POPE LIKES KAISER'S SONS.

Leo XIII. Calls Prince Eitel "Il Bambino," Meaning "Little Boy."

The pope displayed great interest during the recent visit of the kaiser to Italy and spoke freely about it, especially in regard to the young royal princes, says a special cable dispatch from Rome to the Chicago Inter Ocean. His holiness was particularly affected by Prince Eitel, whom he took by the hand and, gently patting it, said, "You must be about the age of my grandson, Alfonso of Spain, whom I shall never see." He added sadly, "He is a dear boy, but not so strong and tall and bello (bonny) as this bambino little boy."

Prince Eitel's fair skin flushed, much to the amusement of the pope, who laughed benignly. When the visit of the kaiser and his sons was over the pope remarked: "Those are boys to be proud of. But six! How is it the emperor can look so young?"

Prince Eitel is now being unmercifully chaffed by his brother, who has told the story, and dubs Eitel "Il Bel Bambino" (the pretty little boy), which sounds terrible in the ears of a soldier of nineteen.

New Slang Word, "Stung." An undergraduate is no longer "stuck" for a dinner, a seat at the play, a railroad ticket; he is "stung" for it, says the Yale Alumni Weekly. He is "stung" by the professor for his recitation and the bursar for his term bill; he is "stung" for a loan from his classmate, and so on without end. If the word "takes" as hard in the spring term as it did in the winter term the days of the purist will be one unending sting.
