2,808

"Times, of Course"

That's what all the newsboys say when asked which Barre paper sells the best. There is no doubt about it.

Such a notoriety thrust upon the Granite City, and yet a murder is not the best thing on which to feed a reputation.

The 21st president of the United States and the only one to whom Vermont lays a claim was born 73 years ago yesterday—Chester A. Arthur.

The Christian Endeavorers from all over the state are with us today and will remain for three days. We extend a cordial greeting to these young people, with the hope that their stay in Barre will be both profitable and pleasant.

The fool, Peter Elliot, who tried to force an entrance into the White House yesterday is not worthy of as good a name as he bears, while the doorkeeper who did his duty although he had to give the fool a severe drubbing, deserves particular commendation for his action.

A single banquet given in Boston last evening in honor of the Ancients and Honourables of London is said to have cost $50,000, a good-sized fortune for most people. And still it is probable that the dinner did not digest any easier than it would if it hadn't cost $50 a plate. The Ancients and Honourables can be put down as good eaters if nothing else.

With 25,000 people in attendance last week, the Valley fair at Brattleboro seems not to have finished its usefulness yet. Where are those people who have been croaking over the alleged approaching demise of this long-established institution? One after another these agricultural fairs are figuratively lifting up their heads as if in ridicule of such an absurdity as their being on the wane.

The police officers of Burlington are running a domestic reform bureau in connection with their duties as guardians of the peace. On Saturday they released a man from jail provided he would promise to do certain things, chief among which were not to drink again, to use no tobacco, to stay with his wife and family evenings, to keep good company, to shun his former companions who drink, to get work and to do his best to keep it, to turn his wages over to his wife for the support of the family, to pay his fine and costs within three months and to take any remedy for the drink habit which his wife may propose. A pretty stiff combination of promises for any man to take his oath on, and one wonders when he reads that the subject of this domestic reform did not balk at the last provision. "Any remedy which his wife may propose," may cover a multitude of propositions both insane and insane, which an over-zealous woman might conjure. We shall be anxious to hear from this man later.

The Autumn Mist.
 Mother Earth is dying. All the bloom of youth has left her.
 Withered are her wrinkled cheeks, and dull her once bright eyes.
 Winter's coming on apace; of hope he has bereft her.
 And her voice is harsh with grief and hoarsely now she sighs.

Death, the bridegroom, waits for her, and she fears to meet him.
 Will he love her homely face once by beauty blighted?
 Hurriedly she takes a veil ere she goes to greet him.
 And the face of Mother Earth's enveloped in a mist!

Death looks on the form unknown, puzzled, hesitating.
 This is not the Earth he knew, this sweet, airy thing!
 So he passes by, and she patiently is waiting.
 Till she may renew her youth in joyous days of spring.

Britt is Idle.
 Jimmy Britt is idle and anxious to have something to do. He will in all probability be matched to fight some good man of his size by the Reliance club of San Francisco.

The change in fields will take place about the middle of November when four and a half years of successful pastorate in the Oxford church will be completed.

For the past two weeks the water in the Connecticut river has been steadily falling and at present it is the lowest it has been in years. In consequence the pulp mills and four of the paper machines of the International Paper company at Bellows Falls have been idle for the past week. On Sunday the canal gates were closed in order to allow the dam to fill, and as a result the river below the mills was almost dry, a man being able to wade across without difficulty. This sight has not been seen before even during the past several years in which the average height of the river has been steadily declining.

Sports of the Hour.

Miss Rhona Adair, England's Great Woman Golfer, Jeffries Criticised.

Miss Rhona Adair, the champion woman golfer of Great Britain, who is now visiting this country, is probably the greatest player of the old Scotch game, so far as women are concerned, that has ever lived. Winner of scores of tournaments of minor importance and holder of the championship of England, she has also captured four times the women's premiership of Ireland.

Miss Adair, who is an English woman, is a guest of Miss Frances E. Griscom of Philadelphia. Miss Griscom who formerly held the women's golf championship title of America, met Miss Adair on one of her trips abroad. Miss Adair is an attractive young woman, of comparatively slight build, although her work on the links evidences that she is not lacking physical strength.

Champion Jim Jeffries, who has drawn the color line and declines to fight McVey and Johnson, the colored giants of California, is now having his troubles with the sporting men of the Pacific coast. Jeffries, it will be remembered, didn't draw the line when Peter Jackson, then a wreck of his former self, asked for a match. He fought Jackson and of course whipped the black man in quick time. The California sporting men now ask Jeffries why he draws the color line on McVey and Johnson when he did not on Jackson. The big champion can hardly justify his course, and it looks as if the sports and newspaper writers will force him to fight.
 McVey since he knocked out "Denver Ed" Martin in a round is hot on Jeffries' trail. He has challenged him, and if Jeffries refuses to fight him he says he will claim the championship. Jeffries appears to have the worst of the color line argument. If he had never fought a colored man, there would be some justification in his color line argument.

What Is the Difference?
 Let Us Explain to You

The difference between our Underannels and the shapeless, skin-torturing sort you may buy elsewhere and pay more for. We insist on having Underwear that is knit in bolts and shrunken, afterwards cut to fit the human form and made with all flat silk-finished seams. Durable, warm, light, shapely, luxurious—this Underwear appeals to the intelligent buyer every time and, with the prices so moderate, why should one buy the old-fashioned knit-on-a-cylinder, stretched on a board sort, that goes back into its original straight cylinder shape the first time it is washed? Below we quote a few prices:

Ladies' Vests, 25c, 50c and up.
 Union Suits, $1.00, $1.25 and $1.50.
 Children's Vests, 15c, 25c and up.
