ALL THE DIRECTORS HAVE BEEN HELD

For Responsibility in Connection With the Wreck of February 16, in Which 25 People Were Killed.

New York, March 5.—The coroner's jury which has been investigating the wreck of February 16 on the New York Central railroad in the Bronx as a result of which 23 persons met death, returned a verdict last night finding "that the New York Central & Hudson River Railroad company did not take all the necessary precautions to guard its passengers at this point and consequently were culpably negligent, and that the responsibility for the existing conditions seems to be divided between the construction and operating departments."

When Coroner Schwannicke received the verdict he turned to the jury and asked: "Can you gentlemen find any individual responsible?" "There is our verdict," returned the foreman. "Then," answered the coroner, "I will hold the entire board of directors of the New York Central, and also the president, and will parole them until tomorrow morning at ten o'clock, when I shall accept bail."

This verdict was rendered last night after two weeks' investigation by the coroner and a jury, during which many witnesses have been called. The coroner's jury finding contained eleven sections, and related that "the derailment was caused by a portion of the track consisting of its easterly rails being forced out of its proper position, this condition being due to the impact of the Brewster express."

AN ELECTION FEATURE.

Thomas H. Corry Asked Voters to Elect Him Mayor of Montpelier.

A familiar feature of the election in Montpelier was the publishing of a circular advocating the election of Thomas H. Corry as mayor of that city. The circular which appeared today was headed "For Mayor Thomas H. Corry. The no-rot candidate. Equal rights and liberty to all. No lines shall ever be drawn, with God's help, between creed, color, race."

After asking why the city of Montpelier did not buy the Viles electric light plant, why abutters should pay one-half the cost of laying sidewalks, why assessments should be levied for sprinkling streets, why the policemen do not pick up garbage, etc., why the chief of police does not search "Deputy Sheriff" before and after making a raid, and other questions, the circular at some length sets forth the qualifications of Mr. Corry and ends up with: "I am now with the public. If they want a good and honest administration—not such as can be swayed and gratified by pettifoggers and thieves, and, also, the like—sign the name of Thomas H. Corry and put a cross after it, to denote that you intend to vote for Corry, on the line under the name of James S. Haley. Let Haley's name alone. Be sure and do not put a cross on the black square, at the head of the ticket. I shall receive the votes of all except the would-be 'wet-gut' dealer, the rich man and the fool. All of these go shoulder and shoulder, and, therefore, neither of them do I expect to vote for me."

AMATEUR BILLIARDS.

Nothing Remarkable in Winning of Demarest of Chicago.

New York, March 5.—While there was nothing remarkable in the billiard play of young Colvin Demarest of Chicago in the initial game of the seventh national amateur tournament at the Liederkreis club last night, he defeated T. M. S. Rolls of Philadelphia decisively by a score of 300 to 199. In nursing and short ball line work, Demarest easily excelled. Today Conklin and Gardiner will meet in the afternoon and Dr. Nial will play Poggenberg at night.

The scores follow: Demarest—total, 300; average 9 12-32; high runs, 68, 64, 23. Rolls—total, 199; average 6 7-32; high runs, 27, 24, 22. Referee, Edward McLaughlin.

BODYGUARD FOR JUDGE.

Targis Trial in Jackson, Ky., Begun Yesterday. Lexington, Ky., March 6.—Accompanied by a company of the state guard from Lexington, and a portion of the Frankfort battery, Judge William Carnes went to Jackson yesterday to preside at a special term of court to try Judge James Hargis, charged with the assassination of Dr. B. D. Cox. In the anticipated court-room fight it is believed Judge Hargis, his attorney, W. A. Young, and Prosecuting Attorney A. Floyd Byrd may be killed. Byrd said yesterday that he would be killed, if such a fight occurred. The town of Jackson, he said, is full of excited mountaineers. The trial of B. Fulton French, John Smith and John Albers, charged with the assassination of James R. Mann, during the Breathitt feud trouble was set for Beattyville Monday, but it will be continued until July, as a trial now would conflict with the Hargis case, in which the same witnesses appear.

