The Times' Daily Short Story.

To Save Her Good Name

Not long after I began to practice law I was assigned by the court to defend a man for having entered a rich man's house and stolen a lady's watch. The moment I laid eyes on him I was astonished. He was not only well dressed, but bore the marks of a born gentleman. The name he gave was Alfred Stark, but I did not suppose that was his real name. I took him aside to interview him as to the line of defense, and to my further surprise he told me there was to be no defense. He intended to plead guilty—that is, unless I saw some technicality by which he might go free without entering upon a trial. I saw none; the man pleaded guilty and was sent to the penitentiary for ten years. It was about five years later, when I had achieved some success in my profession, that a card was handed me at my office bearing the name of Mrs. Clarence T. Bostwick. When the visitor was shown into my private office I saw a young woman dressed in mourning and wearing a widow's cap. She could not have been more than twenty-five years old, and, though still possessing beauty, it had been unimpaired by suffering. When we were alone she asked me: "Do you remember a man you were appointed some years ago to defend on a charge of entering a gentleman's house and stealing a lady's watch?" "Perfectly."

FAIRBANKS IN CONCORD

Crowds Throng New Hampshire Capital

ADDRESS AT STATE FAIR

By the Vice President—Welcome Extended by Governor McLane—Many Other Prominent Men Among the Guests.

Concord, N. H., Sept. 13.—Thronging to the state capital to greet the vice president of the United States, thousands of residents of all sections of New Hampshire came here on regular and special trains. The occasion of the visit of Vice President Charles W. Fairbanks to this city was governor's day at the state fair. For several years the fair management has secured distinguished speakers for governor's day, and in 1902 its special guest was President Roosevelt. Vice President Fairbanks arrived in Boston Tuesday evening and spent the night in that city, after having been met by a delegation from Concord, who went there to escort him into New Hampshire. He reached this city at 12:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and all arrangements were completed for his being met by Governor John McLane, the members of the New Hampshire delegation in congress, and other prominent citizens, and escorted to the fair grounds, some distance from the center of the city. The programme at the grounds yesterday afternoon included an address of welcome by former Governor Nelson J. Batehelder, president of the state fair association, in behalf of the management; a welcome to the state by Governor McLane and a response by Vice President Fairbanks.

A Woman's Back

Has many aches and pains caused by weakness and falling, or other displacement, of the pelvic organs. Other symptoms of female weakness are frequent headache, dizzying, imaginary specks or dark spots floating before the eyes, gnawing sensation in stomach, dragging or bearing down in lower abdominal pelvic region, disagreeable drains from pelvic organs, faint spells with general weakness.

Many considerable number of the above symptoms are present there is no remedy that will give quicker relief or a more permanent cure than Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It has a record of over forty years of cures. It is the most potent invigorating tonic and strengthening medicine known to medical science. It is made of the direct extracts of native medicinal roots found in our forests and contains not a drop of alcohol or harmful or habit-forming drugs. Its ingredients are all printed on the bottle-wrapper and attested under oath as correct.

Every ingredient entering into "Favorite Prescription" has the written endorsement of the most eminent medical writers of all the several schools of practice—more valuable than any amount of non-professional testimonials—though the latter are not lacking, having been contributed abundantly by grateful patients in numbers to exceed the endorsements given to any other medicine extant for the cure of woman's ills.

You cannot afford to accept any medicine of unknown composition as a substitute for this well proven remedy or know your own state on the article called for. Your interest in regaining health is paramount to any selfish interest of his and it is an insult to your intelligence for him to try to palm off upon you a substitute. You know what you want and it is his business to supply the article called for.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are the original "Little Liver Pills" first put up by old Dr. Pierce over forty years ago, much imitated but never equalled. Little sugar-coated granules—easy to take as candy.

MONUMENT ERECTED ON HISTORIC SPOT

A. Brattleboro, Where Vermont Civil War Troops Mustered—Gov. Bell and Congressman Haskins Present.

Brattleboro, Sept. 13.—The dedication yesterday of the memorial marker erected by the patriotic societies of Brattleboro and by citizens in other parts of the state at the spot where thousands of Vermont troops were mustered into service during the Civil War was an event of historical significance, and it revived hallowed memories in the minds of the large number of veterans who had gathered not only to participate in this service, but to attend the annual reunion of the Vermont Veterans' Association. The dignity of the occasion was increased by the presence of Gov. C. J. Bell and members of his staff.

The monument stands on the Valley Forge grounds, which, during the war, was Camp Governor Holbrook. It is a block of granite eight and a half feet high and weighing about five tons. On one side are two bronze figures, one representing a soldier being mustered out, the other representing a soldier being mustered out. On the other side is a bronze tablet with the inscription: "Upon this ground during the war for the Union, from 1862-63, ten thousand two hundred volunteers, survivors of the great struggle, were successfully mustered out. In commemoration of their patriotic devotion this monument was erected by citizens of Vermont A. D. 1906."

