Members of the Publishers' Press.—The latest telegraphic news from all parts of the world are received by the Daily Times up to the hour of going to press.
Frank E. Linsley, Publisher.

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 17, 1900.

The average daily circulation of the Barre Daily Times for the week ending Saturday was copies, the largest paid circulation of any daily paper in this section.

3,828

Hyde is not trying to conceal anything, apparently.

Courtships conducted by the aid of weapons are not recommended as in good form or as tending to permanency of affection.

The types caused The Times to state yesterday that Supreme court has cleared up 62 cases at this "setting." We extend apologies to all concerned, including the hen.

Imagine the expansive smile which must have o'erspread the face of Congressman Foster when he attended that complimentary banquet in Burlington the other evening. He can't be blamed either, for it was a great compliment.

A PROGRESSIVE VERMONT TOWN.

There is one town on the Winooski river which is marked for prosperity, unless all signs fail. That is Waterbury. Admirably situated, with many main line trains thundering through its very midst every twenty-four hours, with an electric feeding line connecting with territory just north, it affords a splendid field for industrial operation and growth. And it is not at all surprising that manufacturing concerns are picking up the opportunity. Already there is the largest state institution located in Waterbury. A little is done in the granite cutting line as an adjunct, more or less, to the larger industry in Barre. Several quite large manufacturing concerns are now giving employment to a considerable number of workers, and they appear to be doing well. Very recently a large muslin underwear company has decided to start a factory in the same place, the branch being one of a trio operated by the company, each one employing approximately two hundred workers. The addition of concerns of such importance will result in the ingathering of a large number of people to fill the places in the factories, thereby adding a material impetus to the mercantile interests of the town and giving a considerable impetus to the population, as well. The business men of Waterbury are given the credit for attracting the new industries, and if the credit is rightly placed, it becomes necessary to add one more thing to the advantages of Waterbury, a loyal and aggressive coterie of business men. And, indeed, a town is doubly blessed if it has such men. Their efforts make a pleasing contrast to the apathy which reigns in some other Vermont towns, and, if persisted in, will make Waterbury-on-the-Winooski one of the large manufacturing centers of the state.

THE AUTOMOBILE BUGABOO.

The editor of the Middlebury Register is a bitter antagonist of the automobile. He is also a breeder of fine Morgan horses. The latter probably accounts for the former. As a horse breeder he has few equals in the state of Vermont. As an antagonist of the motor-car, he has no close imitator, for few people will allow themselves to be so carried away with self-violence over a matter. There is undoubtedly cause for a part of the criticism which he bestows on everything on wheels and not propelled by horse power, but the wholesale denunciation which he poured out last week on two editors who thought to defend the auto hurts rather than helps his cause. The proprietor of the Vergennes Enterprise gets his peace of mind disturbed by the following jab: "The above (a criticism of the Register's segregation scheme) is from the Vergennes Enterprise, the proprietor of which, as we are informed, owns an automobile. We should advise him to sell his automobile, when he will find himself much more in accord with the readers of his paper. The vast majority of the citizens of Vermont use another method of travel."

The editorial writer of the Rutland News gets a stab under the fifth rib when he dares present a word for the despised machine, in the following: "We would like to know what this is supposed to represent! It is easy enough to see what it does not represent, or rather most grossly misrepresents—the people of Vermont!" Then the javelin-hurler of the Middlebury contemporary keeps it up by charging the Rutland man with straddling, and intimates that he is lacking in intelligence. Through all this rallery it is difficult to see just what The Register man is driving at, but we suspect that he is in a project to bait the automobile entirely off the roads of the state.

CURRENT COMMENT.

Compared with the recent fight in New York, the mayoralty contest in Boston is a bantam set-to.—St. Albans Messenger.

One Proven Virtue.

Common fairness compels us to admit that the life insurance president has proved himself, beyond cavil, a good father, a kindly uncle and a great grandfather.—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

Still Thinking of Spoils.

The Democrats always carry Ohio when it does them no good. The next legislature will not elect a United States senator, and Ohio will not be debatable ground in the national campaign year 1908.—Omaha Bee.

The Wall Street speculator has more gall than a Ward 8 politician. After playing the stocks until he's short or broke, he has the face to turn to the secretary of the treasury and say: "It's up to you, old man! What are you going to do for me? Oh, hang your deficit! Think of mine!"—Boston Transcript.

Moran's Opportunity.

Funny, isn't it, how quickly the Boston police board saw the necessity of doing things, when John B. Moran's election became an assured fact. Moran has an opportunity to achieve fame like unto that won by Governor Folk of Missouri, when the latter was elected prosecuting attorney of St. Louis. Will it be a case of history repeating itself?—Gloucester Times.

