

TWENTIETH ANNIVERSARY SALE

Closing time yesterday saw our stocks decidedly "up set." We tried hard to keep them straight and wait on trade, but to try was the best we could do. This is a natural result of the remarkable offerings of good goods at such reduced prices.

Wherever we have found small lots of goods we have ruthlessly clipped the prices and we are again ready for as busy days as the last three days have been.

SPORTING NOTES.

Shoahoeing is becoming a popular sport in both east and west.

Tommy Ryan, the once great middle-weight boxer, says he is not a "has been," and that he wants to fight "Philadelphia Jack" O'Brien.

Westworth, 2:04 1/2, the champion trotting gelding of 1905, will receive his early preparation for next season at Granite State park, Dover, N. H.

G. F. Holland, Bloomington, Ind., recently purchased the bay trotting mare, Jane Blanchard, 2:27 1/2, by Pegasus, 2:30, dam Cearina, by Onward, 2:25 1/2.

Danny Maher, the greatest living jockey, says he will retire next summer. He wants to win the English Derby once more. He has won it twice.

SMITTEN RUSSIA.

Reaction, revolution and ruin seem to be the three fatal "R's" of Russia's future.—Baltimore American.

The weakness of the revolutionary movement in Russia appears to be that thus far the loyalty of the army has not been undermined.—Boston Herald.

The czar is realizing what it means for a government to depend on the loyalty of its troops instead of on the loyalty of its citizenship.—Washington Star.

The impending conflict between the Russian autocracy and the proletariat has been described as "the final struggle." But that depends. If the people win the contest will be final, but if the Romanoffs win the conclusive fight will come later.—Kansas City Star.

Manstrous Breeches.

The breeches worn during the reign of Francis I, were often two and a half yards in circumference at the hips and stuffed with bran or sawdust.

Cranberries.

Cranberries used to be called cranberries, because it was thought that the blossoms before they opened fully resembled the neck, head and bill of a crane. By dropping the "e" we get the berries as we know them.

A team driven by a man named Marston met with a mishap at the corner of Prok and Main streets yesterday afternoon. The team was coming down Brook street at a good rate of speed and as it turned the corner to go up Main street the driver did not slow down. The horse started to run, but collided with a telephone post and cleared itself from the sleigh, and then continued up Main and Washington streets and down Patterson street, being finally caught on Ayers street.
