

RESULTS AS EXPECTED

The Usual Order of Victories in Big Leagues

BOTH BOSTONS LOST THEIRS

New York Highlanders Managed to Get One Game From Chicago. Brooklyn Almost Tied With Boston Nationals.

There were no surprises in the big leagues yesterday, as the games went just about as everybody expected they would go. The New York Highlanders managed to eke out one of their two games with the Chicago White Sox.

HAYWOOD TRIAL WEARS

OF LONG DRAWN TRIAL

Haywood to Retaliate on Prosecution. Defense Asks That Sheriff and Detective Be Kept in Court's Jurisdiction.

Boise, Idaho, July 18.—Unless the plans of the prosecution are changed today there is little chance of seeing the close of the Haywood case and the commencement of argument before Saturday at the earliest.

Most of the rebuttal evidence to be introduced bears on the labor situation in Colorado in the years 1903 and 1904, and is intended to rebut the claim of the defense that there existed a condition of peace and quietness prior to the calling out of the state troops.

William D. Haywood's attorneys are likely to retaliate on the state by having certain witnesses arrested for perjury. At the opening of court yesterday the defense requested that Detective D. C. Scott, Sheriff Rutan of Terhuda and William Dewey, a non-union miner, be held within the jurisdiction of the court.

WILL MAKE REPAIRS.

Cushman, which was to have been heard at Burlington yesterday before Judge Mower.

WOOLHOUSE GOES TO JAIL

He Conveyed Letters to a Convict GETS NOT LESS THAN TWO

Prisoner Said He Felt Sorry For Man Who Only Wanted to Send a Line to His Poor Old Mother.

Woodstock, July 18.—State cases are in progress of trial in Windsor county court. Some of the respondents are pleading "guilty," one of these being in the case of State vs. Benjamin Woolhouse. The respondent was charged with conveying letters from a convict in state prison to persons in the outside world.

The case of State vs. Willard White alias William Austin, was a charge of breaking into a house in the day time in the absence of the owner. The premises are situated in Weatherfield and were owned by George W. Spencer. The respondent is an old-time "crook" and has twice before been in state prison, once for burglary and once for being possessed of burglars' implements.

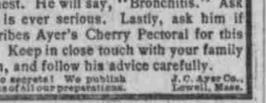

In the case of State vs. Warren Pitts, of Ludlow, the respondent, a young man, pleaded guilty to one offense of illegally selling intoxicating liquor. He was sentenced to imprisonment in the house of correction at Rutland for the term of one year.

The case of Fred L. Brigham vs. the town of Norwich, was taken up yesterday morning. It is an action to recover damages for an injury sustained by reason of an alleged defective plank of a bridge in the defendant's town.

Colds on the Chest. Ask your doctor the medical name for a cold on the chest. He will say "Bronchitis." Ask him if it is ever serious. Lastly, ask him if he prescribes Ayer's Cherry Pectoral for this disease.

Let's Talk It Over, Anyhow.

A friend from a western town writes: "We can trace at least a thousand increase of population the past year from the fact that the fifty-four members of our Commercial Club about a year ago all agreed to have printed on the back of their business letterheads a description of the town, its location, climate, natural advantages, possibilities for business, etc."

going out to all quarters of the compass. One of these letters might strike the eye of just the right party and bring us a new factory, an educational institution, or even a good substantial family looking for a desirable home place. It is worth trying. We can get up the descriptive matter for you and do the printing. Why don't you start the ball? LET'S TALK IT OVER, ANYHOW.

CALLING IN PARIS.

The Concierge is a Peculiar Institution in Several Ways.

You leave your card at the door of the person to whom you desire to present yourself, and there it is taken in charge by that peculiarly French functionary, the concierge, says Professor Barrett Wendell in Scribner's. A least in Paris, the greater part of French people live in large houses containing a number of apartments with a common entrance and staircase.

No matter whether you call on a friend who lives in some unpretentious out of the way place or on one who inhabits something like a palace, the concierge is always about the same. You can detect little differences between these in charge of important doors and of insignificant. They are as like as house flies. Of course there are private houses in Paris, with regular domestic servants such as you would find anywhere, but these, grand or simple, are so unusual that you remember the concierge as everywhere standing between you and further human intercourse.

In response to your card, which the concierge duly sees delivered, comes a card, often with a note, in return. If, as is generally the case, this acknowledgment of your existence contains an intimation of when your French acquaintance may be found at home, either habitual or for your special benefit, you make your second visit at this appointed time and thus enter into real personal relations.

Otherwise, your intercourse has limited itself to a polite exchange of cards. Generally speaking, you never expect or attempt to see French people socially except when they have asked you to one of their regular days of reception or have made a definite appointment. To call on a person at any other time—to do more than leave your card with the concierge—would be an intrusive pretense to intimacy.

Samuel Warren's Vanity.

The vanity of Samuel Warren, the author of "Ten Thousand a Year," in his early years of authorship at least, was remarkable, and there is a story told of him to the effect that on one occasion at a friend's house he had to take down to dinner a lady whom he had not met before, and as soon as they were seated at table asked her if she had ever heard of Samuel Warren. "Oh, certainly," was the reply. "My husband prefers Warren's Blanking to any other. We always use it."—Westminster Gazette.
