Will the cows demand more feed?
 The last working day of the month.
 Are the graduates done, all done? Then, let the world proceed.

Vermont is not the only state where militia needs a bolstering up. A company of the Indiana state militia has just been disbanded because of "lack of interest among the members."

With an admittedly better crew so far as mere strength was concerned Harvard went down to defeat again before Yale. This "Yale spirit" we read so much about pulls a mighty strong oar.

The young people who may be aching to celebrate prematurely ought to realize how tremendously greater noise they could make on the Fourth if they held their ammunition. A volley makes more racket than a stuttering fire.

"Young man I will see you later" irately declared E. Henry Harriman when arrested for getting in the way of the Harvard and Yale crews, to a young man who caused his arrest. But he hasn't given the young man a chance since.

Barre patrons of the Central Vermont railroad will appreciate the train which was put on yesterday, whereby those going south in the morning are not compelled to wait at Montpelier Junction for an hour and six minutes. The new arrangement will give two trains out of the city on this road in the morning, the one going north at 7:30 and another to connect with the south bound and leaving at 8:45 o'clock.

A JUDICIAL OPINION.

In relation to the opinion of Attorney General Fitts that clubs cannot serve liquor to their members, under the present local option law, the St. Albans Messenger recalls a once famous case of State vs. Urban A. Woodbury under the old prohibition law. The case grew out of the serving of ale, furnished by the Vermont Fish and Game League, to the guests at their banquet in the respondent's hotel. An injunction was brought against the hotel for that reason. Judge Rowell, as chancellor, gave his opinion in 1900 that the serving of the liquor to the members of the Fish and Game League was not contrary to the prohibitory law, expressing it as follows:

"I assume as I must on the presumption of innocence that the Fish and Game League is a bona fide association, and not a device to evade the law, and hold in accordance with what I take the decided weight of authority to be, that its furnishing ale to its members on this occasion was not unlawful. But it is clearly unlawful for it to furnish ale to those who were not its members."

In view of this opinion, there exists some doubt as to the right of clubs in this matter. Whether or not the law's intent was different under the old prohibitory law than now under no-license is the question, which ought, as the contemporary suggests, be settled by the competent authority.

ONE DEMOCRATIC POSSIBILITY.

The tour of investigation which William J. Bryan has made and is making seems not to have settled his mind as to his course in the next political campaign. For we have thus far heard nothing of his intentions as to running for the Democratic presidential nomination as he promised us in Brooklyn several months ago he would divulge. "In the near future," to use his own words, I shall decide my part of the question that concerns my own position in this next campaign. That leaves the inference that there was a possibility of his running, does it not? Since the statement was made, however, there has been neither word nor line to intimate the probable action.

Meanwhile various possible and impossible candidates are being named for the Democratic nomination. The one which seems to have thus far been met with the most cordial response is that of Senator John W. Daniel of Virginia, although it must be admitted that the endorsement of him is largely from his own state or section. The newspapers of Virginia are profuse in their praise of their senior senator. Senator Daniel was first elected to the national upper house in 1887 and has therefore been in that branch for a score of years. Prior to that he served in the national house and previous to going to congress he served in the Virginia assembly and was once candidate for governor, being defeated by William E. Cameron. Senator Daniel was in the Civil war as a Confederate, holding the rank of major at his retirement from service. He still resides in Lynchburg, where he was born 45 years ago next September. Senator Daniel is rated high in his own state but whether his national prestige is such as to make him a presidential nominee yet remains to be seen.

Tales of Cities.

New York city is 134,500 greater in population than all of the remainder of the state.

Boston is the greatest telephone user in the world. Every day in New England there is an average of 665,838 telephone conversations. In Boston there is a phone for every eleven persons.

The village board of Golden Gate, Miss., has passed an ordinance prohibiting dancing within the limits of the village, imposing a penalty of $20 for the first offense and $100 for the second.

WEST BERLIN.

Catherine Stephen is quite ill with rheumatic fever.

Miss Anna Gilpin expects to go to Waterbury to work in the new hotel as table girl next Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. David L. Sanders from the west visited Mrs. Sanders' brothers, George and Amos Chase, last week.

Two brothers of Sam Shepard came to his place from Franklin, N. H., Wednesday for a visit of a number of days.

Amos Chase has done some extensive repairs on the interior of his residence, which is a decided improvement.

Two horses were killed by lightning in the pasture of Fred Ries. One of them, a Morgan, was owned by David Hess, Jr.

Mr. Eckhardt has come to Lotus Fields for the summer. Augusty Preston is expected very soon. Miss Augusty is Mrs. Eckhardt's confidential maid.

A. U. Stephen was taken with acute rheumatism in the knee while working in the shed of Slack in Northfield. Dr. Mayo was called and soon had him so he could be taken home to Mr. Sumner.

Officer Gilmes was called to George Williams to take charge of a drunk that was a little too familiar about the place. He was taken to Montpelier. There were two of them, the other kept out of sight until morning when he came looking for his chum.

Finland.

Finland is properly Fealand, "the land of the marshes."

How to Keep Cattails.

Cattails will keep for several years if they are hung by the stems, head down, until thoroughly dry. They may be dipped as soon as picked in a weak solution of carbolic acid to prevent insects from destroying them.

Knightly Lances.

Knightly lances were from twelve to twenty feet long, the heads four to eight inches broad and from twelve to twenty inches long.