JINGLES AND JESTS.

Playing Doctor.

Billy—Gentlemen, before we begin to operate, you will hold the patient's hands and feet, and I'll get that 4 cents out of his right-hand pocket.—Life.

Apprehensive.

"Do you think the Panama Canal will be a good thing?"
"I don't know," answered Mr. Dustin Stax. "There is so much prejudice against graft that good things are getting scarcer every year."—Washington Star.

TO HULLABALOO.

Laugh all you want to!
What do I care?
Climb on my back now,
Hands in my hair!
You're just a baby,
I am your dad.
Down goes my book now
Laugh and be glad!
Put your foot over,
'Tother one, too;
You're on my shoulders, now,
Hullabaloo!

You on my shoulders,
Pulling my ears,
This way and that way,
Dear, till the tears
Rise all unbidden;
But what do I care?
What are my ears for?
What is my hair?
But for the clinging,
Baby, of you?
Now for a gallop to Hullabaloo!

Hang on, now! Hang on!
Giddyap and go!
Watch the gas-brackets!
Oh, baby, bend low!
Out in the yard,
Out, out and away!
Get out of the track!
Of a baby at play!
Oh, glad is the going
With blossoms and dew;
The way of our romping to Hullabaloo! —Houston Post.

HE BARS FOOT BALL FROM HIS SCHOOL

Burlington High School Principal Says That the Game in Present Condition Is Too Brutal.

Burlington, Nov. 17.—"Burlington high school is through with the game of football as it is played at present," said Professor Isaac Thomas, principal of the school, yesterday afternoon. Principal Thomas went on to say:

"The game as played at present is brutal and the fact that brute strength is often openly used by one team to disable some of the best players of the opposing side is an element of the game which proves this statement. It is my firm belief that the game as played at present is nearing the end of its popularity, as the recent agitation for its modification goes to prove, and the game must be modified if it is to last."

"As for the English style of play I do not believe we Americans will ever generally substitute it for our own game. The most practical way to do away with present evils of the game is, I believe, not to abolish the game entirely, for football presents fine opportunities for good sport, but to modify the game by making compulsory more open play."

"The local high school team this year in its last game with St. Albans high school, had two of its players injured. The whole game was more an exhibition of brute force than skillful football, with the result that injuries kept the local team from completing its season. For this and other reasons Professor Thomas says:

"There will be no football in the school next year unless the game is modified. I believe that the surest way to get the colleges to modify the game is for the preparatory schools generally to prohibit the playing of the game by their students."

THEIR LAST GAME.

Vermont Team Will Line Up Against Brown Tomorrow.

Burlington, Nov. 17.—The University of Vermont foot ball eleven left this noon for Providence, R. I., where tomorrow they will play their last game of the season with the strong Brown university team.

These are the men that were taken on the trip: Woodward, r. h. b.; Smith, f. b.; Watkins, l. h. b.; Gerrish, q. b.; R. D. Skinner, tackle; R. B. Skinner, centre; Frank, guard; Hughes, guard; Reed, substitute guard; Ferrin, end; Dodge, substitute end; Grow, tackle; Hall, substitute quarterback; Darling, end; Farrand, substitute tackle; Couch Drake, Dr. Clendinning and Manager Vallau. Although the team did not practice yesterday, the men are in the pink of condition.

WITHOUT A LICENSE.

John E. White of Burlington is Charged With Peddling.

St. Albans, Nov. 17.—The arrest in Swanton yesterday of John E. White, one of the traveling representatives of E. E. Clark & Co., of Burlington, charged with peddling without a license, created quite a little stir in legal circles here, and raises some interesting questions of law which will be decided when the case comes to trial at the March term, 1900.

A Card.

The committee of the Ladies' Union of the Universalist church wish to thank all those who helped to make their fair so successful in every way. We especially thank the ladies in charge of the booths and those who got up the supper; also the church choir and Gilbertson's orchestra, the gentlemen who gave the minstrel entertainment and the seminary students, and all others who assisted in any way.

"GREAT OAKS FROM LITTLE ACORNS GROW."

"In saving money many persons any they can save so little that it is not worth while to save at all. If you can save but little you ought to be the more anxious to save, and if you persevere you will presently be surprised at the amount of your savings. Many a millionaire has said that the first thousand dollars was the hardest part of his fortune to get. You are not likely to be millionaires, but it is possible for many of you who are not doing so to save very considerable amounts, which, if safely invested, will work for you day and night, and will add to your comfort, your self-respect, and especially give you the feeling of security against illness or loss of position."—Ladies' Home Journal for September.
