MR. PERRIN SURPRISED.

Patron of Perrin Hill Is Called on by Fifty of His Friends.

About fifty of the residents of that part of the city known as Perrin Hill, and lying above Elm street extension, called on Fred Perrin at his home on the Perrin farm last evening, and enjoyed the surprise which they gave him fully as much as Mr. Perrin himself. A programme consisting of vocal and instrumental music was rendered by Nellie Keener, Evelyn Wilson, Robert Jones and Wilton Smith. A poem written for the occasion by Mrs. W. R. Davenport, was read by Mrs. Charles Longden, after which refreshments were served.

Before leaving, John Wilson, Sr., in behalf of those present, presented Mr. Perrin with an elegant clock.

Nearly all of those present were people who have purchased lots of Mr. Perrin, and for whom the latter has erected dwellings.

The poem was as follows:
We come with hearts aglow tonight,
And bring our gifts, so pure and bright,
Of friendship to our neighbors who
In years ago have proved us true.

In looking back a half a score
Of years, we see but three or four
Neat cottages, where now a ville
Nestles in pride upon the Hill.

A farm composed the country round,
Of pasture and of tillage ground;
And kine grazed peacefully all the day
On our back gardens o'er the way.

But on this farm there lived a man,
Who hit upon the novel plan
Of booming Barre, up this way,
And that is why we're here today.

He built our homes, and said that we Could pay in years one, two or three;
He simply asks, this farmer man,
That we're to do the best we can.

And sometimes, when the times are bad,
Or sickness in our homes we've had,
He waits for us to gain our feet,
And smiles the same when'er we meet.

We have no cause to fear for him,
That gay saloons will tempt him in,
He stands for justice, truth and right,
And fights the stuff with all his might.

His wife who, eight and twenty years,
Has shared his hopes and joys and tears,
Is still the strength of his right arm,
In helping him upon the farm.

They sought and found the risen Lord,
And anchored on his blessed Word,
And he has sent abundant store,
And given blessings more and more.

Of neighbors they have proved the best,
And, in our eager, earnest quest
To think of something we could do
To show appreciation true,

We each have thought it might be wise
To make a bit of a surprise,
And gather for a little chat
On future plans, for this and that.

And so we've come; we've brought our love,
And prayers for blessings from above,
We've also brought a token small,
It comes so freely from us all.

To represent not wealth nor gold
Nor treasures from the masters old,
But just one little flower of light,
Called Friendship, ever true and bright.

And when we're gone we'll leave behind
A host of prayers and wishes kind,
That Friendship's flowers, forever sweet,
May bloom in fragrance 'round their feet.

THE VILES ACCIDENT.

About $1,000 Damage Done at Middlesex Yesterday.

The accident at the Viles power house in Middlesex which caused the shutdown yesterday happened soon after the machinery was started. Power is furnished both by water and steam. In some manner, not fully understood, the main driving pulley of the water wheel and the driving wheel of the counter shaft were roused, causing the wreckage to fly in all directions. Many pieces weighing several hundred pounds each were driven through the roof to a distance of several hundred feet. These pulleys were sixteen inches in diameter and weighed about 2,000 pounds each. No one was seriously injured, although three men, Albert Taplin, E. A. East, and Mr. Murphy were in the building.

It is thought possible that the accident may have been caused by the fact of the water and steam did not drive the machinery at the same speed. The damage will amount to about $1,000.
