This is the steel that will not break at the waist line

The Greenport, N. Y., Watchman, has the following item of a well-known Barre boy: "It will no doubt be a surprise to Greenport generally to know that Mr. Albert O. Smith, the civil engineer and surveyor, who came here some months ago and opened an office in the Peoples' National Bank building, has decided to move to Port Jefferson so as to be more centrally located for a large portion of his work. He may arrange to come here, however, for any work in his line. Mr. Smith has associated with him, Surveyor F. A. Hawkins, of Port Jefferson, a surveyor of much patronage, but each will have his own office. Greenport loses a good young citizen and Port Jefferson makes a substantial gain."
