A GREAT HOISTING OPERATION.

The large columns which the architects saw fit to place in the Cathedral of St. John the Divine at New York City, invited a great deal of comment by architects, engineers, quarry owners and granite manufacturers at the time when they were being cut at Vinal Haven, Maine, by the Bodwell Granite Co., mention of which has been made in earlier issues of this Journal. They are now exciting further comment on account of the difficulty of raising and placing such heavy pieces of granite, and many people have gone to the location of the cathedral to see this feat accomplished. James Ross, of Barre, Vt., and Boston, Mass., have the sub-contract for the erection of these enormous columns, and the work is under direction of one of their superintendents, W. F. Howland. The derrick hoisting arrangements for the handling of this proposition consists of two enormous masts of Washington fir, well guyed by wire ropes and tied together at the top with timbers, leaving sufficient space for the column to be swung in between. These masts are ninety-six feet long and have sufficient weight or thickness that a factor of safety greater than ten is allowed for their strength when lifting the heaviest section of the column, which is ninety tons. These timbers were brought overland from Seattle. Two hoisting derricks were used for lifting the weight and so connected up that even though there might be a difference of speed the strain on each wire rope which carried the load would be the same. The method of gripping the larger columns and attaching the tackle blocks was to leave a three-inch rim of granite on the top of the column. Heavy timbers were bolted beneath this and the tackle blocks attached to this. In addition to this "Lewis" was placed in the center of the top of the column to which a single block was attached. Three more blocks were attached by wire to the yoke. The column was guided on its way upward by means of a rope around the bottom which was connected with a winch so that it was under control all the time. The columns were raised and placed without difficulty. -Rock Products.

POSITIVE PROOF.

Should Convince The Greatest Sceptic In Barre. Because it's the evidence of a Barre citizen. Testimony easily investigated. The strongest endorsement of merit. The best proof of it. Read it: Geo. L. Cummings, engineer on the Montpelier & Wells River Railroad, residence 7 Prospect Street, Barre, says: "What I stated first in the month of February, 1897, about Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at E. A. Drown's, stopping continual pains across my back was absolutely true. It was often so bad that at times I was unable to do my work, and so severe at night that I was so lame and sore I could scarcely lie comfortably in any position and as if that were not sufficient to aggravate the ordinary mortal there was added to it trouble with the Kidney secretions, particularly irregularity. The jarring of the train, if not the direct cause of the kidney complaint, certainly aggravated it, and Doan's Kidney Pills cured me of a very acute attack. I was only too pleased to make it known. Since that Mrs. Cummings has bought Doan's Kidney Pills and used them. They certainly brought her relief. I have more than one friend who is thankful for the knowledge he has gained about Doan's Kidney Pills." For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents per box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for United States. Remember the name-Doan's-and take no other.
