

TROUBLES ARE INCREASING

Boston Teamsters' Strike Getting More Serious

FOUR MEN IN COURT TO-DAY

A Thousand Persons Joined in Demonstration Against Strike-Breakers This Morning and a Policeman Had Hard Time.

Boston, April 30.—Four men were arraigned in municipal court this morning, the result of riots over the teamsters' strike last night. The trouble is increasing and it is possible that the employers may carry out their threat and appeal for military aid. One thousand persons joined in a demonstration against the strike breakers this morning. A policeman who arrested a boy for calling "Seab" was surrounded by a mob and only brought his captive to the station house after getting reinforcements. About 5:30 last night William Colburn, 21, and T. Holgreen, 23, strike-breakers, working for the Boston forwarding and transportation company, were attacked on Summer street extension. They had put up their wares at the stable on K street, near East 1st street, and, feeling confident they could get along without police protection, started across L street on their way to the steamer Zealandia, the headquarters of the strike-breakers. They were quickly recognized, however, and a crowd of boys and young men followed them from the L street bridge and pelted numerous stones and bricks at them. Many of the missiles reached their mark, and Colburn and Holgreen were cut and bruised when they reached the steamer. They were attended by the surgeon, who is on the steamer to look after the men. About the same time and near the same place John Harbor, 28, and E. Tierney, 25, also strike-breakers from New York, while on their way to the stable of the Boston forwarding and transportation company, were attacked by a crowd of young men. Not only were struck with fists and were severely struck with fists and were severely out on the head and face. They, too, were attended by the surgeon, on arrival on the Zealandia, being assisted there by the police.

Arrested in the Bennington Murder Case

STATEMENT BY SHERIFF

A Blood-Stained Razor Was Found Yesterday Afternoon Near Scene of Sunday's Brutal Murder.

Bennington, April 30.—A blood-stained razor which might have been the weapon in the murder of little Ethel Mahan Sunday night at North Bennington was found yesterday afternoon in what is known as the North Bennington "mud hole," which is a section of Lake Paran, where the father of the girl was fishing when the murder was committed. The Bennington branch railroad runs between the two bodies of water. The place where the razor was picked up is only a few rods from the scene of the crime. A safety pin which had been used to fasten the child's underclothing and a button were found nearby. Ethel's cap was also picked up there. The murderer must have carried the body through a gap in the stone wall about fifteen rods toward the village. The tickets have been printed with the name John J. Eckles for village bailiff while the Dennis M. Duggan was left off. When the papers were filed nominating the men, each nomination paper was signed by but seven men and less than the number on per cent of those voting at the last village election, as prescribed by law. When the friends of Mr. Eckles heard that their candidate was not legally nominated they secured more signers but after the time limit had expired. When the tickets were printed the name of Mr. Eckles went on all right but that of Mr. Duggan was left off. His friends claim that he is being discriminated against.

And There Is Trouble Over Brattleboro's Village Ticket.

Brattleboro, April 30.—A red hot political controversy has been started by the printing of the tickets for the coming village election. The tickets have been printed with the name John J. Eckles for village bailiff while the Dennis M. Duggan was left off. When the papers were filed nominating the men, each nomination paper was signed by but seven men and less than the number on per cent of those voting at the last village election, as prescribed by law. When the friends of Mr. Eckles heard that their candidate was not legally nominated they secured more signers but after the time limit had expired. When the tickets were printed the name of Mr. Eckles went on all right but that of Mr. Duggan was left off. His friends claim that he is being discriminated against.

INVOLVES FINE POINTS.

U. S. Judge Martin Hears Unusual Involuntary Bankruptcy Case.

Rutland, April 30.—District Judge J. L. Martin of Brattleboro held a session of chambers court yesterday to hear the involuntary bankruptcy proceedings in which the petitioners are Boston liquor firms and the defendant is ex-almshouse Edward S. Watkins, a traveling salesman well known throughout the state. The case has been in court several months and has attracted a lot of attention. It grew out of an alleged partnership which Watkins had with the late George C. McCloy, a liquor dealer. Watkins admits that he let McCloy have some money May 1, 1905, and was to have half the profits of the business, but claims that the business relations were to expire at the end of 12 months. The wholesalers claim that the firm was indebted to Watkins for bills that had accrued later than May 1, 1905, and it is for Judge Martin to decide whether he shall be forced into bankruptcy. Representatives of the liquor firms were on the stand yesterday afternoon and the session ended with a heated debate as to whether or not Mr. Watkins shall be compelled to divulge his present assets. Because of the unusual features of the case many fine points of the United States bankruptcy laws arise.

