THREE MENTIONED FOR CITY JUDGE

A. G. Fay, F. S. Williams and H. W. Scott Are the Ones—Judge Fay's Term Expires Very Soon.

The term of office of the city judge of Barre closes this fall and Gov.-Elect C. J. Bell will make his appointment soon for the term of two years. Judge Fay's term of office expires in November. For the position there are three men whose names have been mentioned in connection with the position. They are, Judge A. G. Fay, to succeed himself, Frank S. Williams and H. W. Scott. All three have their supporters in this city who are lending their influence to their aid.

The three are well known lawyers. Judge Fay has had considerable experience in the position, having held the office two terms, or four years. Frank S. Williams and H. W. Scott are both younger men. The former is not making an active canvass for the position, but has told the friends who have been to him that he would be pleased to accept an appointment if the majority of the bar members in this city wish him to have it.

Mr. Williams has for two terms performed the duties of city grand juror, to which he was appointed. He was also appointed and confirmed again, but did not qualify.

H. W. Scott, the third one mentioned, has served as justice of the peace for ten years and has been a grand juror during the most of the time since he was admitted to the bar nine years ago. He has had considerable experience in court work.

It is likely that a meeting of the city bar will be called to decide whom to support. There are seventeen lawyers in the city.

COL. ESTEY'S STATEMENT.

Explains Why Vermont Regiment Didn't Participate in Last Parade.

Col. J. Gray Estey, commanding the Vermont Regiment at Manassas, has made the following statement regarding the alleged refusal of the regiment to participate in the final review: "The facts in regard to the regiment not taking part in the review are these: After four days of the very hardest kind of marching in the last day of which we did over 23 miles there were so many sore and blistered feet that I considered it unwise to take the regiment on another sixteen mile march to take part in a review for show. We were not there for show and no possible good could have been done by inflicting that extra hardship. I took the whole responsibility. The men would have gone till they dropped if I had so directed but I am very glad I had sense enough not to do so."

"WERE WILLING TO GO."

But Officers of Vermont Regiment Thought Men Shouldn't Take the March.

Capt. Woodbury of Co. M, Burlington, says that an entirely wrong impression had gone abroad in regard to the army manoeuvre situation and the regiment wishes to correct it. "In the first place," Capt. Woodbury said, "No regiment was under orders to attend the parade, and as a matter of fact scarcely 50 per cent did participate in it. Colonel Estey and the commanding officers of each troop discussed the situation and decided that the men were in no shape to march the eight miles from camp to Wellington, the same distance back and probably four or five during the parade. "The men were willing to go, and said so, but we wouldn't allow them to, especially when it was not really necessary."
