Examination Ended Despite Pleas of Attorney For New York Paper.

Shearn May Begin Over Again.

New York, July 23.—The examination of Dist. Atty. Jerome in connection with the suit brought by him to recover $100,000 libel damages from the New York Evening Journal was declared closed today by Justice Dayton in the supreme court.

This came in spite of a lengthy argument by W. R. Hearst's lawyer, Clarence Shearn, who asked that the examination be held open until September to await the return of Howard S. Gans, who had charge of the financial end of the Jerome campaign and through whom Mr. Shearn proposed to learn more of the campaign contributions.

It is probable that Hearst's lawyer will ask for another examination concerning the other $100,000 suit that Jerome brought against the Journal.

NEGRO CHASED BY MOB UNTIL SCARED TO DEATH.

Dies in Cell After Being Rescued by the Police.

Cincinnati, July 23.—James Wilson, colored died of fright late last night, following an exciting chase, and his arrest for shooting Charles Banlag, a white man.

After the shooting Wilson was chased over half a mile by the police and a crowd of men who had witnessed the shooting. He was exhausted from his exertions and by the heat, but seemed afraid of mob violence, continually appealing for help from the police, who had to use force to save him.

Physicians reported that when brought to the station Wilson's condition was normal and fright undoubtedly caused death. One of the detectives who assisted in the arrest was overcome by the heat, but soon recovered. Banlag's condition was said to be serious, but not necessarily fatal.

GOULD'S SON JOINS IN HUNT FOR GOLD

With Pack on Back He Will Dig in Arizona Mountains For Precious Ore.

New York, July 23.—Preparations are being made by Kingdon Gould, youngest son of George J. Gould, and five other Columbia students to start on a prospecting trip with Dr. Charles P. Beskey, an instructor of geology. They will go to the Mule mountains, in the southern part of Arizona, where they will hunt for gold, silver and copper.

Each member of the party will have a kit and two weeks provisions swung on his back. A camp cook, a guide and a pack of mules will also go along.

"We shall pay particular attention to the various ores," said young Gould, "and we hope to discover rich deposits of valuable metals. After returning from the mountains we will go to Los Angeles and other cities in California. Since entering Columbia, Kingdon Gould has shown deep interest in metallurgy, and it is said that one of his ambitions is to discover real paying ore. One of the young prospectors is Arthur Moneth, Kingdon Gould's cousin.

GREAT LIQUOR SEIZURE

Saloon at Sunderland Raided Possibility of Big Fine.

Manchester, July 23.—One of the biggest raids ever carried out in this county was that of Saturday afternoon by Deputy Sheriff M. J. Covey on the saloon of Edward and Patrick Morrissey at Sunderland. Three wagon loads of "fixings," valued at $1500 were seized. The men were arraigned charged with selling liquor illegally and were bound over to await the action of county court, which meets the first Tuesday in December. The penalty provided, if they are convicted, is a fine of $300 for each sale. They have been doing business since early in June.

It is alleged that Patrick Cullinan and Edward Morrissey of Arlington bargained with one Pike to take the license for the sale of liquor, the goods being shipped in Pike's name and the empty bottles and other articles being sent back under their own names.

The law makes it illegal for a non-resident to sell liquor. Rev. McCree, pastor of the Baptist church at Manchester, interested himself in the matter, which was later taken up by Clarence J. Ferguson, president of the state Anti-Saloon league. He secured information which resulted in the issuance of warrants. The deputy sheriff drove to the place but found one train not enough and sent for two others to carry away the fixings.

It is alleged that the opening day's business of the saloon amounted to $175 and that if the fine of $300 for each offense committed is imposed, the sum would amount to $100,000.

Edward Pike, father of the licensee, furnished bail of $5000 for the men.

PAYMASTER LOSES ARM FROM HANDLING MONEY.

Veteran of Civil War and Member of McKinley Regiment.

Manila, July 23.—Major Paymaster Eugene Coffin has had his left arm amputated, the result of infection from the handling of money paying troops.

He was a veteran of the civil war and a member of the old McKinley regiment.

Embarrassing.

There was no room in the omnibus, and the bashful Mr. B. took his little girl on his knee. Enter a beautiful young lady. Seeing her, the little girl calls out at the top of her voice: "Oh, papa, I'll give this lady my seat!"

Confusion of Mr. B. and hasty retreat of lady.—Slovo.

Might Have Been Worse.

Anxious Mamma—Dick, you had boy, you've been fighting with Tommy Simpson again. Look at your clothes! I'll have to get you a new suit!

Dick—Well, that's nothing. You ought to see Tommy Simpson. His ma will have to get a new boy.—London Weekly Telegraph.

Man and Woman.

"A man dreads his fortieth birthday," he said, "and a woman—"

"Well?" she inquired when he hesitated.

"The prattling old doctor who officiated at her birth."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Strong Evidence.