Larabee, who lives nearby, saw the boy soon after he fell into the river, but before help could be secured the pit current that fills the river banks full had drawn the body under and nothing has been seen of it since. A net was at once strung across the river about a mile below where the body fell in and the stream will be searched above.

Secretary of State F. G. Fleetwood is giving a hearing at the city council chamber to-day on the application of Frank M. Brown of this city for a fourth class license to sell intoxicating liquors at wholesale in Vermont. The license commissioners of Barre brought before the secretary several licenses of this city, in the endeavor to show that Mr. Brown had been soliciting business without a license. Mr. Brown was represented by R. H. Brock, 12 o'clock a recess was taken until 2:15 this afternoon. Five wholesale licenses have been granted in Vermont this year, as follows: Springfield Brewing Co., S. Bolton's Sons of Troy, N. Y., G. Berry & Co. of Boston, J. E. Lynch of Rutland and Fitzgerald Bros. of Troy, N. Y. Three other applications are now under consideration: Sample & Co., Columbia Distilling Co., of Albany and F. M. Brown of this city.

Held in Montpelier on Application of Frank H. Whitney, The Sole Applicant in Middlesex.

Montpelier, April 30.—A hearing was held before the Middlesex license commissioners today to receive the objections to the granting of a license in the town of Middlesex to Frank H. Whitney, who was the only person to apply. Written objections were heard this forenoon. Frank H. Whitney has a stock of goods at the railway station in this city in case he is granted a license. The liquor was shipped with the agreement that it might be returned at the shipper's expense if the application was turned down. Commissioner E. E. Hill was inclined to doubt the legality of holding a hearing outside of the limits of Middlesex for objectors to present their grievances.

SIGNING ENGROSSED ACTS.

The Governor, Lieutenant-Governor and Speaker All at It.

Montpelier, April 30.—Gov. Fletcher D. Proctor, Lieut.-Gov. George H. Prouty and Speaker Thomas C. Cheney have been at the State House yesterday signing the engrossed acts of the legislature of 1906. Governor Proctor is accompanied by Miss Myrtle Loomis, his stenographer. Lieut.-Gov. Prouty arrived in Montpelier early in the morning from Norfolk, Va., where he attended the opening of the Jamestown exposition. He states that the work of getting the legislation in shape is far from completed, the remedy to the lack of funds which the national government did not relieve in time, partly to the attitude of labor unions and also to the adverse weather conditions. Governor Prouty believes the grounds will not be in shape much before June 1.

PROTEST BY SWANTON.

Because St. Albans Is Confirmed at Port of Entry.

Burlington, April 30.—The treasury department has confirmed the decision of Collector of Customs C. H. Darling of this state in making St. Albans the place where duties shall be assessed instead of Swanton, and hereafter all freight cars coming from Canada for the Grand Trunk and Central Vermont railroads will be sealed at Noyan Junction, Que., and shifted at St. Albans. It is understood that the board of trade of Swanton will protest against the decision and will ask the Vermont delegation to Congress to have it set aside.

VALUABLE HARNESS HORSES TAKEN SUDDELY ILL AND ONE DIES.

Brattleboro, April 30.—Three valuable harness horses in the stable of Howard & Yearley were stricken with a mysterious disease Sunday and one of them died this night. All three were taken sick at the same time. Dr. A. L. Rathbone and Dr. M. L. Miner, two veterinarians, were summoned but neither were able to help matters. All three horses were taken at first with violent trembling and cold chills followed by high fever standing with lowered head and wide apart nostrils. Last night one of them dropped dead and was dead. The other two are still living and slightly better. Both of the veterinarians state that they have never encountered anything similar to the disease before and the stomach of the dead horse has been sent to the state laboratory for analysis to see whether or not the animal was poisoned.

MR. BRYAN IN MAINE.

Portland, Me., April 30.—Before an audience of a thousand people in city hall last night, William J. Mr. Bryan said he had been exceedingly honored by the people and added: "I have nothing to ask of the American people. All I ask is a chance to pay back the debt I owe to them."

BY GOLDEN FLEECE WHICH CITIZENS REFUSED

Montpelier City Hall Committee and The City Council Take an Unexpected Action Toward a City Hall.