Dr. Henry D. Hinton was president of the day, and after an invocation and music made a brief address of welcome. The memorial was unveiled by Mrs. Margaret E. Root, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Root. A file and drum salute was given and the First Regiment band led the way to the grand stand. The congressman, Kittiwidge Haskins, delivered the dedicatory address, which contained much interesting data.

Gov. Frederick Holbrook sent a message of an historical nature, which was read by James Fish Hooker, and a quartette then sang "Teating on the Old Camp Ground." Gov. Charles J. Bell was in attendance, and he was followed by veterans who gave brief camp fire reminiscences.

THE WRITERS. John Morley began his career as a London journalist by writing literary reviews. Bjornstjerne Bjornson, the Scandinavian author, began his literary career by writing hymns. At first it was intended that he should become a farmer. Oddly enough, his favorite outdoor recreation is digging.

The daughter of the late Lord Lytton (Owen Meredith), the poet, has edited his "Letters, Personal and Literary," and the work is to be published soon in two volumes. This Lady Betty Lytton is said to have inherited her father's literary gifts.

Lord Ellesmere of England has been justly styled a many-sided peer. He writes novels and formerly used the pen name of Charles Granville. He shoots, plays cricket and is well known in racing circles. He owns Hampton, one of three Derby winners, and has never made a bet on a race.

Not Father, but Mother. "Really, now," said Mrs. Goodard, "you're a runaway, aren't you?" "Yes'm," replied the youthful tramp caudally. "You see, me mother died, and pop married agin. I made up me mind to skip, and so I ran an' ran till I was near dead, ay."

"Simply couldn't go a step farther, eh?" "No'm. It was the stepmother I couldn't go."—Philadelphia Press.

What Flatters Them Most. In her trim little bathing suit she sat on the white sand. "I adore intelligence," she cried. "So do I," said he. "All the same, though, beauty and intellect never go together."

"And do you think me intellectual?" she faltered. "No," he confessed frankly. "With a faint flush she murmured: 'Flatterer!'—New York Press.

TO KILL THE KAISER

Trio of Anarchists Taken At Breslau

AFTER DESPERATE BATTLE

Planned to Hurt Bomb at Emperor William While He Was Riding in an Automobile—The Three Had Been Watched.

New York, Sept. 13.—A special cable from Berlin to the Sun says: According to the Tagblatt, the Kaiser was just saved from being the victim of an anarchist plot by the timely arrest at Breslau of three foreigners who had been commissioned by the international terrorist organization to assassinate his majesty during the military manoeuvres he is now attending in Silesia.

The prisoners are an Italian of the name of Matacci or Maecini, an Austrian known as Elinger or Friedling, and a Pole named Landesberg or Landshberger. Matacci was expelled from Italy two years ago. Since then he has associated with Russian terrorists in Geneva. He shared in recent outrages in Poland.

The three arrived at Breslau at different times. They were watched by detectives for several days, including the four which the Kaiser spent there on the eve of the manoeuvres, when the most elaborate precautions were taken to protect him.

A dozen who entered a house which was their rendezvous on Posener street Tuesday. They had a hard fight to capture the desperadoes who savagely resisted with knives and daggers, but after a long tussle, in which the furniture of the room was wrecked, the police secured and handcuffed them.

It is stated that papers found in the house establish the fact that the three men were constantly communicating with the terrorist group, for whom they were acting as agents. The papers indicate that their intention was to throw a bomb at the Emperor while he was riding in an automobile between certain points of the manoeuvres area.

THE SWIFTEST IN GOLF.

Nebraska Has Evolved a New Thing on the Links—A Kind of Tournament Play That Was Started on Nature's Own Golf Courses Beyond the Mississippi.

Several of the Nebraska home folks to celebrate the arrival of Bryan were golfers, and some had games on local links. "Your New York links are too artificial; just like a good many of your actions here," remarked one of the Nebraska golfers. "Now beyond the Mississippi we get nature's own golf courses, for the besting lands of the prairies are as undulating and close in turf as the seashore links in the British Isles. We don't build bunkers or dig traps for hazards. The land has only to be smoothed with a roller to form the putting greens, and the distances marked out according to the lay of the land to make a good course, two or three shot holes. It's ideal golf, and if we didn't have to hustle so hard for a living we surely would develop an amateur champion in Nebraska.

"There is one thing we have done that is a record. We have invented a new sort of golf tournament and a new name for it. We call it a swiftest, and it beats all other sorts of golf competitions."

"All hands may start in a swiftest, for we believe in sociality out our way. It is match play, arranged on the community plan and on sound principles that would appeal to Old Tom Morris, Prime Minister Balfour, Walter H. Travis, Minister Egan or any stickler for orthodoxy in golf; but it is wholly progressive and new.

