COPPERS FOR A LICENSE.

St. Louis Bride's Use For Gift of One Hundred Pennies.

"Here are 100 bright new pennies, Mr. License Clerk," said Miss Sophie H. Morse of St. Louis, who applied, with her sweetheart, William B. King of the same city, for a license to wed at the city hall the other day, says the Chicago Inter Ocean.

License Clerk McDermott held his hat while the small coins jingled from the hands of the bride to be.

"You haven't got any smaller change, have you?" he asked when Miss Morse, with a sigh of relief, unburdened herself of the seeming wealth.

"No, that's the smallest we have," answered Miss Morse, "and the change comes in really handy too. Our friends collected the pennies and made us promise to take out our license with them. They think it's a good joke on us, but I wish they would collect several thousand of them, for there are a great many things needed to begin housekeeping on, don't you know, and it takes the pennies to get them too."

THE NOISY FOURTH.

It is doubtful if even a grand public pyrotechnic display is going to wean little Johnny from his Fourth of July yearning to figure in the casualty reports.—Chicago News.

The announcement that firecrackers have become a nuisance in New York thus early in the season may encourage the youth of other cities to begin their exploding and burning or induce the officers of the law to enforce the prohibition of explosives, the former being the more probable.—Hartford Times.

Setting Cattle at Sight.
The liking for a gamble, though the odds are all against them, seems inveterate in English farmers. They prefer, when selling fat cattle, to pit their experience against the butcher and to sell at sight instead of by weight.