Ripley Hitchcock, the critic, said of criticism at the Century club in New York:

"Much of our criticism seems crude because it takes the wrong point of view. It asks itself whether or no the work before it will be popular. It should only ask itself whether the work is good."

"These crude critics, with their wrong criterion, remind me of an old man in a New Hampshire tavern.

"Two tourists entered this tavern one afternoon and asked for a bottle of whisky to take with them on a fishing excursion in the Stunpee waters. The whisky was very cheap. The tourists before accepting it debated whether such a low priced brand could be good."

"As they argued the question an old man rose from a bench in the sun and roared toward them.

"Not good whisky, gents?" he said impatiently. "You're—hic—mistaken. Look at me for 20 cents!"

What He Missed.

One of the officials of the Indian office at Washington was visiting a reservation in Montana on government business when a certain chief who had taken a fancy to Uncle Sam's agent invited him to attend the wedding of the Indian's daughter.

The Indian office man was, to his regret, unable to be present at the festivities, but the Indian ironically described the function subsequently in order to indicate what the agent had missed.

"Five dogs," said the chief, "and plenty pie."—Harper's Weekly.

PITTSBURG NOW SECOND

By Defeating Boston Nationals in 13 Innings

AND NEW YORK'S DEFEAT

Boston and Chicago Americans Played Thirteen Innings to a Tie and Then Stopped the Game by Agreement.

In the last game of their present series, Boston and the Chicago Americans battled for thirteen innings yesterday afternoon and by agreement the game was called with the score a tie, one to one. Cleveland, by defeating Washington, is within halting distance of the White Sox. Detroit defeated Philadelphia and New York defeated St. Louis.

The Pittsburgh Pirates, by a great effort, showed into second place in the National league, landing a winner from Tenney's men, 5 to 4, in thirteen innings. At the same time the New York Giants were defeated by the leaders in a shut-out game, so that this helped the Pirates along into second place also. The Philadelphia team took a double-header from St. Louis, and the Cincinnati Reds finally stopped Brooklyn. The scores:

Yesterday's National League Games. At Pittsburgh—Pittsburg 5, Boston 4, (13 innings). At New York—Chicago 2, New York 0.

At Philadelphia—Philadelphia 2, St. Louis 1, (first game); Philadelphia 5, St. Louis 1, (second game). At Brooklyn—Cincinnati 2, Brooklyn 1.

A New Aid Fable.

This is not a George Ade fable, though it may sling some slang. It is a Home Aid fable.

Once there was a Geecoo, who sat around and cut Kindling too small for Cook Stove purposes. He Whittled against Time and Flabbergasted against his Town. The town was No Good, he said—strictly on the Blink. Yes, it was N. G. Why, hadn't he lived here since '84 and found that the Place was Funky? Sure, Mike!

Look at that town over in the next County. Grown like Jonah's Gourd. Must be a Jonah here. We've grown some, but I don't see that we're knocking any particularly Big Parsimmons. That's the way this Gazaboo knocked his town.

One day a Sarcastic Stranger floated into the Town that was Knocked from the burg that had Blossomed like Jonah's Gourd. He Heard some of the Flabbergasting and Drooped to the situation.

"Look here, you," he remarked to the citizen who was Handing out the Knocks. "What do you do for this town? Are you doing your part to put this Burg on the Upgrade? What's that hefty bunch of literature sticking out of your clothes?"

"That's a Mail Order Catalogue from Chicago—a town that is a town," replied the Geecoo.

"So I thought," said the Impertinent Arriver. "Now let me hand you out a nice little Wad of common sense. For the past ten years you have been sending your money to the Chicago Mail Order houses instead of spending it among your home merchants. What would have happened to Chicago fifty years ago if all the First Settlers had shipped their Loose Coin to New York on catalogue inducements? Why, you'd have to use a sand dredger now to find the Original Site of Chicago. Now, in the Burg from which I have just Blown in we got over all this Hum Business years ago. We passed Resolutions that we would trade at home and help our own town to spread out so that you could Sight it on the map without using Opera Glasses. But you and a bunch of other folks in this town have wasted your Substance in Riotous Expenditures in Chicago by mail and let the sheriff hang out the 'Nothing Doing' sign in front of some of your own town's mercantile Establishments. Look at our Town and then look at yours. What makes the Difference?"

Whereupon the Whittling Gazaboo threw a few well chosen Thoughts into his mental makeup and went down to the village store to Annex a linen collar in place of the Paper Circles which he had bought from Chicago at Two Bits a Box.

MORAL: If you want your town to grow, patronize home enterprises.

THE HALL OF FAME.

George J. Gould is disposing of his stable of polo ponies and is withdrawing from the game temporarily.

Michael Leavitt of Millford, N. H., who claims he is 110 years old, walked three and a half miles recently just for exercise, he said.

Ex-Major Burke of Burlington, Vt., who lately retired from office, is a capable blacksmith. A few days ago he shod fifty-two horses "all round."