Montpelier, April 30.—An important move was made today at a city meeting of a city hall as the citizens voted recently. The move occasioned a big surprise when it was learned today as the committee, backed up by the city council, voted to buy the armory property on Haymarket square, a purchase which the citizens had frequently refused. The council voted last night to secure a bond issue $30,000 for the purchase not only of the armory property but of the Green ayup of tar property on the same site, which, with the city's property, would be used for the new building. The armory property is bought for $22,500 and the Green property for $4,000, the last being a compromise price and the former having been the same as offered by L. Bart Cross for several years back. Since the citizens voted $25,000 for a city hall, there will be about $100,000 available for the building. It is expected that the final papers will be passed about the middle of May. Written options have already been secured. The erection of the city hall will be started this summer.

FOUND ONE DISEASED.

Out of Herd of Six Belonging to J. H. Welcher of East Montpelier.

The herd of cattle belonging to James H. Welcher of East Montpelier, numbering six cows, were tested yesterday by Dr. C. M. Barber, acting for the state cattle commissioner. One of the cows, a thoroughbred, which Mr. Welcher purchased from the Moulton herd in Randolph two months ago, was found to be affected and last night was killed. Mr. Welcher says that after this experience he will not buy any more thoroughbreds until after they have been tested. He sends his milk to Montpelier. Dr. Barber is also investigating the cattle in the town of Cabot, and thus far has not found a trace of tuberculosis. He still has about 400 cattle there to be tested.

BURNS LIKE COAL AND COSTS LESS

J. M. Valdes, a Barre Tailor, Thinks He Has a Fuel Invention Which Will Do Away With "Coal Barons."

All fears of a coal famine may be dismissed if the ideas of J. M. Valdes, a local tailor, are carried into successful operation. Mr. Valdes gave a practical demonstration at William Cole & Son's store last evening of a new fuel which he has been experimenting upon for several years, on which he holds United States patents. The material, the base of which is common clay or black mud mixed with secret ingredients, burns readily with great heat and gives off but little gas and burns fully as long as ordinary coal. The inventor claims that the product which can be made in any shape or form, can be manufactured in large quantities for not more than $2.50 per ton and is anxious to either sell his invention or interest capital in its manufacture.

The 1:15 P. M. train coming from the junction this afternoon left the track in the woods just below Barre junction. CITY TO PAY BY THE WEEK

Voted by Citizens at Meeting Last Evening

THERE WAS NO OPPOSITION

Erection of Addition to Brook Street School Building Postponed Until Further Information Is at Hand.

Beginning June 1, next, all city employees will receive their pay weekly. This was decided upon at a city meeting held last evening, at which the citizens voted also to keep the salaries of the mayor, clerk and treasurer, aldermen, assessors and auditors at the same figures as last year. Action toward erecting an addition to the Brook street schoolhouse was postponed until the commissioners present plans and estimates for a four-room addition instead of a two-room addition. This business was transacted by 75 citizens. Alderman Walter Williams was elected chairman of the meeting, and James Mackay acted as secretary. At the start-off James H. Marr moved that the officials be paid the same salaries as last year, and the motion was carried. The salaries are as follows: Mayor, $250 per year. Aldermen, 50 cents an hour. City clerk and treasurer, $450 per year. Assessors, $3.50 per day. Auditors, 30 cents an hour. Brook Street Schoolhouse. When the question of an addition to the Brook street school building was brought up, Alexander Gordon of the school commissioners reported that the two-room addition would cost $6,000 or a little over, and that the building might tide the city over for two years. Alexander Ironside moved that the report be accepted, but dissatisfaction with a two-room addition at once developed, those opposed thinking that it would be better policy to erect a larger structure. Commissioner Scott and Stuart explained the action of the board in recommending the smaller addition, the former stating that they stood five to one for it after much discussion. Commissioner Gordon also stated that he heard through that section of the city was pretty well built up and that two more rooms would be sufficient, while other school outlay would be at North Barre and in ward five. He considered too that an addition of four rooms would not look well on the lot and that the structure would have to be made over to bear the increased weight of roof. Some of the speakers, notably J. P. Marr, George Troupe and Albert Halvosa, were inclined to censure the commissioners for failing to bring in estimates of a four-room addition, as well as for two-rooms. Then two motions were lost in quick succession, the first to lay the report on the table until further information could be secured, introduced by J. T. Callaghan, and the second, by George Troupe, to accept the commissioners' report with the substitution of a four-room addition in place of the two-room.
