The Barre Times can give a handicap to any newspaper in the state and then leave it behind the distance pole in the matter of wrestling with Italian nomenclature. There is a glib smoothness and certainty quite inspiring in the way the lively granite town newspaper handles the involved and apostrophized names of its foreign born clientele. Why not open a correspondence school in name spelling, neighbor, for the benefit of editors of just our and more self satisfied daily contemporaries? —Wilmington Times.

"The Two Sisters", by Denman Thompson

Denman Thompson's admirable play entitled "The Two Sisters" will be presented at the Hale's Theatre on Monday evening, the 4th inst. It is full of good things for old and young. Fun is combined with instruction, and there are a dozen laughs for every sigh. No parent could devise a more effective or impressive illustration by which to guide their sons and daughters along the rough uneven pathway of life than is forcibly and exquisitely told in "The Two Sisters." The specialties on the "Roof Tops" of New York afford up-to-date amusement while the excellent story of the play and the capable company and elaborate scenic effects make a complete and enjoyable evening. "The Old Homestead" by the same author affords in advance an idea of this companion play. There should be a crowded audience and a very large advance sale.

A SAD FEATURE.

Woman Drunk and Three Children Ill With the Measles.

St. Albans, Nov. 29.—One of the sad features of the day yesterday was the arraignment before Justice Kearney of Mrs. Mary Scott of Swanton, who was charitably picked up hopelessly drunk by officers the night before. Mrs. Scott pleaded guilty and was fined the usual $5 and costs or ten days. She told a pitiful story of six children at home, three of them ill with the measles, while she has to go out to work. Upon consideration of the extenuating circumstances the judge suspended the execution of the mittimus and with a kindly warning sent her home to the little ones.
