A Gentleman's Haberdashery.

It's the natty little "fixings" that lend grace and elegance to the Summer man's apparel—nobby Shirts, Ties, pretty Hosiery, with possibly just a glimpse of dainty Underwear. To look and feel "Summery" is an easy matter for the man who trades here. Somehow this is a great store for Men's Furnishings. What's the secret? Variety? Yes. Quality? Yes. Price? Yes. And if we should tell you there isn't a more carefully selected stock in Barre you'd think it just ordinary store talk. Is it? Come in and be your own judge.

The Sunday Herald.

The prodigious strides recently made by The Boston Sunday Herald seem almost phenomenal even in these days of accepted progress. Not content with making a good paper, which The Herald has always been, nor resting for a time because it was a better paper than any other, it seems to be determined to set a pace which will preclude rivalry. Certainly no paper comes into this office which covers so wide a field so well, or which is so broad in the discussions of the day. No paper in the country boasts such an array of humorous talent, nor is there one which can approach The Herald in the matter of its illustrations. Without going into the details of The Herald's greatness, there is one feature which deserves unusual mention—the children's department. In no publication can there be found such a presentation. It is clean, pure and wholesome. It is bright without being repulsive, and interesting without being offensive. It appeals to the intellect of children rather than to their vision. Such a children's department should meet with the approval of parents everywhere. Surely The Herald is entitled to be called "New England's Greatest Newspaper."

Typesetting by Electricity.

M. d'Arsonval has exhibited to the Academy of Science at Paris an invention which does typesetting by telegraph, an electric current being made to perforate the characters on a moving band connected with a typesetting machine, says the New York World. It is asserted that this contrivance, which is the work of a Mr. Royal, will dispense with transcriptions altogether for press purposes.

Chalk in Water.

In a layer of sea water a mile square and 600 feet deep there are sixteen tons of chalk.

Preserved Fish.

Preserved fish are generally more economical as food than fresh fish. Thus salt cod furnishes 50 per cent more nourishment than does fresh cod.

Mineral Water.

Citric acid added to sea water precipitates the salt, making a harmless mineral water. Seven ounces of citric acid will supply a shipwrecked man with this marine lemonade for a week.

Sea Fowls' Eggs.

It is a strange fact that sea fowls' eggs are almost conical in form, so that they will only roll in a circle. As many of them are laid on the bare edges of high rocks this provision of nature prevents them from rolling off.

Ashanti.

Ashanti is one continuous forest, with small clearings, where native villages have been built.