"The method is something of the order of the playoff of a tie in a medal or by qualifying round, inasmuch as all hands are to play for the cup, all hands start in by playing the first hole. They divide off in pairs, of course, or in foursomes, and those to hole out first form a galley to watch the efforts of the others and cheer them on. High man or men drop out at each hole. The others keep on until but two are left in, but the rule remains the same, high man to drop out. When a swiftest gets reduced to one pair it becomes an ordinary match, usually settled at the next hole or two.

"Suppose the first hole is a par 41. Usually two or three will have 7s or 8s. If the second hole is an easy 3, those ac 3s will probably be dropped, unless some one gets a wretched 7 or 8, and so saves the bacon of the 3 men. Often a whole bunch will be dropped at 5s or 6s, or as we say, 'bites,' by a sacrifice stroke, we are too strict on the spirit of the game to commit such an act. Instead, should some one in such a crisis save the bunch by getting a 6, he is hoisted at and fined the drinks.

"When a swiftest is sifted down to six or eight, it becomes as exciting a form of golf as any I have seen. At our last swiftest over the Omaha Field Club links, there were six survivors out of seventy starters to play the sixteenth hole of 306 yards. All had 4s when the last pair drove off. One of them topped his tee shot and took 2 more to the green, but holed out in 4. His partner was on the green in 2, and it looked as if he, too, would get a 4 and the bunch loop on intact to the next hole. Instead, this chap played a long put bravely to the hole and got his 3. There was a tremendous yell from the gang as a tri-

In Millions of American Homes

Schenck's Mandrake Pills have been a "Household Word" in the homes of the United States through three generations.

Their Purify and Absolute Harmlessness, as well as their untiring efficacy, have firmly established them as a household necessity.

Incapacity for Independence. Now that it is evident that the Cubans, although generations ahead of the Filipinos, are not sufficiently developed for successful home rule, it is obvious that the anti-imperialist demand that "we should treat the Filipinos as we have treated the Cubans" has no basis in recent experience. The political demand of capital and of a large part of the labor of Cuba is annexation to the United States. Capital and labor in the Philippines would be handicapped were the contentions of Senator Hale and of Colonel Bryan to be supported by the United States Government. The American people several times have indicated that they do not side with the anti-imperialists. We require uniform tariff laws for our colonies and for the home country. The cowardly defeat of the Philippine tariff bill in the last Senate necessarily arrests the development of Hawaii and the Philippines. That bill, we trust, will pass the Senate at the next session of Congress, as it passed the House by a large majority.

If we want home rule in the Philippines to be promoted, if we want colonial development in industry as well as in education, we must invoke legislation, such as is advancing the well-being of Hawaii and Porto Rico and such as a decent colonial policy inspires. The Cubans now appear to wish that we had treated the Cubans as we treated the Porto Ricans.—Lawiston Journal, Rep.

Thin Blood Experience count anything with you? Then what do you think of 60 years' experience with Ayer's Sarsaparilla? Sixty years of curing thin blood, weak nerves, general debility! THEY WERE ALL SKINNERS. Why Nothing Could Be Done With Missouri Timber Thieves. Having been notified that some one was cutting timber on a piece of land I owned in Missouri, I made quite a journey to investigate the matter. I found the information to be correct and I found a farmer near by who appeared willing to tell me more.

"Yes, I reckon I know who stole your timber," he replied to my question. "The first I knowed about it was when I saw old Jim Skinner chopping in your woods. I asked him what he was a-doing there and he told me to go to the devil."

"I put down Jim Skinner's name and my informant continued: "Soon after that I saw Tom Skinner hauling out wood and I asked him what he was a-doing on another man's land, and he told me to go to the devil. Got that down?"

"Yes." "Then I saw Hank Skinner hauling out timber to make a barn and I asked him who gave him permission to cut and he told me to go to the devil. Hank Skinner it was."

"I've got it so." "Then Pete Skinner comes along and cuts down about fifty trees and makes saw logs and has 'em hauled up into boards for a house. He was getting out the logs one day when I asked him if he had a permit and he told me to go to the devil."

Harvard Keen Now. I read that Harvard is keen to study English rowing. There is one really good lesson that any university crew may learn from the Harvard men. That lesson is just large whether Harvard wins or loses, and that is keenness. Whether the men are paddling or rowing they lay themselves out to do their best. There is no crack-brained laddish in the crew, with notions of his own about feathering or swinging prepared to put his fads to the test at the expense of the crew. In all that they do they lay themselves out for their work. Now that is precisely where Cambridge crews are at fault. They have all the makings of a really good crew. They are being excellently coached. No man could say more than Mr. Escombe did: "Row yourselves out, you have all the day to row in. That was on Saturday, when they rowed through Cambridge bridge. That observation showed that he knew where the crew's weakness lay. They were short in their work. They failed to reach out. No crew can ever hope to win a punishing race unless it learns to row itself out in practice.—London Truth.
