Subscriptions: One year, $3; one month, 25 cts; single copy, 1 cent.

Members of the Publishers' Press.—The latest telegraphic news from all parts of the world are received by the Daily Times up to the hour of going to press.

Published Every Weekday Afternoon.

Entered at the postoffice at Barre as second class matter.

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 10, 1903.

The average daily circulation of the Barre Daily Times for the week ending Saturday was copies, the largest paid circulation of any daily paper in this section.

2,730

A GAIN OF 400

In the daily circulation of the Times since Jan. 1st is something no other Washington county daily can show.

The circulation statements of the Times can always be verified by anyone who so wishes. Press room, circulation books, paper bills and all that pertain to the circulation of the Times are open to the inspection of all. Is there any other Washington county daily that will show up in like manner?

ANOTHER ERUPTION.

The Burlington Clipper delivered itself of another bombastic diatribe last week on its pet lynching illusion, in which the Times was one of the objects of attack on account of the stand it has taken against the practice of murder by mob. Besides a vacuity as regards argument the article was chiefly noteworthy because of lack of dignity. In fact the article was puerile in its abuse. Because the opinions of the Times differ radically from those of the Burlington contemporary on the subject of lynching the latter characterizes the Times' conclusions as lacking "maturity" and without "proper understanding of things." If such is the case then the opinions of nine-tenths of the people of the United States are lacking in the same, for it is not beyond a conservative statement to say that not one-tenth of the people of this country look with favor upon lynching, or would suffer it for an instant. If the opinions of Justice David J. Brewer of the United States supreme court, of Prof. William James of Harvard university and of Theodore Roosevelt, president of the United States, are lacking in maturity or those persons do not have a proper understanding of things, then the Burlington Clipper is conferring an everlasting favor in acquainting the people with that fact.

President Roosevelt says: "The cornerstone of this republic, as of all free governments, is respect for and obedience to law. Where we permit the law to be defied or evaded, whether by rich man or by poor man, by black man or white, we are by just so much weakening the bonds of civilization and increasing the chances of its overthrow." Prof. James, a student of the human mind, declares the lynching spirit is "a profound social disease" which is "far more virulent than the cholera," and Justice Brewer speaks in as unmistakable terms of the debasing influences of the thing.

The Clipper in an impotent way rants and tears and works itself into a fine frenzy over the advocacy of lynching for the assaults of women, declaring that the opinions of such recognized men of broad and sane minds as these are not matured and do not show a grasp of the matter considered. Why, Mr. Clipper, don't you see the absurdity of your position? You set up your opinions against those of the three men mentioned and declare that theirs is of no consequence, while yours is the correct one. Oh, the self-satisfaction of egotism! But, Mr. Clipper, you have a right to your opinions, and there will be no suppression of them so long as you don't incite to riot.

There is not a crime more heinous than that for which the miserable wretches who perpetrate them are now sometimes hanged, burned, riddled with bullets or slowly tortured to death. The Times is free to allow that, and it sincerely looks forward to the time when a punishment adequate for the crime shall be meted out to the human brutes. But lynching, never! If that shall be allowed then we may as well give ourselves over entirely to anarchy. The Times realizes the gravity of the offence of which degenerates are often guilty and it does not attempt to make light of it. But to commit murder with a view to avenging the wrong or punishing the perpetrator of that act is not the solution, let alone the revolting nature of the crime of murder itself. Instead, provide a punishment that we now have in Vermont, and then let the courts take their course as expeditiously as possible allowing for a sense of decency. We submit for the consideration of the Burlington Clipper if that is not a more common sense, decorous and satisfactory course than to turn the accused man—he may be innocent—over to the hands of a frenzied, unthinking and, in a certain sense, insane mob to seek out its vengeance.

The selection of Barre as the headquarters for the National Quarrymen's Union emphasizes the fact that Barre is the great center of the granite quarrying, as well as cutting, industry.

C. A. Lang has assumed his duties as station agent for the Central Vermont Railway Co. at Randolph. Mr. Lang has been with the Central Vermont at the Montpelier office for 18 years, and for the past two and one-half years having charge of the station.

