TESTS AT GLACE BAY

Marconi There to Supervise Final Preparation for Transatlantic Wireless Telephonic Service.

Glance Bay, N. S., Sept. 24.—Declaring that he intended to stay in Glance Bay until wireless communication with Europe had been placed on a commercial basis, Guglielmo Marconi said yesterday:

"We have finally overcome all obstacles, and in about three weeks will commence a commercial transatlantic wireless service."

Mr. Marconi arrived in Cape Breton on Sunday, having crossed the ocean from England by the Canadian route to the Virginian. He landed at Rimouski on Friday last and on his arrival at Sydney was met by Mrs. Marconi, R. E. Vyvian and Hon. B. O'Brien. Yesterday the inventor proceeded to the wireless station on the promontory at Glance Bay.

The messages sent from the station at Glance Bay will be received on the other side of the Atlantic at Clifden, Ireland, where Mr. Marconi said a new plant had been established, fitted out with the latest machinery and must be more powerful than the older station at Poldhu, Cornwall. The Cornwall station, however, will be utilized as a secondary plant.

Mr. Marconi said that the Cape Cod station would not be used at present, as it is not yet ready for active work.

TWO MEN WANT TO MARRY SAME WOMAN

After Proceeding in Court Bath Veteran Wins Out Against Lawyer.

New York, Sept. 24.—The troubles of Walter L. Messer, an old soldier of Bath, Me., who has been trying for a week to marry Miss Elizabeth Henry, 30, West Sixteenth street, of Severn De Angelis, a lawyer who lives at the same address and who has been trying to prevent the marriage, and of Miss Henry herself, who wants to marry the old soldier, were laid before Magistrate Kerochian in the Jefferson market court. The lawyer had had the soldier arrested for assault.

"I want protection for Miss Henry," said Lawyer De Angelis. "This man is trying to marry her, and when I tried to take her away from him this morning he struck me and I was injured."

"I did strike him," said Messer, who is 62 years old, while Miss Henry acknowledges only 35. "We have been trying to get married for a week, and this man has been butting in. Last night we were at the Calvary Episcopal church all ready for the ceremony, and this man rushes in and tries to prevent it. I'm a drunkard, and that Miss Henry used drugs. I'm from Bath, Me., and it comes to a pretty pass in New York when a man can't get married without a stranger forbidding the bands. I'll hit him again if he keeps it up."

"This man," said the lawyer, "is no man for her to marry. It's a most peculiar case, judge. She's got two admirers. She exhibits a duality of affections. When she's under the influence of a drug she is all for this man, and when she is herself she prefers me. This man has a strange power over her."

"Never heard of such a case," said Magistrate Kerochian. "Surely she's old enough to get married if she wants to."

"By God, sir, and she will," said Messer. "If you'll perform the ceremony right now, judge, and just ask this lady if she'll marry me, I'm ready."

Magistrate Kerochian blushed.

"I can't ask her to marry you," he said. "You'll have to ask her yourself. I didn't perform wedding ceremonies. But let's see what the lady says."

"Why, judge," said Miss Henry, "I'm ready to marry Mr. Messer now, but Mr. De Angelis won't have it."

"By God, sir, he'll have to help it," said the veteran. "You heard her say that she wants me, judge. I'm going to marry her, and I'd like to see who'll stop me."

"But the man is a dipsomaniac," insisted the lawyer. "And, judge, Miss Henry and I are intimate friends and I want to see her happy."

"Well, she looks happy enough," said the magistrate. "I'll dismiss the assault complaint. Let them get married if they want to."

"We want to, and we're going to get married today, if I have to tie for it," shouted the veteran as he left the court room.
