A light of one candlepower is plainly visible at one mile, and one of three candlepower at two miles. The pressure of the sun's light on the earth is only an extremely small part of the energy which in one form or another the earth receives from the sun. Still it is calculable, and it has been estimated by Professor Poynting at 75,000 tons.

In a recent lecture before the Royal Geographical society in London Dr. Nansen expressed his conviction that it will never be possible to reach the north pole by automobile or sleigh. He gave reasons for his belief that there is no land near the region of the pole.

About 75 per cent of lethal crimes are due to the knife. Spain has 531 homicides per 100,000—about half of Italy's percentage. Germany's record in the matter of homicide is 1.88 per 100,000 of the population, England's .42 and Scotland's .37.

In the last statistical year there were in the Italian peninsula and islands 3,100 murders and 60,508 felonies (woundings with intent)—that is, well nigh 10 homicides per 100,000 of the inhabitants.—New York Post.
