrow, nor is there anything illiberal in speaking in defence of a person, or class, that is misrepresented and then made the butt of sarcastic references. There is not much doubt that the allusion to Assistant Secretary Darling as the "country lawyer from Vermont," was not merely a sarcastic fling at him, but it represented the writer's firm conviction of what the lawyer from the country district amounted to anyway. There was a general reference. In the light of that interpretation, we shall, with the permission of the News, take a bit of pardonable pride in the success of the Vermont lawyer in national affairs. But as for defending that peccage, the Times admits that he needs no defence. His recent actions in national affairs are his own defence and a pretty powerful reminder of his ability they make, too. And due credit should be forthcoming for a man who shows his worth whether he be a Vermont resident or not.

ABOUT THE STATE.

Issues of Interest Gleaned From Our Exchanges.
 Mrs. N. M. Nay of Jericho, who is 77 years old, has just completed a quilt of 4,280 pieces, which she began in the winter.

A report of the examination of six samples of the Rutland city water shows that biologically and chemically the water is of good quality.

Dr. H. D. Bolton of Brattleboro, has gone to New Orleans, where he will attend the annual meeting of the American Medical Association. He will be absent about two weeks.

Forest fires are raging on Mount Hunger in the town of Worcester. They have already done considerable damage in the destruction of lumber and standing timber and the inhabitants of that locality are in a state of great apprehension.

W. W. Brunk of Los Angeles, Cal., is to fill the place of pastor of the Methodist church at Pawlet. The former pastor, the Rev. Gilbert E. Cady, will go to Bristol. Mr. Brunk is a graduate of Drew Seminary and has made a tour around the world, visiting Palestine and Egypt.

During the first 15 days of April 270 specimens were analyzed at the state laboratory of hygiene, Burlington. This is a greater number than at any period of the same length in the history of the institution, and shows a notable increase in this line of laboratory work during the past few years.

Fletcher D. Proctor of Rutland, for the Barney Marble Co., and N. W. Fisk of Isle La Motte, have sold all the quarry rights of the Fisk & Bradley on the G. E. M. Bullard farm at Swanton Junction to the Barney Marble Co. This gives the Barney Marble Co. the sole control of all the variegated marble ledges in that vicinity.

In May.
 When grosbeaks show a damask rose,
 Amid the cherry blossoms white
 And early robins' nests disclose
 To loving eyes a joyous sight,
 When columbines like living coals
 Are glistening 'gainst the lichened rocks
 And at the foot of mossy toles
 Are young anemones in flocks,
 When ginger root beneath twin leaves
 Conceals its dusky floral bell
 And showy orchid shyly weaves
 In humid nook its fragrant spell,
 When dandelion's coin of gold
 Anew is minted on the lawn
 And maple trees their fringes unfold
 While warblers storm the groves at dawn,
 When these and more greet eye and ear,
 Then strike thy tasks and come away;
 'Tis the joy month of the year,
 And onward sweeps the tide of May.
 —John Burroughs in Century Magazine

JINGLES AND JESTS.

The Insecure Season.
 The time draws near when no one knows
 Just when to shake his winter clothes,
 For if you wear 'em you feel bad,
 And if you don't you can't you had.
 —Washington Star.

Their Privilege.
 "There's Mrs. Brown wearing the same gown she wore last year."
 "Yes, but the Browns are so rich that they can afford to be eccentric."
 —San Francisco Examiner.

Nervy Indeed.
 "The folks who tantalize me most," ex-claimed the charming miss,
 "Are men who call and have the nerve to ask me for a kiss."
 —Cincinnati Post.

Passing It Along.

"Who is it?" asks the gruff poet, as the butler brings a card. "Is it that barber I sent for?"
 "Yes, sir," is the reply, "and he has brought with him the buying agent of a hair pillow manufacturer who requests to be permitted to bid on your surplus hair for the next year."
 —Chicago Tribune.