LABOR'S DEATH ROLL

Why System of Workingmen's Insurance is Needed. SLAUGHTER IN INDUSTRY. Every Minute of the Year a Toller Is Killed or Injured—Enormous Economic Loss Involved and Misery and Suffering Incalculable.

The newspapers tell each day how many head of live stock have been killed in the United States, but we know almost nothing of the death roll of human life through accidents in industry. In other words, we have lost our sense of proportion concerning the value of human life. Through the wear and tear of industry one life is sacrificed every minute to industrial progress. The cost of production has been reduced to a science, yet the economic loss entailed through the maiming and killing of the wage earner has been entirely lost sight of.

England, Germany, France and Switzerland keep perfect records of awful loss sustained by wage earners through accidents in industry. The United States, on the other hand, has made scarcely any effort in this direction. Massachusetts and New York are the only states that have made any progress in gathering statistics of accidents in industry. Pennsylvania has investigated the losses in the coal fields, and Illinois is now engaged in the same work. The Interstate commerce commission knows how many lives are lost on railroads each year; but, on the contrary, we have no records of how many lives are sacrificed in the manufacture of the rolling stock of the railroads.

Some years ago an estimate was made of the number of accidents occurring each year in Germany. The first investigation showed three times the estimated number, and, when completed, the actual number was six times greater than the original estimate. In France, where accurate records are kept, it has been found that 222,124 workers were either killed or injured, exclusive of mining and railroading. With a population less than one-half of our own and with laws admittedly quite perfect, it is easy to see that twice this number, or 444,248, would be a just estimate of such accidents in our own country, where our laws are notoriously inadequate.

From statistics compiled by the American Institute of Social Service, gathered from every available source in our own country, it has been found that 536,195 are annually killed and injured in the United States or over one a minute. These figures cover five great industries—railroading, mining, building, manufacturing and agriculture. What these figures mean in misery and suffering no man can estimate, but we can at least determine the economic loss involved. In wages alone, estimating the average earning capacity at $500 annually, there would be a loss of something like $200,000,000 in earnings in New York and Chicago to re-establish those who have been injured show that fully 50 per cent possess some earning power. At the present time, however, they are not put to work on a large scale, so that the loss is total. About 15 per cent of the number are killed, leaving a balance of 500,000 to struggle against their handicaps. If the partially disabled are not re-established, they are destined sooner or later to become public charges.

Poor relief statistics show that the cost for maintaining a pauper throughout his natural life is $6,000. Should even one-half of the above number ultimately become public charges, it would mean that this country annually contracts to pay $1,500,000,000 for the support of these injured artisans during their lifetime. Truly "haste makes waste." Instead of checking the waste by preventing accidents in industry, the ruthless slaughter is allowed to go on. Whole families are thrown upon the community when the breadwinner is injured, and one of three choices is left them. Either the women and children must go into the factories and suffer from the "speeding up" process, or seek relief through charity, and in case they are too proud to do this they starve; many choose starvation.

Germany and other countries have recently approached this problem in a sane, businesslike manner. In the former country there is now in force a system of workingmen's insurance, which in cases of accidents and sickness is giving complete satisfaction. This question far overshadows in importance many others about which labor is wasting its breath and ink in our own country today. It is certain to become a leading issue in politics within the next ten years in this country, as the recent advance in social and labor legislation indicates.—Clarence H. Mark in Chicago News.

Champlain's First Book.

Appropose to the Champlain tercentennial, it is of some interest to note that a copy of the first edition of Champlain's first book was sold at auction in New York City February 26 for $2,900. The book's title translated, "Concerning the Savages, or Voyage of Samuel Champlain, of Brongne, Made in New France, the year one thousand six hundred and three." The volume is a tiny one, four inches square and a quarter of an inch thick, containing only thirty-six pages of print. Only three other copies of this first issue are known, one in the Lenox library, another in the John Carter Brown library, and the third in the British museum.

The sale, it may be added, is a fresh example of the romance of books, for the man who sold this little volume for $2,900 bought it in Paris six months ago for four cents.
