ADDITION TO A WAR SONG.

"Tenting on the Old Camp Ground" Brought Up to Date.

Thousands of people have been singing for more than forty years "Tenting on the Old Camp Ground" and have been stirred by its pathos and suggestion. So popular has the song become that the author, Walter Kittredge, has added a new verse which brings the song to date, says a Boston dispatch. This verse was written under conditions which are interesting. Going to Boston from his home in Reed's Ferry, N. H., to attend the G. A. R. encampment, he called on his publishers. They informed him that in order to obtain a renewal of his famous war song's copyright a verse should be added.
Mr. Kittredge said he would think about it. He went over to the Common, and beneath the elms he was caught up by the particular music which presides over song and in ten minutes returned to the publishers with the extra verse, written on the back of an old envelope. It reads:
The war is over on the old camp ground,
After the fight of years
The grass is growing where the blood
Was shed for freedom's cause.

The war is over on the old camp ground,
After the fight of years
The grass is growing where the blood
Was shed for freedom's cause.
