Mrs. M. F. Brown of Burlington celebrated the 90th anniversary of her birthday Friday. She is enjoying remarkably good health for one of her years.

It is estimated that 300 deer were killed in Vermont during the open season which closed Saturday night. This is the largest number killed since the law became operative.

O. M. Tinkham of Pomfret, paid White River Junction a visit Saturday, and in conversation concerning the governorship next year expressed a decided preference for the choice of the Hon. Zed S. Stanton of Roxbury.

Lieut.-Col. Henry R. Anderson, Artillery Corps, U. S. A., relinquished command of the post at Fort Ethan Allen and left for New York en route to Fort Screven, Tybee Island, Ga., where he will assume command of the district of Savannah, Col. Anderson has been stationed at Fort Ethan Allen since June 5.

John E. Harris, who has passed the summer at his home in Danville left for Washington Saturday to resume his duties in the Senate postoffice, going by the way of Boston. Mr. H. E. Gibson's Progressive Farmer, of which Mr. Harris is editor, which has been published in Groton, will hereafter be issued at Boston.

Mrs. Hannah Fellows of Passumpsic has just received a golden spoon from the national society of the Daughters of the American Revolution, as she is a daughter of a revolutionary soldier. She is nearly 97 years old and her father was Theodore Woodward. Mrs. Fellows is a member of St. John de Crevecoeur chapter, D. A. R., at St. Johnsbury.

Alex McPherson, a lumberman at Pigeon pond, near Plainfield, is nursing a wounded wrist. He was accidentally shot in the fleshy part of the right wrist by a man from New York who was extracting a cartridge from his rifle. The accident occurred in the camp. The New York man had been there for several days hunting for deer and in the evening was looking over his rifle when it was accidentally discharged.

Edgar Palmer, Jr., and John Murphy of New Haven, recently killed a fox in a peculiar manner. While they were working for W. A. Sherrill on his farm their attention was attracted by the crows making a disturbance in the pasture around a stone pile. On investigation they found that the crows had cornered a fox in a pile of stones and were endeavoring to get at him. They rushed to the scene and with stones and rocks succeeded in killing the fox.

It was learned Saturday that the retail liquor dealers of Rutland county are engaged at the present time in forming a branch of the National Retail Liquor Dealers Association and that the local organization will be completely formed within a few days. The preliminary work was done by G. B. Ebling of Boston, associate organizer of the national body who was here several days and paid visits to all of the Rutland dealers and also to other dealers in that county.

JINGLES AND JESTS.

Cheap Enough. "And yet radium at $100,000 an ounce is cheap." "How do you make that out?" "Easily. Nobody has an ounce to sell." -Cleveland Plain Dealer.

When He Got It. Here lies a young plunger from Perth Who wanted the whole blooming earth, But when he became Interred in the same It aroused in his bosom no mirth. -Midway Sentinel.

CHAMPION OF A RIVER.

Clubwoman Would Restore the Chicago to its Former Beauty.

"It was born of the wide western plain, reared in the freedom of the endless prairie and flowed peacefully and with dignity by the side of the aborigine, who admitted its beauty and let that beauty develop.

"It truly is a Cinderella of rivers - of noble birth, now made to drudge and slave in the dust and ashes of the city." No one may recognize it from the description, but the Chicago river is meant. The characterization is that of a Chicago clubwoman, Mrs. Kate S. Woods, says the Chicago Tribune.

The river has been abused. There is no doubt of that in Mrs. Woods' mind, for she declares the city has been ungrateful and has chided where the aborigine lauded.

"For almost thirty years after his coming," she says, "the white man found that the natural course of the river did not run counter to his. Soon, however, the new city became a harsh stepmother, and the Cinderella of rivers was sent to work in the dirt and soot of manufacturing hearth."

It is sad for even a river to have to work, Mrs. Woods contended. But worse than that is the ingratitude of Chicago. So appealing was the plea for the river and so harsh was the arraignment of the city that an auditor proposed the organization of a society for the prevention of cruelty to the Chicago river. The city is cruel, for:

"We never gave this Cinderella a chance to put on new or bright raiment. We never gave her a chance even to wash her face until the drainage canal went through, and that was merely for the sake of ourselves, not to enhance the beauty of the river.

"How good the river has been to all of us and how little we appreciate it! It is despised, neglected and overworked. It is used as a dump, a ditch and even as an open sewer. Men stop its current with big, cumbersome tunnels below and span it with unsightly bridges above; they stick ugly piles and piers in it; they make it mathematically straight and inartistic and then throw up their hands in astonishment, crying, 'How ugly, what an abomination!'"

