Body of Late Pontiff Lying in State

IN ST. PETER'S CHURCH

Palatine and Swiss Guards Have Post of Honor--Italian Soldiers Outside.

Rome, July 23.--At six o'clock this morning the doors of St. Peter's were thrown open and from that time until three o'clock this afternoon the general public passed through to take a last look at the remains of the late pontiff, Leo XIII.

The catafalque was so placed that the pontiff's feet were more than a yard behind the chapel's iron rail, so that it was impossible to kiss the sacred shoes or even to kneel.

At 12:45 the heat became so great that the crowd dwindled to a small number. The restriction upon entrance has been practically removed, and people passed in and out as they pleased.

All day in the choir chapel opposite the sacristy, the first of a nine days funeral service was celebrated about another catafalque upon which the pontiff's coffin stood, surmounted by a triple crown.

Mrs. Brownell is a native of Brattleboro, where her parents still reside and where she is well known. For several years she has suffered from consumption.

She has tried doctors and remedies from far and near but has gradually grown worse and for the past three months has been confined to her bed.

A week ago in answer to prayer Mrs. Brownell experienced a healing touch. She immediately arose from her bed, threw away her medicine and walked about the house and yard unassisted.

So thorough was the work of healing that Mrs. Brownell discharged her hired girl and has since attended personally to the duties of her household.

Got Decision Over Jimmy Briggs at Boston Last Evening.

Boston, July 22.--While Young Corbett, the champion feather weight, got the decision over Jimmy Briggs in their 10-round bout tonight before the Tammany club, the Boston boy gained considerable prestige by seeing the limit. It was the second time the two had met. Briggs used excellent ring judgment and kept away from Corbett's swings, and as a consequence Briggs was fresh at the finish.

For five rounds the bout was slow. Corbett simply stabbing his left but never got a chance as Briggs was ready to back away or duck.

The seventh was most violent, as Corbett at this point mixed the fight and endeavored to finish it. Briggs stood the gaff well. The remainder of the bout lacked interest.

ALLEGED DEBTS $500,000

Outstanding Contracts to Extent of $9,000,000--Small Creditors Sue Firm.

Boston, July 22.--Judge Brown of the United States Circuit Court today appointed William D. Lucey and Frank B. Smith, both of Worcester, receivers of Norcross Brothers Company, quarrymen and builders.

The appointment was made on application of Manchester & Hudson of Providence and the Wells & Newton Company of New York. Both are creditors, the claim of the former being $2,000, the latter $7,550.20.

The total indebtedness, as alleged, is $500,000. The company has outstanding contracts involving $9,000,000, of which $3,000,000 has been spent. To protect the interests in the contracts, the receivership was asked for.

In Boston the company is engaged in the construction of three or four buildings, including the machine shop and sawmill at the navy yard. The State Mutual Insurance building on Congress street was started some time ago and is nearly completed, but work has just begun on the Esau Mutual building on Milk street, next to the Old South building.

PLAN TO GET HARVESTERS.

Farmers Near Great Bend, Kan., Sent Women to Meet the Trains.

The wheat yield in Barton county, Kan., this year will be the largest ever known at Great Bend, and still there is lots of wheat which will be lost on account of the scarcity of hands, says the Kansas City Star.

In Barton county alone there are 200 hands needed. The harvest is half over. The demand is still greater up the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe branch in Rush, Ness and adjoining counties. Every day there are numbers of farmers from points up west who are at Great Bend to meet the trains and send what men they can get to their homes. Every day now means a big loss unless they can get men, and to them it is a desperate situation.

Several trains have been stopped at points west of Great Bend and the passengers offered big wages if they will only help harvest. Some farmers promise the men $2.50 and $3 a day, three meals with lunches in the field morning and afternoon and top this with the promise of giving the men all the beer they want. It is no uncommon sight to see women in the fields driving the header barges.

One plan pursued pretty successfully by a number of farmers near Great Bend is to have women representatives meet the trains and hire the hands. They have proved to be better than the men, and there are a dozen or more farmers in one locality who have full crews which were obtained for them by these women after they had practically failed in getting them themselves.

BUGLARY AT NORTHFIELD.

The Postoffice and a Meat Market Entered During the Night.

Northfield, July 22.--Sometime during the night the postoffice and C.S. Kimball's meat market were broken into by a burglar or burglars. Entrance to the post-office was gained through the transom over the rear door. The meat market was entered by the removal of slats on the windows in the front door.

About 1 o'clock this morning C. Lawrence Booth, who lives in the Mayo block over the postoffice, was disturbed by a racket and heard glass rattling, but thought it was caused by persons returning from the circus. The night operator went after the mail bags between 12 and 1 o'clock and everything seemed to be all right.

A brake key was the only weapon or trace of the burglars to be found. The cash register was removed from the meat market and was found near Chase & Roy's store. The sum of money left in the drawer last night was about 40 cents. The loss at the post office cannot be stated, as it is not known. Several letters were opened, mail was strewn about the floor, and the stamp drawers were rifled.

The boundary line of the park is in dispute and Mr. Carleton asks the council to take action on this as well as on the formal acceptance of the property.

Malmalson Pink, the New Flower.

In London orchids, roses and violets have given way to a variety of carnation that is so rich in texture and coloring that we would scarcely recognize our inexpensive "pink" in the new creation, says the New York Press. The new flower is called a Malmalson pink, and it is the result of grafting the ordinary flower with a peony. The effect is perfect, and for the most part these Malmalsons are a deep coral shade. There is a pretty story that a Paris florist discovered this pink in the gardens of Malmalson, the former house of Napoleon's wife, Josephine, and cut a slip from the imperial plant, but this is improbable, and the fable is attached principally to "boom" the Malmalson. The Malmalson is worn with all colors, and its peculiar shade seldom fails to adorn a woman.

Soda Water.

There is no soda in soda water. Every pint of soda water contains two and one-half pints of carbon dioxide, a gas. Therefore when you drink one pint of soda water you really drink three and one-half pints. This is why soda water is such a comfortable drink.