Representative and Mrs. Nicholas Longworth expect to spend a month in Alaska the coming summer. They will leave their home in Cincinnati about July 1.

Alma, the one-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Reiter of Red Hill, Pa., enjoys the distinction of having four living great-grandmothers and two grandmothers.

Eleven years ago Elmer Chase of Milo, Me., got a large splinter in his hand, which has caused him so much annoyance that the other day he had a physician extract it.

Gabriele d'Annunzio has refused an offer of $15,000 to deliver eight lectures in South America. In refusing he wrote, "I have no wish to brave the ocean for a box of cigars."

Dulcinu, the Zulu chief once widely known and feared in war, has a graphophone with which he entertains his guests. He has also an organ, built in England, on which he plays himself.

To have served forty-six years without having a single criticism passed upon his work is the record of Assistant Chief Edwin Williams of the Hartford (Conn.) fire department, who now resigns.

Lionel Walter Rothschild, who is spending $100,000 on a history of extinct birds, is a member of the famous family of bankers. He is a son of the first English Baron Rothschild and possesses an immense fortune.

Charles A. Eich of Cohasset, Mass., now the Thomas Wigglesworth is dead, is Harvard's oldest living graduate. He was eighteen years old when he was graduated in the class of '23. He is sixty-two years old and has practiced law nearly seventy years in Boston.

When John Burns entered the British cabinet, there were rumors that he would refuse to don the cocked hat and epaulet of official uniform. The king asked him about it. "Not true," replied Mr. Burns, "and, besides, I have already worn your majesty's uniform." The king naturally asked when that was. "When I was in Fentonville," answered Mr. Burns, alluding to his three months' sentence after the Trafalgar square riots.

Trials of a Woman Suffragist.

Keir Hardie had a trying experience the other evening. Addressing a meeting mainly attended by the other side, he failed to get a hearing until the chairman said, "Gentlemen, if you will listen to Mr. Hardie quietly, he will be happy to answer any question you may put to him at the end of his speech."

When the honorable member had resumed his seat, a question written on half a sheet of note paper was sent up to Mr. Hardie and passed by him unopened to the chairman, who read it, and grew very red in the face. "Read it out!" roared a dozen men, and the chairman at last obeyed. The question was, "Why do they call you a Gibson girl?" It finished the meeting.—Ozbooker.

GOT HIS REVENGE.

The Way Lord Brougham Paid His Debt to George IV.

With all of his knowledge and talent Lord Brougham was eccentric and slovenly in his personal habits. While he was a young and comparatively unknown barrister he was asked to a dinner at which the prince regent presided. Mr. Brougham's hands needed washing. The regent's keen eyes rested on them. He beckoned to a waiter and gave an order which the man heard with a scared face, and then going out he speedily returned with a ewer full of water, soap and a towel.

He carried them to Brougham, presenting them with the prince regent's compliments. The barrister instantly withdrew and never afterward referred to the insult.

Years later, when the prince, now king, tried to divorce his wife, Brougham, as her defender, so vehemently sustained her cause that she triumphed. The king's name was not mentioned during the trial, though the nation knew that he was secretly the prosecutor. Brougham in his speech declared that he saw in the distance the nameless persecutor of his innocent client, quoting with terrific effect Milton's words:

If shape it might be called, black it stood as night. Fierce as ten furies, terrible as hell, And shook a dreadful dart: what seemed his head The likeness of a kingly crown had on.

George IV. felt seriously this savage attack. The nation sided with the queen, and her defender had paid his debt with interest.

A fool on his folly is soon started.

If somebody would invent a dollar with eight quarters in it, an enthusiastic public would loudly applaud.

Trouble is cheap and lots of it can be had for a dollar.

The man who does the thinking part never makes much noise about it.

Just a Boy.

"Hold on!" said the learned chemist. "Didn't I give you a bottle of my wonderful tonic that would make you look twenty years younger?"

"You did," replied the patient, "and I took it all. I was then thirty-nine, and now I am only nineteen."

"Well, then, will you please settle this little bill you owe for the treatment?"

"Oh, no. As I am only nineteen now, I am a minor, and minors are not held responsible for the bills they incur. Good day, sir."—Detroit Free Press.

PLEA FOR LIFE OF HAYWOOD

THE MAGIC OF A NAME.

Samuel Phillips Verner, the African traveler, a few months ago received a call from Cardinal Gibbons of Baltimore, who desired some information from him about Catholic missions in Africa. Mr. Verner, who is still quite a young man, was out and, returning to his apartments, found the cardinal's card, which he slipped into his vest pocket. Leaving a surface car on Broadway a few days later, Mr. Verner accidentally trod on the toes of a stout man about to enter the car. Although Mr. Verner promptly and courteously apologized, his victim would not be appeased and applied to him a vile epithet. Instantly the young South

HE PASSED THE CARD TO THE POLICEMAN.

Carolinian's fist shot out and took the man on the nose, and before the latter had recovered from his surprise Mr. Verner had landed two or three other hard blows.