The residents of Berlin are making a fight against the establishment of a rural free delivery route from Montpelier into that town, as they believe it means they are to lose their daily stage and eventually their post office. When the new route was put in operation, many of the residents on the line refused to accept their mails, but insisted that it should go in the regular way, it having been carried before by the star route stage driver. This agent did not go after the mail that day as he supposed it had been discontinued, but a telegram from Washington notified the Montpelier postmaster that the star route had not been discontinued, so its service was resumed.

THE ROYAL BOX.

The dates for the czar's visit to Rome have been fixed for four days between Oct. 16 and 25.

The little Prince Edward of Wales takes kindly to the highland dress. On a recent Sunday he walked two miles, from Abercrombie castle to Crathie church, in kilts. The delight of the parishioners was great.

As a memento of his visit to the Benedictine monks at Monte Cassino last March Emperor William recently sent them his portrait in the uniform of the gardes du corps and also a set of the complete works of Frederick the Great.

Headache Cure.

For headache make the following solution: Mix a handful of salt in a quart of water, adding one ounce of spirits of hartshorn and half an ounce of camphorated spirits of wine. Soak a cloth with this and apply to the forehead, wetting it as it becomes dry.

September Solace.

The birds forsake the rustling tress. The leaves above are yellowing fast. The strawlike sweet and gentle breeze Now mutters like an infant's blast.

But what care we, though song birds fly From branches that grow bare and grim; Though zephyrs soft across the sky No longer bid the white clouds skim.

The bird that's broiling o'er the coals, The perfume glad that round him flows— These are the things that thrill our souls When autumn comes and summer goes. —Washington Star.

ALBANIAN PROVERBS.

Words are feminine; deeds masculine.
If you fear God you will not fear man.
The devil was not long in finding man.
You cannot have harmony without noise.
Words won't make the wheels of a mill go round.
A pig won't spare even the most beautiful fruit.
Fire, water and governments don't understand mercy.
If you follow a crow long enough you light on carrion.
If you don't obey your mother you'll obey your stepmother.
If you do not keep your tongue at rest it is often in contact with an aching tooth.

The Home of the Future.

"In time," says Professor H. Marton of the United States Naval academy, "talking machine disks will take the place of text books. Paper backed novels will disappear, and instead of reading printed books the literate will only have to put a disk in his machine and have the novel read to him in the living voice of its creator."
At evening, when the lamps are lit, Our home is one of peace; About the phonographs we sit And all our troubles cease. The whirling disk at mother's ear Is telling how to cook, And father's trying hard to hear "The Great Campaign of Crook!"
The baby turns on Mother Goose; The older sister sighs When Lady Clare, with no excuse, Through one whole chapter cries. The boys are hearing pirate scenes Of skull and bones and dirk; The younger girls have magazines That warble fancy work.
The melody comes: "Set on the stove And simmer half a day— The enemy's in yonder grove— His name is Dimple Gray. Alas, my lover loves me not! Embroider this in green; Now rake their sides with solid shot! With silk floss in between."
And "Mary had a little lamb— Peel with a kitchen knife— The gilding star of Amsterdam— I come, my own, my life! Wherever Crook took the command— The lamb was sure to go"— Our home life is sweet— And grand; The disks have made it so. —Chicago Tribune

We make laws and then laugh at them.—Galveston News.
The law is neither better nor worse than the people in whom its powers inhere.—Atlanta Constitution.

Laws that lie directly across the natural rights of men are quite sure to be walked over by men. The worst of it is that the habit of ignoring laws of this kind is apt to create a custom of disregarding other laws, even those based upon justice and necessity.—Galveston News.

Milan.
Milan is in summer the hottest city in Italy, the temperature not being influenced by the ocean or the mountain tains, as in Venice, Genoa, Naples, Palermo, Bologna, Florence and Rome. Consequently there are few villas near Milan, whose wealthy families spend their summers preferably along Como and the other Italian lakes.