"There is hope for the future," Mrs. Woods held. "Let us each be a fairy to bring Cinderella back to her own, the Cinderella which has drudged for us for seventy years."

JERRY SIMPSON OUTDONE.

A Kansas Statesman Discards Socks and Takes Red Hair as Issue.

Representative Victor Murdock, the newly elected member of congress from "Sockless" Jerry Simpson's district in Kansas, is attracting much attention at Washington, says the Chicago Inter Ocean.

Mr. Simpson is supposed to have gained many votes on the sockless issue, but Mr. Murdock made his campaign chiefly on the red hair issue.

Mr. Murdock's hair is very red. Prior to the holding of the district convention that nominated him for congress to succeed Mr. Long there was a big field of candidates, Murdock and one other having red hair. The other red haired candidate entered into an alliance with Murdock by which it was agreed that after the pre-convention campaign had progressed long enough to determine which red haired man was the more popular the losing candidate before the public should withdraw in favor of the other.

Murdock won. He told the people of Kansas from the stump that the red haired men were a considerable part of the population and that they should be represented in congress. He was nominated and elected.

The Falling of the Leaves. The summer days have been and gone; The flowers bloom no more. The birds have ceased their merry song And flown to faroff shore. Old ocean's waves have lost their charm; The summer girl has passed; The crows are all stored in the barn; Jack Frost approaches fast. October's winds a requiem sing. And Mother Nature grieves; The old year's life is ebbing fast Mid the falling of the leaves.

Vacation days long since are o'er; We've all returned to town, And mid the striving throng once more We struggle for renown. But often with the sun's last gleam, When daily tasks are done, Come visions of the mountain stream, Of the fishing rod and gun. And once again one sees the pines; Their glorious air he breathes. These memories come to all at times With the falling of the leaves. -L. V. Rodda in Pittsburg Dispatch.

THINGS THEATRICAL.

The Bostonians are to have a new opera, the title of which is "The Queen of Laughter."

Wilton Lackaye has left the Amelita Bingham company and is now in New York for rehearsals of "The Pit." Leoncavallo's opera, "Roland of Berlin," written by command of Emperor William, will be produced by the new year.

James O'Neil is to star this season in Conan Doyle's dramatization of the latter's own story, "Brigadier Gerald." The premier is to take place in November.

Mrs. Alexander Salvini, who retired from the stage at the time of her husband's death and who has been in private life for six years, is to return to the stage.

Lulu Glaser, now under the management of Fred C. Whitney, is to join Charles B. Dillingham's coterie of stars next season. She will be projected in a new lyric opera.

CURRENT COMMENT.

So far the assertion that members of congress are not satisfied with their salaries is merely a general rumor which no member of congress seems willing to father. -Chicago Tribune.

Look out for the word "newsperity." It was coined by accident the other day, but seems to fill a long left want and is likely to be adopted into the language. -Philadelphia Inquirer.

Just now business of the promoters is at a low ebb. After all is said and done good mortgages and the savings banks are the only safe investments for those of limited means. -Wilmington News.

Lord Alverstone has done one of those great services to righteousness and humanity which advance the moral standard of a man's time. The territory involved is trivial by the side of this momentous moral triumph shared by the representatives of the English speaking race on both sides. -Philadelphia Press.

GOWN GOSSIP.

No form of dress trimming is more popular than tucks.

Transparent black over white is immensely popular in evening and dinner gowns.

There is no doubt that violet, mauve and purple in the softest shades are the season's favorite colors.

Nothing interferes with the vogue of lace, and the dyed laces seem as much in evidence on the new fall gowns as they did in the spring and summer.

The handsomest gowns are hand-made, or at least so covered with hand work as to give the impression of having been literally built up with needle-work.

Hats are being made of materials used in street gowns. These are usually faced with velvet of the same color. Zibelines and all kinds of shaggy and fuzzy materials are used. The trimming is slight, wings, birds or buckles being employed. -New York Post.

The Mail's Delay.

On Sept. 29, 1890, a postal card was posted in Birmingham, England, correctly addressed to a Keawick resident. It was safely delivered on Aug. 13, 1903, having been nearly thirteen years on the way. The postmarks were distinct: "Birmingham, Sept. 29, 1890," and Keawick, Aug. 13, 1903."

The Vatican.

The Vatican is the largest palace in the world, and within its inclosure is a park of thirteen acres.

Equal Distribution of Space!

Now Listen to This!

A perfect Shoe should contain not a single particle of space more than necessary, otherwise the Shoe becomes large and ungainly. The Dorothy Dodd Shoe leaves more space for the foot than any other Shoe we know of, yet the Shoe itself is absolutely smaller than the ordinary Shoe. That is because it equally distributes space.
